

any) of the Toronto Street Railway Company, to run cars on the Lord's day if and when sanctioned by the vote of the electors, but the proviso was not to confer on the Toronto Street Railway Company any right to run cars on the Lord's day which it had not then possessed (if any) if sanctioned by such vote.

By Chapter 62, Ontario Statutes, 1896, the General Act was amended so as to make it apply to farmers, it having been held that the words of the Act did not cover them.