CURRENT TRADE CONDITIONS. ONTARIO.

The situation in respect to white pine is becoming an interesting one. This week we chronicle an advance in the Ottawa quotations for several of the common grades, with more liberal buying than has been reported for some time. The hesitation of buyers which was in evidence in early January has given place to a strong desire to contract for stock at late quotations, but in some instances manufacturers are putting out new lists showing a substantial advance. The recent mild weather is responsible in part for the higher values. In certain logging districts the snow has almost entirely disappeared and efforts to get logs out of the woods have been abandoned, temporarily at least. Should these conditions continue for any length of time the result will be serious to lumbermen, most of whom have many logs yet to haul to the streams. Much higher prices for the season's cut of lumber may be expected in case there should be a shortage in the log input.

Many buyers are in the market for mill cuts. Some have conceded the demands of the manufacturers and closed contracts at $20 for log run. Others are still negotiating in the hope of making a better bargain. The price of log run, however, has become quite firmly established at $20 for logs averaging ten to the thousand feet and $22 for an average of eight to the thousand. The latter figure is by no means the maximum, as we are advised of the sale of an entire season's cut of log run at $30 f.o.b. rail of vessel Georgian Bay point. The particulars have not been learned, but it is safe to assume that the logs are exceptionally large and of excellent quality.

Hardwood lumber continues in great demand. There is very little harrering over price, the buyer usually being willing to accept the manufacturer's quotation whenever he finds suitable stock. The tendency of prices is upwards.

QUEBEC AND NEW BRUNSWICK.

There is practically no change in spruce lumber, which continues firm, with some manufacturers holding out for an advance in price. The cedar shingle market is still somewhat depressed. Some sales of extras have been made for Boston delivery as low as $3.35, with other grades in proportion. The current price, however, might be given as $3.40, at which figure the large manufacturers are endeavoring to hold the market. Opinions differ as to the future course of prices. Some dealers contend that the bottom has been reached for the present, while others hold the
