An Austrian chemist named Dr. Janumann states, in a letter published in a Vienna journal that he has invented a fluid of terribly destructive powers, the use of which would soon render war impossible. He claims that "this fluid when brought into contact with the air, after the explosion of a shell in which it has been contained, is transformed into gas, which, being heavier than the air, descends to the ground, killing all men and animals within it reach, and moreover destroying iron, bronze and other metals, as well as setting all inflammable things on fire." If the claim to the invention is well founded. humanitarians will console themselvesby the reflection that the use of such an agent would place weak nations on an equality with their stronger neighbors.

THE new British ironclad Victoria is a great addition to our navy. The vessel was built on the Tyne. The Sanspareil, now under construction in the Thames and the Victoria will be the largest ironclads in the navy, except the Inflexible. A description of the Victoria says that she will be armed with two 110-ton guns, the largest pieces of ordnance ever manufactured in England, while the protecting armor of the vessel is eighteen inches, and her displacement in tons 10, 500. The engines of 12,000 horse-power will provide a speed of seventeen knots an hour. The projectile thrown from these guns weighs 1,800 lbs., and it is A description of the Victoria says that

AN APRIL EVENING SONG. [BY THE COMOX RUSTIC,]

April days, like hours, are gliding,
Light and shade, and breeze and show
Late on high the sun was riding,
Though we scarcely felt his power.
Unperceived, he now is passing
O'er the peak where glaciers lie;
Sombre clouds behind him massing.
Veil his exit from the sky.
Yet the earth is quickly losing
Every mark of Winter's chain;
Grass is growing, maples rousing
Don their emerald plumes again,
Birds in fields and woods are singing,
Grouse untiringly do drum;
Lambs and calves and cow-bells ringing
Tell that gladsome Spring is come.
Humming-birds, their lives enjoying,
Flash through greenwood all the day.
Northward bands of geese are flying,
Bound for marshes far away.
As upon the desolation

Bound for marshes far away.

As upon the desolation
Of the March lands, shivering,
Comes the green resuscitation
And the warming breath of Spring,
So, when, prosperous times forsaking,
Grief and trouble o'er us roll,
Still, through chilling gloom forth breaking,
Hope revifies the soul.
Help us Saviour, strong and tender,
Ever patient, ever true,
For our steadfast hope, to render
Unto Thee the glory due.
Earth is fair, but regions fairer
Lie beyond; a fadeless land,
Purethrough Thee, our great sin-bearer,
In that country we may stand,
Grateful, may we own Thee near us,
While fair sunshine lights our way;
May Thy glorious presence cheer us
In the dark and cloudy day,
Till earth's shadows thinning, rending,
Breaks upon our strengthened sight
All the glorious Spring unending
Of Thy land, the land of light.
