

A Strong Rival of "Bonnie Brier Bush" from a Canadian Pen.

Etchings From a Parsonage Veranda

BY MRS. E. JEFFERS GRAHAM.

With Illustrations by J. W. BURGESS.

Cloth, - - - $1.00.

CONTENTS: The Parsonage—Solomon Wiseacre—Two Women—Marion Fuller—Jacob Whinely—Carlo—A Pensioner—Mrs. Taffety—The Knigh and the Dove—A Cross—Under a Cloud—Joy in the Morning—A Supply—Only a Child—Miss Primperty—A Temperance Meeting—A Dinner Party—An Revoir—Parting.

Into every Methodist parsonage wherever Methodism exists, this charming book of Mrs. Graham's should find a glad welcome. Scarcely less warm should be its welcome into other homes and of other denominations. The humor and pathos of the sketches will win their way into every heart. Their literary beauty will commend them to the most cultured reader.

WHAT IS SAID OF IT.

A lady of culture and wide reading declares these sketches as good as those of Ian MacLaren's famous "Bonnie Brier Bush." Another lady expresses the opinion that the characters are quite as well drawn as those of Crockett's "Stickit Minister."

New Revised Edition

"It is just the right sort of book for a prize or present, and should find a place in every Band of Hope and Sunday-school library."
—The Abstinence Advocate.

"This, as its name implies, is a temperance story, and is told in the lamented author's most graphic style. We have never read anything so powerful since 'Danesbury House,' and this book in stern and pathetic earnestness even excels that widely-known book. It is worthy a place in every Sunday-school and village library; and, as the latest utterances of one whose writings are so deservedly popular, it is sure of a welcome. It should give decision to some whose views about Local Option are hazy."—Joyful News.

New Book by the Author of "By Canoe and Dog-Train," etc.

OOWIKAPUN;

OR,

How the Gospel Reached the Nelson River Indians.

BY

REV. EGERTON RYERSON YOUNG,

Author of "By Canoe and Dog-Train,"

"Stories from Indian Wigwams and Northern Camp-fires," etc.

Cloth, Illustrated, - - - $1.00.

It is doubtful if the books of any Canadian writer have had so wide a sale as those of Mr. Young. Nearly, if not quite, 60,000 copies of his "By Canoe and Dog-Train" have been sold; and his later book, "Stories from Indian Wigwams and Northern Camp-fires," has taken fully as well. This new book is a story that will interest old and young. Our Sunday-schools should lose no time in getting it into their libraries. It is a handsomely bound, clearly printed volume, containing eighteen splendid full-page engravings.
