After the organization Chairman Robinson asked Ald. Richter to exstrong (York, O.), Arthurs, Baker, plain the new local improvement act. and the latter went into a very lengthy explanation of the latest amendments.

Taking up the question historically, he referred to the various amendments from the early days to the present, and showed their meaning in the development of local improvement work. Coming down to the present act. Ald. Richter pointed out that in the last analysis the ratepayers' had to pay the cost of all local improvements. whether as a frontage tax or out of the general rate. He preferred the former, as it was a land tax, the legitimate and proper way of taxing property. Last Year's Decision.

"The council last year decided to ad-

"By that, the every improvement in front of such property, sidewalks, curbs, gutters, children once a week, which I consider payements, and all the rest. There is utter folly." a provision in the act whereby the council may, by a three-fourths vote, agree to pay any portion of the cost they desire, but as it would take a three-fourths vote to repeal this by law, it was considered unwise to tamper with that question, but merely al low the question to stand as laid tion dispensing charity. This was down in the act. I think in the main rather a serious matter, and he opit will wor kout to the advantage of posed it altogether.

"The old act was not fair. By it, the city was supposed to pay 50 per cent of the cost of improvements. CASTE SYSTEMS CAUSE TROUBLE

With in the East Indies.

PUPILS POSITION OF WOMEN

The Ladies of That Effete Country Are Not Heard Raising Their Voices for Votes.

The difficulties of carrying on medical and hospital work in the provindecided to recommend to the board of cial sections of India, owing to the caste systems of the natives, was pointed out by Miss Harriet Thomson, Jean R. Laidlaw, who resigned some of Indore, in two interesting and instructive addresses at the afternoon and evening sessions of Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the London Presbytery in New St. James' Presyterian Church yesterday.

Miss Thomson has for some years been in charge of the hospital nursng in the Indore Hospital for Women There are quite a number of hospitals for women and children in India established by the Dufferin fund founded by Lady Dufferin.

The native girls, not without great lifficulty, are trained as nurses. classes of patients are received-Christians, Mohammedans, Parsees, Hindus and others, speaking all the dialects of India. Such is the inflexibility of the his life. will not accept food or attendance from attendants of an inferior caste. Bombay all castes are kept together, but this is out of the question in the smaller places and interior towns, where the hospitals have to make separate provision for all the different law's resignation no successor had castes.

Position of Women. One of the deplorable results of some of the Indian religious systems street, city: Mrs. Francis, of Windsor; is the inequality of position accorded to women. In some religious castes David Marlatt, of St. Thomas, is a some of the Indian religious systems they are not regarded as having souls. Miss Thomson told of one women who declared that she would be perfectly happy if she were only as good as a Thomas.

The native women usually place full confidence in the medical missionaries and doctors, and are extremely grateful for all benefit received from med ical and hospital treatment. A peculiar custom of giving sweetmeats and garlands in return for services is followed in paying for medical services. They spend large amounts of money in this way, although the missionaries would much rather have the cash or even a part of what is spent in buying the presents.

One of the trials of the medical misionary in India is being called upon o attend sick cows. The natives think the doctor ought to feel highly honored because the cow is held in such eneration, and their feelings are hadw hurt if the doctor declines the onor.

A great deal of good work is accomplished by the missionaries through organizing Y. W. C. A.'s among the natives. There is a need for more western workers, one missionary having a field of about 25,000 people. Educational Work.

In her evening address, Miss Thomson dealt with the educational work for girls at Indore since Miss Thomon went to India, the state has estabished a large number of girls' schools patterned after the mission schools. Brief addresses were given at the chell, who presided, Rev. Dr. Ross, Rev. J. Gibson Inkster, and Rev. W.

R. McIntosh. Dr. Ross dealt with the purposes and motives which had actuated the organizers of the women's foreign missionary movement. Rev. Mr. Inkster presented a comprehensive and en couraging resume of the year's work. He made a strong plea in favor of systematic giving.

Mr. McIntosh's Address. Rev. Mr. McIntosh advocated greater earnestness in foreign missionary work. A larger membership was will not be the need of so rigid an needed, and a greater interest should be taken in the work by the young people of the church.

A pleasing feature of the afternoon session was the presentation of a bouproperty must pay the whole cost of danger of making the inspection ludic- quet of flowers to Mrs. A.
