acter of the surrounding country and of the fact that the seismometer in Toronto Observatory registered some very distinct tremors only a few hours before, or whether a volcanic eruption has taken place in a district which geologists say was in ages long past subject to such phenomena, or, whether, as perhaps seems most probable of all to people who know well the locality, there was a gigantic landslide due perhaps to the method of mining pursued there, and to an explosion of long imprisoned gas, are all subjects which may be cleared up when experts shall have reached the scene and made close examination.
