In Black's Literary Readers, numbers 3 and 4, the special feature is an attempt to show how Britain came by her world-wide Empire. In the fourth book British North America is treated of, its history given in outline, and the manner in which it came under the Union Jack is described. (Cloth, pages 202, price 1s. 6d. Adam and Charles Black, Soho Square, London, W.)

In "Heath's English Classics" series we have three new issues: Lamb's Essays, Ruskin's Sesame and Lilies, and Goldsmith's and Gray's popular poems. They are attractive books, neatly printed, thoroughly made, and with portraits of the authors. Each has, in addition to the usual introduction and notes, questions and suggestions that more particularly direct the student to a full understanding and appreciation of the literature. They are carefully edited by competent scholars.

The Ruskin volume contains not only Of Kings' Treasures and Of Queens' Gardens, but the third essay also—

The Mystery of Life and Its Arts. Ruskin's Preface of 1871 is printed in full. (Cloth, pages 213, price 35 cents).

In Lamb's Essays, nineteen from the first series and thirteen from the second series, choosing those that show the range and diversity of Lamb's genius, have been selected. An excellent device is the explanatory index, in which explanation of the text is entered alphabetically by subjects instead of by line references grouped by essays. (Cloth, pages 340, price 40 cents).

Goldsmith's Traveller and Deserted Village and Gray's Elegy in a Country Churchyard make a pleasing little volume. (Cloth, 112 pages, price 25 cents), which, like the other volumes of this series, is provided with interesting biographical data.

Farnsworth's Education Through Music is a valuable text for instruction in the art of music teaching. Beginning with the kindergarten, the work for each school year is logically and systematically presented as to problems,
