It would be a very foretaste of the millenium to many weary, disheartened workers In taking action towards this happy end do you not think our first step should be to approach the clergy on the subject, for the penefit of their approval and advice? I have reason to believe that most (if not all of them) including the bishops, are in full sympathy with the scheme.

With regard to the amount of our individual offerings I hope and believe that few of us who neglect systematic and proportionate almsgiving are possessed by the spirit of covetousness—that insiduous vice by which one of the chosen twelve fell from grace-a vice so insiduous that St. Paul classes it with sins not so much as to be named among Christians. It is, I hope, only that we are careless and do not realize the high importance of a duty which our Lord, in the Sermon on the Mount, classes with prayer and

It sounds almost profane when put to words thus; but that is how the presents itself to some of us. I saw two lines lately which compared our modern methods with those of former to the glory of God and suffering humanity was relieved by sacrifices, tears and prayers but now we work by socials, teas and fairs. This contrast is not to our credit!

Would it not be a grand work of the Women's Council to restore the good old shortly by a large and well appointed order when sweet charity was done simply in Christ's name and as to Him? For the pecuniary success of our venture typhus fever, yellow fever or cholera.

Section 69 of the provincial act requires ouseholders to report immediately cases of infectious or contagious diseases occurring within their families or their household, while section 14, "Health by-law," provides that any person departing from or entering any infected or quarantine house, or who shall remove anything from such place, shall be subject to a penalty of $100 or to three months' imprisonment with hard labor. Section 86 of the provincial act states:

Whenever a case of smallpox, cholera, scarlatina, diphtheria, whooping cough, measles or infectious disease exists in any household belonging to which are persons attending school, the householder shall, within eighteen hours of the time such disease is known to exist, notify the head teacher of such school or schools and also the local board of health, of the existence of such. Failure to comply with the above regulation may subject the house older to a fine of $50 and costs, or to imprisonment. Whenever any householder or person belonging to any family, or dwelling in any odging house, has reason to suspect or beeve that any disease by which any member of the said family or person lodging in the said house is afflicted, is infectious or contagious, the said househelder or person first nentioned herein shall notify at once some duly registered practitioner or the medical health officer, either in person or by writing, delivered at or posted to his address.

The previous resolution as to the duties of the medical health officer and sanitary nspector was rescinded, and the following dopted in its stead:

"Wherever difficulties have arisen beween the medical health officer and sanitary inspector as to the extent of their respective powers under the health by-law, in cases of differences of opinion between such officers: therefore be it resolved that the sanitary inspector in all matters carry out all instruc-tions of the medical health officer, who is hereby made responsible to the board of health for the due enforcement of all provisions of the said by-law.
