For many years Mr. Chappell tried to breed a plate winner. No other honor so great can come to the Canadian breeder of thoroughbred race horses. Mr.

Some Satisfaction.

The colts Parmer and Commola were among them, and sporting the colors of the Valley Farm stables, under which George M. Hendrie races, they made history at Woodbine. The colt Parmer, that won, is by The Commoner—Placema, and the sire is owned by Walter O. Parmer, after whom the colt is named. Commola also is by The Commoner, the dam bealso is by The Commoner, the dam beang Losiola.

At least Joe James has the honor of having bred a plate winner, although he did not own the colt at the time, and that is the part that rubs.
