Green Bugs and Hessian Fly Given Usual Spring Revival.

CHICAGO, April 2 .-- Green bugs in Oldahoma and Hessian fly elsewhere had a scarecrow effect today on short sellers market closed firm at 1/4c to 1/4c net advance. There was a gain, too, in all other speculative articles-corn, 4c to %c; oats, %c to 4c, and provisions 5c

Altho none of the advices in regard to insect pests in the fields asserted any existing damage, and nothwithstanding that a majority of experts were disposed to make light of such news, most of the wheat shorts would take no chances. It was evident the market had been somewhat oversold, and that for the time being at least the prudent course was to cover. Samples of Oklahoma wheat, said to Samples of Oklahoma wheat, said to contain true specimens of green bug, were exhibited to traders here, but were not so certified by any entomologist. The extent of the injury from Hessian fly was declared by good authority to depend on April weather, when the brood is developed. Last spring cold, ratny weather acted as a check, and therefore damage predictions were unrealized.

Little Change in Corn.

Corn prices were nervous tho within a comparatively narrow range. The late strength in wheat brought about considerable buying. Reports in regard to domestic cash business were contradictory, and so also were tidings relative to Argentine shipments.

Oats had some independent strength because of continued seeding delays from wet weather.

Smaller receipts of hogs than expected here and in the west made the provision market bulge; Signs pointed to only 108,000 hogs arriving in Chicago this week, as against 178,000 for the corresponding week a year ago.
