MRS. BALL'S FINE COURAGE.

THE FACTS IN A CASE OF BURGLARY AT WOODSTOCK.

A Woman Who Went to the Assistance of Her Husband While He Was Struggling With a Burglar, Who Beat the Latter Insensible, Bound Him Fast and Handed Him Over to the Police.

WOODSTOCK, Sept. 27.—Before Mr. Justice Street at the Assizes to-day was tried a case which shows the stuff our Canadian ladies are made of, and no longer is the Western girl, who can use a Winchester "with as much facility as her brother," and who possesses the iron nerve described in the literature of Western romance, the heroine of the hour. In Woodstock lives a lady who can use a revolver or a club with the greatest facility when necessary and who possesses a great amount of the right kind of nerve.

The Desperado Appears.

Alfred S. Ball, barrister and solicitor of Woodstock, was, between 1 and 2 o'clock on the morning of the 27th of August last, sitting in his dining room reading, when a small dog, his only companion in the room, the members of the family having some time before retired to rest, commenced to growl, at the same time going over toward the door of the room which led into the hall. At first Mr. Ball paid little attention to the animal, but shortly he arose and opened the door, saying to him, "I will leave the door open so that you can get in again." He was just about to return to his seat when a man appeared in the doorway and presenting a revolver at his head demanded his money. Mr. Ball, seeing no alternative, said he would give him what he had, and returning to the table in the room laid down the book, which he had been holding in his left hand, his right hand being in his pants pocket. The burglar followed him into the room, still holding the revolver pointed at Mr. Ball, who, having laid down his book, made a rapid spring and with his left hand caught the right wrist of the burglar and thrust it above their heads. Then each grasped the other and a desperate encounter followed. Mr. Ball called to his wife to telephone for the police, and she hurried down stairs armed with a revolver and asked her husband if she would shoot. By this time the men were at the bottom of the stairs in the front hall, and Mrs. Ball, who was on the third step from the bottom, at the words "Yes, shoot," from her husband leveled the revolver at the burglar's head and pulled the trigger. No report followed, and it was afterwards discovered that the revolver, a seven chamber one, was charged with six blank cartridges and that one chamber was empty. The empty chamber was the one which she had tried to fire.

Beaten Insensible With a Cane.

Mr. Ball's attention was diverted from his opponent for a moment by his wife's appearance and the burglar, taking advantage of this, managed to point his hand downward and fired a shot, the ball making a deep gash on the back part of Mr. Ball's head. Three other shots were fired in rapid succession, one passing through the collar of Mr. Ball's coat and shirt, another passing through the fleshy part of his left arm below the elbow and the third lodging in the dining-room door, in which direction he had succeeded in turning the burglar's hand. At this moment Mrs. Ball grasped the revolver and jerked it out of the villain's hand. She then handed her husband a stout cane. He was unable to use it, but getting it away from the burglar, who had grasped it, he threw it to one side. The burglar being now disarmed pretended to have drawn a knife, and was making plunges at Mr. Ball, saying he would stab him, when Mrs. Ball, becoming desperate, seized the stick and belabored the villain on the head till he fell stunned at her feet. It was lucky she did so, for Mr. Ball was almost exhausted from loss of blood, and the man would most likely have escaped.

Mrs. Ball Tied Him Up.

A rope was procured by Mrs. Ball's little daughter, who had come down stairs, and the brave lady proceeded to bind her prisoner hand and foot. By this time help began to arrive, and Mr. Marshall, a butcher, who lived near at hand, stood guard over the captive till the chief of police arrived and took him into custody.

Several witnesses were called for the prosecution, Mr. and Mrs. Ball being among the number. Mr. Ball is a large, athletic looking man and Mrs. Ball is a fair-sized, pleasant looking woman, while the prisoner, John Kelly, is a man of about five feet nine inches, with a small gray evil eye and a hard look, as if he cared for nothing, and was bound to be avenged, no matter on whom, for some supposed wrong.

No witnesses were called for the prisoner, his counsel, Mr. Fletcher, Q.C., preferring to depend on having the only address to the jury. He tried to show the jury that the revolver in the prisoner's hand, a self-cocker, had gone off by accident during the struggle and that no intent to kill was present.

In his charge to the jury the judge spoke in commendable terms of the bravery of Mrs. Ball, and said that the people of Woodstock should be proud to have living among them such a lady.

The jury retired and in about 20 minutes returned with a verdict of guilty of "shooting with intent to kill," and Kelly was at once sentenced to serve a term of 15 years in the Provincial Penitentiary.

He Would Kill to Live.

During the trial it was sworn that the prisoner, while lying bound on the floor, said in answer to an enquiry "that he would not go round to the back door begging for crusts; that he could not work as his right arm was broken; that he was going to steal, and if necessary, kill to get a living." On his person were found some burglar tools, and although little is known of his past it is supposed he was a professional burglar. He had gained an entrance to the house through an upstair window by means of a ladder, which he had carried some distance. When he appeared before Mr. Ball he had on neither hat, coat nor shoes. As he was being led from the court room heavily handcuffed, turning to Mr. Ball he said in a threatening tone: "If the good Lord spares me, Mr. Ball, I will give you another call," to which that gentleman replied "All right."

THE SARNIA COUNTERFEITERS.

Downs and Beatty Committed For Five Years and Daw for Three.

SARNIA, Ont., Sept. 28.—Downs, Beatty and Daw, charged with counterfeiting, were found guilty at the assizes here to-day, Daw getting a recommendation to mercy. Downs and Beatty were given five years and Daw three years in the penitentiary.

A Letter of Thanks.

The workingmen have sent a letter to Mr. Wm. Milligan, thanking him for the very acceptable present of the floral emblems which were carried in the procession on Labor Day. The letter expresses deep appreciation of Mr. Milligan's generosity, and the reception of it gave him more pleasure than a bundle of marked checks.

THE BURIAL OF GILMORE.

The Dead Musician Given a Military Funeral in New York.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—The obsequies of Patrick Sarsfield Gilmore were held this morning and were of the most imposing character. As early as 8 o'clock the home of the dead musician in West Eighty-sixth-street was crowded with weeping friends anxious to have a last look at the face of the dead bandmaster. But the dark casket, literally smothered with flowers, was not opened, and the light from the seven-armed candelabrum fell not upon the still, pallid features, but on banks of fresh roses and blossoming lilies. At 9 o'clock the casket was borne from the house. It was followed by the widow, daughter, mourners, and a few friends. The pallbearers were the non-commissioned officers of the Twenty-second regiment. The honorary pallbearers were members of the clubs of which in life the deceased had been a member. The casket was a plain black one with silver trimmings. It was draped in the Stars and Stripes and upon it lay a floral wreath. The cortege was headed by a platoon of 20 policemen. Then came a band playing the dead march, a firing squad of 16 members of the 22nd regiment in uniform, the pallbearers, press club and other organizations, including the non-commissioned officers of the 22nd regiment in uniform and a long line of carriages. The services were held at St. Francis Xavier's Church, where Father Dewey celebrated solemn requiem mass. Father Perdu delivered the eulogy. A great throng crowded the church and the streets in the vicinity. Only the close friends and the military detail went on to the cemetery.

Fool Jokers Kill a Man.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 28.—T. R. Vincent, an employe in an implement house here, was killed last Saturday by what was supposed to be accidental contact with an electric wire in the house where he was employed. The coroner held an inquest yesterday and found that two other employes attempted to play a practical joke upon the unfortunate man by attaching the electric light wire to a piece of machinery which Vincent handled. When he placed his hand upon the machinery he fell dead from the shock.

The Latest From Chicago.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—A railroad engineer has formulated a novel scheme for the entertainment of World's Fair visitors. He proposes to build a mile track within an amphitheatre, and by procuring disabled engines and cars have a genuine railway collision of two trains going at full speed. To make it realistic he will have the engineer and fireman jump just in time to save their lives. He says he can give a performance for $500.

A Warrant For Mayor McShane.

MONTREAL, Sept. 28.—This morning the Mayor of Montreal, the well-known James McShane, was served with a warrant signed by Judge Tait, threatening to consign His Worship to the common jail for contempt of court in not appearing when summoned as a witness in what is locally known as the Plourde horse case. The City Council by a majority agreed to pay damages to the amount of $650 for injury done to Mr. Plourde's horse in a runaway, due to the neglect of the city. The mayor objected to the payment of such a sum and Plourde sued the city. Mayor McShane has been allowed till Oct. 3 to put in an appearance.

Took a Dose of Arsenic.

ST. THOMAS, Sept. 28.—On Sunday Mr. William Barker, farmer, Yarmouth, east of Sparta, attempted to commit suicide by taking a dose of arsenic. Several causes are given for the attempt, the most charitable of which is that the man is insane. A child, a year and a half old, died a few days ago, and it is thought this may have influenced the act. Barker took enough arsenic to kill three men. Dr. Shannon was summoned and used the stomach pump to good effect. Barker, however, is still in a precarious condition and this morning was unconscious.

Attempted Suicide in Buffalo.

David Kent, who left Lindsay last August to look for work in Buffalo, attempted to commit suicide in that city Monday night by shooting himself in the abdomen. The injury will prove fatal, but the unfortunate man is still alive at the hospital. His brother, Joseph Kent, of Lindsay, is with him. It is alleged that the attempt to suicide was the result of family troubles. Kent is but recently married.

A BOLT OUT OF THE BLUE!

AN AMERICAN DIVINE RAISES THE HERESY CRY.

Startling Statement—Indignant Denial—Sturdy Scotchmen on Their Mettle—Racy Description of an Eventful Day With the Presbyterians—Professors at Loggerheads.

One of the chief duties of a minister is to bring conviction home to offenders' hearts. The Apostle's word is: "In many things we offend all;" and seeing that some of the more illustrious of the divines had on the previous day offended each other and the chairman it was meet that they should twice sing

Behold, how good a thing it is,
And how becoming well,
Together such as brethren are
In unity to dwell.

The fact was, there was more danger of friction and collision yesterday than on any previous day. Skilful pilotage and mutual forbearance happily tided the alliance over the visible rocks, still matters were lively more than once.

A Startling Charge—Scotch Heresy!

There was a genuine sensation late in the evening. It was sprung as a mine upon the meeting. Rev. Dr. McKibben of Cincinnati questioned the loyalty of Scotch Presbyterians to the Divinity of Jesus Christ in His kingly, priestly and prophetic offices. This nearly took the breath away of the orthodox followers of John Knox. The charge was all the worse because of its indefiniteness. In as solemn tones as it was made, "the reckless insinuation" was spurned point-blank by Professor Lindsay of Glasgow. It looked like a rhetorical gladiatorial struggle between America and Scotland, but the chairman would brook no more of it and the blessed peacemaker, Dr. Hall, asked God's forgiveness and enlightenment for each and all. The matter is too important to be hushed up; it will crop up to-day or to-morrow.

The morning session was decorously dull. The ranks of the devout were swelled by an importation from South Africa, who had been detained 18 days in quarantine. He declared himself free from infection but not affection.

Slaying the Slain.

This favorite operation was performed by the alliance commissioning Drs. Rentoul and Paton to wait upon the United States Government and urge its co-operation in restraining the exportation of firearms and liquors to the New Hebrides.

There is a very pretty quarrel anent this matter. Dr. Van Meter publicly challenged the venerable missionary's statement that there was any American opposition whatever. In the morning he vowed he would prove his statement, and in the afternoon triumphantly flourished a telegram from Secretary of State Foster that an agreement to this effect had been entered into by England, France, Germany and the United States as far back as 1884.

'Tis Always the Unexpected.

This was a bolt out of the blue. Up rose Secretary Matthews, incredulous that such a fact of history should have been unknown to the learned divines for eight years. He would have the matter sifted, that he would, and the resolution and the telegram were relegated to a committee for report.

Thus the projected jaunt must be put off, and Dr. Paton must, as one of the delegates colloquially phrased it, "take back water." With pardonable pride the Van Meter struck an attitude and said, "I and the United States are vindicated." I smiled as a recollection of the Three Tailors of Tooley-street flashed o'er memory's surface.

International Arbitration.

As a boy, some few years aback, I used to take part in a mutual improvement debating class. One night we settled it that arbitration was better than war. The alliance did the same yesterday; probably as much good will result from this as from my boyish essay. I know I wound up with the old song, which contains a hint for wiser heads:

If I were King of France,
Or, what's better, Pope of Rome,
I'd have no fighting men abroad,
Nor weeping maids at home,
And if the war should e'er break out
Then this should be the right—
That they who make the quarrels
Should be the only ones to fight.

Non-Committal as to Doctrine.

Principal Caven holds decided views on doctrine, so do his brethren, but as on an epoch-making occasion, "neither did their testimony agree." Hence the wisdom of the alliance yesterday agreeing to differ as to doctrine. "To formulate any definition of doctrine might imperil the position of the council," said Dr. Caven; and nobody said a word in favor of the old Westminster Confession or the emasculated one.

Then Principal MacVicar told gray-headed men who had spent half a century in the ministry, what he conceived to be the Bible character of a minister. He impugned human priesthood, ignoring the passage, "made us priests unto God," and the historic taunt that "priest is but presbyter writ large."

Want No Low Comedy.

Timely were the animadversions of Dr. Oliver of Glasgow on the ministerial functions. Would that some of my esteemed Methodist friends had been present. The Doctor deplored the tomfoolery and low comedy too often imported into the pulpit for the sake of a cheap popularity and the filling of the collection plate.

Dr. Ross Taylor, another Glasgow man, held forth on "The Minister as an Organizer." His matter was good, his style of the best, and probably the handsomest man in the Alliance was the most applauded. Trenchantly he condemned the church for practically doing nothing to stem the rush of iniquity past the church doors. He pleaded for practical methods to give effect to fervent pulpit appeals, whose result was generally evanescent. "It will never do," said he, "to stick with stubborn obstinence to the old ruts."

Modern Higher Criticism.

Professor Moore of Virginia read a scholarly paper on "The Drifts of Theological Thought." Some severe strictures on present-day apologetics were loudly cheered, but mainly by the younger portion of the audience. Here is a specimen: "Some of the defences of the Christian system put forward in the pulpit to-day are anachronisms and are absurd!"

Strenuously he insisted that every age must make its own apology: those of the past are as unsuited as the cross-bow to modern warfare. At length he confuted Darwinianism, but objected to this being done on other than scientific grounds.

The speaker wandered over the whole field of theological thought. He startled some by pointing out that in so-called heathen religions nearly every verity of the Christian is to be found. Hence he argued for the teaching of "the science of religion."

"Too many ministers meet critics with hysterical invective and unreasoning sneers. The day has gone by for these objurgations, which only show egregious weakness."

In an eloquent peroration the doctor showed that Jesus Christ is the only solvent of doubt.

Present Day Philanthropics.

Principal Hutton of Paisley read a thoughtful paper on "The Social, Mental and Philanthropic Activities of the Day," in the course of which he censured Presbyterian apathy to the submerged tenth, socialism, the fallen sisterhood and popular questions. There was moral cowardice in the pulpit in reference to evils in all classes, especially in those well-to-do. The conclusion was: "What the church wants is applied Christianity."

Too Many Village Churches.

President Black of Missouri, as the result of a world-wide correspondence, averred that there is no demand for an increased number of Presbyterian ministers within the church, but there is for an increased number of efficient ministers. [Cheers.]

This was a startling statement, but it was as nothing to what followed: "There are many villages where Presbyterian churches are not wanted. They had better die and leave the field to the Methodists and Baptists, who are doing the work better." [Laughter.] The doctor stuck to his text and showed the waste of power in having three or four churches in one small village, and the breeding of sectarianism. He was candid enough to say that the other denominations were doing better work. He was very outspoken about the average minister. He ought to be every one's servant, to be industrious, sympathetic, and above all to have brains. [Laughter.]

The evil of the illiterate itinerant evangelist he could not find words to express.

Professor Rentoul's Avowal.

In the course of the discussion the chief speaker was the Australian professor. The Darwinian system, he said, had not been broken by theologians, but by the most advanced scientists.

"There is a Christian Higher Criticism," added he with vigor, "which will and ought to hold its ground." The professor was elaborating this when the chairman rang him down.

Up jumped the volatile D. J. Macdonnell, who moved that the professor have 10 minutes' grace. More time had been given to inferior speakers.

The audience insisted on the boon, which the chairman was not disposed to give. Then in choice words Dr. Rentoul paid a tribute to Mr. Macdonnell's Christian courtesy, and then justified Higher Criticism and cared nothing for its effect so long as Christ remained the central truth.

Principal Grant's Declaration.

The learned Principal of Queen's University boldly declared, whatever others might be, he was not afraid of Higher Criticism. "This is a legitimate branch of learning against which it is as wise to butt as against a railway train."

"The Church of Christ is not afraid of any learning or criticism. (Cheers.) I object to it going forth that we are afraid of Higher Criticism."

"Why play to the gallery and condemn men because they are trying to spell out the truth of God? Jesus Christ is our foundation. With Luther I hold it does not matter who wrote the Pentateuch. I am not tied to Rabbinism."

A Religious Medley.

The great crowd at night had a program after their own heart. Dr. Cochrane of Brantford revelled in Sunday school statistics, and amidst profuse praise condemned the use of lesson helps, which was warping the spirituality of the teachers and causing a disuse of the Bible, the sale of which to Sunday schools had fallen off.

Dr. R. S. Drummond of Glasgow gave an earnest address on "Home Religion and the Inner Life of the Church;" Dr. Wilson of Wooster, Ohio, treated of aggressive spiritual work. Some plain truths were told, i. e., "There are five times as many churches as are necessary at home whilst millions of heathen are neglected."

He Splits Their Tympanums.

Strength of lungs made up for strength of argument with Mr. Wilson, and some most extravagant things were said about the immediate surrender of the devil. "Stagnation is damnation;" "There must be less barefaced robbery on the part of the church and its agencies." The latter sentence he explained by the statement that Protestant Christians only contribute one cent a year for each one unconverted. "Verily, Paul's old enemy, Alexander the Coppersmith, still does the church much harm." "Would to God our people had less money or more grace to use it rightly!" The whole speech was bawled out as though delivered for the sake of the crowds outside.

Prostituted From Its Proper Work.

Dr. John Dixon of Trenton, N.J., spoke on the same subject. Boldly he said: "We turn the church into a club and have the specifics of moral quacks instead of the gospel. Woe worth the day when the old gospel is not preached, but the fancies of the preacher!" The address was certainly tinged with Plymouth Brethrenism. The gospel, he claimed, was the only practical and permanent remedy for the ills of life.

An Unexpected Tribute to Gladstone.

Rev. Dr. McKibben of Ohio was allowed to make some comments on the afternoon's papers on Higher Criticism. He said with vigor that Protestantism is battling for its life to-day in a battle which has never been surpassed save by the Reformation itself. The large attainments of the linguist does not ipso facto make a sound historic critic.

Continuing, the doctor added, "I say without fear of contradiction that William Ewart Gladstone is a better judge of the forces which in the past have made history than any man whose knowledge is simply confined to history in books. [Cheers.] When the foremost statesman of the English race places his foot on the impregnable rock of Holy Scripture, smaller men can stand there with imperturbability. [Renewed cheers.]

The Citadel is Being Attacked.

"All collisions between the church and modern science, while they prove the inaccuracy of the church have proved the accuracy of the record. [Loud applause.] The question to-day is not one of interpretation. The citadel which is being attacked is the person of Jesus Christ. The issue is sharp to-day. Did the Son of God not know enough that He misled his disciples about the Old Testament Scriptures? My Master's word against the world!" [Cheers.]

An Impressive Moment.

This last sentence was said in loud deliberative tones, the speaker quivering with emotion and tears filling his eyes. The people hung on his lips. A revelation was looked for—and it came:

"The church has had two great battles: first, for the Kingship of Jesus Christ; then for His priestly office. Scotland, the mother of us all, fought the battle and she won it—[cheers]—and placed the crown upon the true King, rejecting all hierarchies."

Scotland Charged With Disloyalty to Christ.

This was the climax: "Is it true that Scotland now falters with regard to the prophetical office of Jesus Christ?" [Cries from the Scotch delegates, "No, no."]

Up sprang Professor Lindsay and Principal Grant. The former advanced to the platform, but the chairman said the time had expired. Whereupon Principal Grant and Rev. D. J. Macdonnell moved that this eminent representative of Scotch theology be heard in reply. Loud shouts of "Agreed" came from all parts of the house.

Professor Lindsay's Stern Repudiation.

In calm, measured tones, with a voice full of pathos, the eminent divine said: "I do not believe, as a Scotch minister and as a Scotch professor, that Scotland is at all standing, or about to stand, in the position Dr. McKibben seems to think we are.

"I feel wounded to the heart at his speaking about Scotland in the somewhat reckless manner he did. Our Scotch members believe heart and soul—ministers, members, students and even slandered professors—in the divinity of Our Lord Jesus Christ, in his kingly, priestly, aye, and in His prophetic office. [Cheers.]

"I really must protest against the insinuations which have been made, the reckless assertions, that Scotland is in any part of it departing from her ancient faith." [Renewed cheering, during which the Professor resumed his seat.]

At this juncture both American and Scotch divines sprang to their feet, but the chairman ruled anything further out of order and called on Dr. John Hall of New York to offer prayer.

This he did in most pathetic terms, praying for forgiveness for bitter feelings and hasty words, and for the charity of the Master which hopeth and believeth the best. The benediction terminated a scene that will be memorable. EBOR.

Thought to Have Been Murdered.

NIAGARA FALLS, Sept. 28.—The coroner's inquest over the body of J. McQuillan, a tunnel employe, which was recovered from the hydraulic canal here last Thursday, leads to the belief that the man was murdered. McQuillan was supposed to have been drowned, but witnesses swore to hearing cries for help coming from the vicinity. They tried to locate them at the time, but failed. Further testimony revealed the fact that McQuillan had considerable money, and he had been seen in company with a man of desperate character. The man disappeared to-day.

Off Their Reservation.

BUTLER, Mont., Sept. 28.—A lodge of Cree Indians from the British possessions are encamped at Silver Bow, six miles from here. They have terrorized the ranchers and have been running stock off the ranges. Saturday night during a drunken brawl three Indians pounced upon one of their companions and beat him to death with clubs. The body was hidden in a gully. The sheriff learned of the affair and captured the Indians who did the killing and two witnesses. The reds have been growing bolder lately, daily committing petty depredations, taking stock and monopolizing ranges for their own purposes, and trouble is feared.

His Disappearance Explained.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Henry O. Asten, who escaped from a retreat for insane persons at Bronxville, Sept. 20, was cleared up yesterday by the discovery that he was killed late last night by an express train of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad.

Fire in the Singer Factory.

ELIZABETHPORT, N.J., Sept. 28.—Fire to-day damaged the Singer machine factory to the extent of $65,000 worth. The flames communicated to a round house and three locomotives and several freight and coal cars belonging to the Jersey Central Road were destroyed.

Another "Shortest" Route.

"The shortest route between St. Paul and New York," said a railway man yesterday, "is by way of the Soo to Sudbury, then by the Grand Trunk to Toronto, by steamer to Rochester and then by flying express from the latter city to New York. But in order to make the best time by this route there ought to be a new and fast steamer between Toronto and Rochester capable of doing the distance in five hours. Next season you may look out for such a boat being on this route."

Sudden Death.

ISAAC BUTT'S HOME RULE

IS THE SCHEME WHICH SUITS THE PARNELLITES.

It Does Not, Mr. Redmond Points Out, Exclude Irish Representatives From the Imperial Parliament, as Mr. Gladstone's Scheme is Believed to Do, and for That Reason is Preferable.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—In an article published to-day Mr. Redmond approves the Home Rule program of Isaac Butt. Mr. Redmond declares that the Parnellites are willing to accept a statutory parliament with an executive responsible to it, leaving untouched the supremacy of the Imperial Parliament on purely Imperial questions on which alone Irish members shall have the right to sit and vote at Westminster. The Irish Legislature, he says, must control the judiciary, police and land. These points he pronounces vital and declares they cannot be compromised. He believes it would be better for Ireland to wait another generation than accept a scheme not granting these demands.

Nationalist Magistrate.

DUBLIN, Sept. 28.—The Irish Lord Chancellor has appointed six new magistrates for the city of Cork, all of whom are McCarthyites. Until Mr. Morley's appointment as Chief Secretary for Ireland the magistrates of Ireland, with scarcely an exception, were Tories.

The corporation of the city of Belfast has decided to present an address to Lord Houghton, the new Viceroy of Ireland, upon his arrival in Dublin. This is in strong contrast to the action of the authorities of Dublin, who refuse to present him with an address. The only reason for their refusal is that they are Parnellites.

A DARK CLOUD ON THE HORIZON.

The Seizure of English Sealing Vessels May Cause Trouble.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—Regarding the despatch of a British cruiser to Alaskan waters it appears that the officials here objected to the form of Reuter's statement from Ottawa, which led to comments in the English papers indicating possible trouble with Russia. Lord Rosebery already possesses full information from the British side respecting the seizures and is now awaiting Russia's version.

Meanwhile the cruiser goes to relieve the sealers, who, it is feared, are destitute though released on the Siberian shores.

Sealers Liable to Prosecution.

OTTAWA, Sept. 28.—The Minister of Justice is said to be of opinion that those Canadian sealers who have taken seals in Behring Sea this year and escaped the cruisers are still liable to prosecution for violation of the proclamation prohibiting the catching of seals in that sea this year. Should action be taken against these sealers it will be particularly hard on the vessels which left early in the season before the modus vivendi was renewed, and when it was pretty generally supposed that it would not be renewed.

More Seizures.

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash., Sept. 28.—The schooner George R. White of Laconner, which arrived from Copper Island last evening, spoke the schooners Walter Earl of Victoria and May Belle of Victoria off the Russian coast. They reported that the Russians had seized four British and two American sealers.

The sealing schooner Geneva of Victoria when off Copper Island lost a boat and three men.

SENT TO PRISON FOR A YEAR.

The Result of a Horse-Stealing and Kidnapping Case.

WOODSTOCK, Sept. 28.—Thomas Churchill and his wife were arraigned at the assizes to-day on a charge of stealing a horse from Joseph Adair and kid-napping two of Adair's children. The couple are about the toughest specimens seen in a Canadian court of justice. Churchill claims Flint, Mich., as his home. He came over here a few weeks ago on a visit to friends and stopped for a week with Joseph Adair of South Norwich. One day during his absence in the cornfield Churchill and his wife stole his horse and buggy and drove off. To avoid the possibility of anyone remaining behind to tell tales about his doings Churchill kidnapped Adair's two children. The constables started in pursuit and after several days' search overtook the runaways at a place bearing the ghastly name of Rattlesnake Hollow. Elizabeth Churchill, who is a victim of paralysis, was acquitted, while her husband was given a year in the Central Prison. Constable Fish of Otterville, therefore, is entitled to the $100 reward offered by the county for the capture of the horse thief. A. S. Ball defended the prisoners, F R. Ball prosecuting.

SOUND ON THE MONEY QUESTION.

The London Times' Opinion of Mr. Cleveland's Letter.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—The Times says: "Mr. Cleveland's manifesto has a less confident ring than President Harrison's on the tariff question. He is too evidently afraid to assert his policy with equal courage and clearness. His language is not easily reconciled with the broad principles laid down at Chicago. Doubtless his contempt for the alarms of the protectionists is fully justified, but, if he is right, why should free trade be treated as a bogy? There is no uncertain sound, however, in his utterances on the currency question."

The Standard thinks the attempt to find a middle course in the tariff question will seriously hamper Cleveland. "The hesitant obscurity of his language," The Standard adds, "shows his difficulty in expounding his own policy. Harrison has the advantage of a sweeping confidence that will appeal forcibly to national prejudice and passion. On the currency question there is little to choose between the two candidates."

PRINCE GEORGE'S CHOICE.

Princess Alix of Hesse Likely to Be His Bride.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—The announcement that Prince George would marry Princess Marie of Teck, the late Duke of Clarence's fiancee, appears to have been prematura. When approached by his grandmother, the Queen, on the subject he said:

"You would not have me marry a lady I do not love. I will select a wife for myself."

The Prince has been paying marked attention to Princess Alix, daughter of Ludwig IV., Grand Duke of Hesse. She is beautiful, of the highest attainments and 21 years of age. Her only drawback is that the Prince and Princess are first cousins, but this will make no difference. The Prince and Princess of Wales have given their consent, and it will undoubtedly be a match.

THE TRANS-INDUS CAMPAIGN.

The British-Indo Force Sets Out From Allahabad.

SIMLA, Sept. 28.—The force under command of Col. Sir W. Lockhart started on its trans-Indus campaign to-day from Allahabad preceded by a corps of sappers, who will make a road for the expedition through the Susal pass. The ostensible object of the expedition is to restore peace among the Black Mountain tribes. The British have had frequent trouble with these tribesmen, and they have refused to surrender to the British the fomenter of the trouble, a chief named Hashim Ali, though they agreed to do so. Some of the Indian newspapers have urged the Government to put an end to the constant irritation by annexing the district. Colonel Lockhart's force consists of 5000 mixed British and Indian troops.

TO ESCAPE VATICAN INFLUENCE.

The Society of Jesus Meets for the First Time Out of Rome.

MADRID, Sept. 28.—The monastery at Azpeitia, in the Province of Guipuzcoa, near which Ignatius Loyola, founder of the Society of Jesus, was born, is the scene to-day of a great meeting of members of that order. Provincials of the society from all parts of the world have assembled to elect a successor to the late Father Anderledy, the general of the Jesuits. This is the first time since the founding of the society in 1534 that the election of a general, who holds office for life, has been held outside of Rome. The venue of the occasion was changed in order to escape the influence of the Vatican.

Among the American delegates to the meeting were: Rev. B. Villiger of Philadelphia, who is prominently mentioned in connection with the office of general; Thomas Campbell, provincial of the Maryland and New York province; Very Rev. John P. Fridman, provincial of the Missouri province; Rev. P. Healy of Providence, Rev. E. J. Piggins of Chicago and Rev. R. T. Meyer of Milwaukee.

Objection to a Roman Catholic Mayor.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—The proposed selection of Stewart Knill, who is next in rotation as Lord Mayor of London, has aroused considerable opposition, in view of the fact that Knill is a Roman Catholic. In response to enquiries made of him by Lord Mayor Evans, Mr. Knill has written a letter in which he says that in the event of his selection as Lord Mayor he would have an Anglican chaplain to perform public duties, while his private chaplain would be a Catholic.

Found Dead on the Beach.

ST. THOMAS, Sept. 28.—This morning a young man named Parker discovered the body of an elderly man lying on the beach opposite the summer residence of D. E. Broderick, Port Stanley. The remains were conveyed to the Batt House sheds and identified as those of a man who had been boarding at Mrs. Taylor's hotel. He had not given his name, coming in on Saturday and leaving on Saturday morning after paying his bill. He appeared to be about 70 years of age. It is supposed that possibly he is the man named Potter, an elderly man, a retired farmer, who disappeared from London last week. Dr. Gustin, coroner, will hold an inquest this afternoon.

SHOT DOWN THE INVADER.

AN EGLINTON MAN "PINKED" BY AN IRATE SON.

Storming a House At Midnight and Its Outcome—William Jones In the Hospital and the Man Who Shot Him In Custody—What Was the Cause of the Shooting?

William Jones, a wholesale butcher of Eglinton, lies at the General Hospital with the calf of his right leg filled with shot.

The circumstances giving rise to the shooting are peculiar and the motive somewhat shrouded in mystery.

William Jones, a butcher, Tuesday night visited the house of George Britton in Sherwood-avenue and demanded admittance. When refused he fired several stones through the windows. Herbert Britton, a son of the occupant, remonstrated with him and asked him to go away, but he refused. Britton then took a double barreled shot gun and fired a shot over Jones' head to scare him away. The only effect was to enrage the man, who fired more stones through the windows and threatened to break the door in.

His Aim Was Good.

Then Britton fired another shot, but this time it was meant for the invader, and took effect in one of his legs. Thirty-one No. 4 shot were distributed between his knee and ankle. Then his attack ceased, and when taken home by Messrs. Dunnett and McClelland, Drs. Jackes and Richardson ordered his removal to the General Hospital.

Britton's Father in Buffalo.

Young Britton surrendered himself at daylight yesterday morning and was promptly admitted to bail by Justice Jackes.

The doctors at the hospital are of the opinion that if the man escapes with nothing worse than the loss of his leg he will be doing very well. His injuries are of a very serious nature.

Jones was brought to the hospital at 6 o'clock last night in a buggy by his wife.

Mrs. Jones' Version.

To The World Mrs. Jones gave this version of the affray: "My husband is a wholesale butcher, and on Tuesday visited the city. It was about 11.30 o'clock when he reached Eglinton. He was passing along the street, when he met young Herbert Britton, who lives with his mother at Eglinton, and young Britton shot him. I do not know what motive Britton had in shooting my husband unless it was spite.

"What could he have had spite against your husband for, was there a woman in the case?" queried the reporter.

Spite, She Said, Was the Motive.

"I am sure there was no woman in the case, and as for spite I suppose it was because of some gossip going around. But I am sure there was no scandal."

Mrs. Jones states that the arrest of Britton was not brought about by her or her husband. "My husband," she continued, "did not think it necessary to take any proceedings until he got better."

IT MAY BE SMALLPOX.

Suspicious Cases in the Hospital—All Precautions Taken.

Two attendants of the General Hospital have developed a rash which some of the doctors fear may be smallpox. The cases were reported to Dr. Allen, who visited the hospital and saw that the patients were properly isolated and every precaution taken for preventing the spread of the disease should it prove to be smallpox. Several consultations were held yesterday, but the cases were in such an early stage that it could not be determined whether the malady was the much-dreaded smallpox or the more innocent chicken-pox. In any case all precautions have been taken, and should it become necessary on development of the two suspected cases they will be removed, all arrangements having been made by Dr. Allen.

Is He in Toronto?

The police have been notified to be on the lookout for a young Englishman who is wanted at Oakville for theft.

Yesterday Skinner & Trafford of Sheridan sent their hired man to Oakville with two loads of barley. He carried a letter from his employers authorizing the dealer to pay him for the grain. At midnight the horses were found in a hotel shed. The man purchased a valise and was last seen boarding the 6.35 train for Toronto.

A Valuable Corner.
