"AS A MAN SOWS."

BY HELEN WALLACE Author of "THE GREATEST OF THESE," "THEIR HEARTS' DESIRE, ETC."

The sunlight was streaming in through the long, unshaded windows, making square patches of brightness on the walls, once painted drab perhaps, but now a neutral dust color, and bare save for several arid-looking maps. It touched here and there, the rows of little figures seated at the foot, the rows of dark stuff frocks and quaint bibbed bolton pinafores, while the boys, stolidly enduring the discomfort of their broad, stiffly starched Sunday collars, although—and this was the head and front of the grievance—this was not Sunday, but the opening day of the great endowed school at Dumfries—the Murray Mortification, as it was called, from that quaint term in Scots law for money set aside for charitable purposes, and which must surely have had its rise in the feelings of incensed and disappointed relatives.

Perhaps it was this which added to the strange sense of oppression of which Isabel was conscious, for endurance was by no means confined to the desks and the low benches. His Grace, who was at the present dealing out excellent advice and well-worn platitudes, was at no time an unyielding speaker, and he drew many "growlers" up in a generation in the gift of speaking to children given. As he dropped on, and the children stared blank and reluctant, and the gentry on the platform, in spite of the divinity that doth hedge a duke, fidgeted, yawned and glanced furtively at watch-bowls, Isabel's eyes riveted at watch-bowls, Isabel's eyes riveted at watch-bowls, Isabel's eyes riveted at watch-bowls.

"Have I ever been here before? Did anything ever happen here?" she asked her mother in a strained whisper, which reached other ears beside those for which it was intended, notably Evelyn Ashe's seated close behind.

"Yes, dear, you have been often here with me," said Lady Stormont, looking uneasily at her. Her face was no longer merely pale, but white as her gown, while bluish shadows showed under her dilated eyes. "It is very hot, certainly," dilated eyes.

"What a creepy idea," said Isabel. "I shouldn't like to believe it. I know I find one former self," with a laugh, "quite enough."

THE NEW WINGED SAILOR. The very broad brimmed fashionable straw sailor of the late summer with trimmings of huge wings is duplicated in the early fall showing in soft French felt bound around the edge with ribbon in self color, or finished with a stitched welt edge. The dark felt is more often trimmed with light colored than dark wings, and a very attractive combination is that of white and the same color as the hat which the wings adorn. The wings are

When they reached the other goods boys were being exchanged—the group was dispersing.

"Perhaps he would think that a reason why he might be absolved for once," she said, smiling. "He had to go to Eddles, and I am sure he would have returned this morning, but he must have been detained, and at last we had to come away without him. However, I may safely tell him that his presence wasn't really required. It will be a consolation to him for not having been able to keep his word. I tell him he makes a sort of fetch of it."

Mother Problems

Every mother knows that the happiness or misery, the success or failure of her children largely depends upon their physical strength.

Ability to study, and the equipment for the battle of life must be founded on a firm health basis. If boys and girls are weak, bloodless, easily tired, what chance have they in the strenuous struggle for advancement or place?

About Human Nature

"My friends," began Uncle Timothy as he stood up in meeting and gracefully leaped on the handle of his closed umbrella.

"De student of anatomy carves up a carver to discover how de bones am put together—what' de muscles lie—how' de vital organs be livin' 'stead of de dead—de mind 'stead of de body. 'De human mind am full of co'sn. Tread on one of 'em and dar am a back-ax-hun at once. If I should want a five-dollar bill airly Monday mornin', I should slip ober and ax Deacon Jackson fur it. His big co'sn am de belief dat no one kin be saved unless he am baptized frew de ice in de ribbon, and I have been keepful to gib me his only Sunday shirt and dip me in de rain-bar'."

"What's the latest train on the Swamp-hurs road?" asked Ottman.

COMET, 14 WHALES AND A WATERSPOUT

Passengers on Steamer Brooklyn Didn't Have One Dull Moment on the Trip from Porto Rico.

(New York Herald, Aug. 12.) According to passengers who arrived yesterday on the steamship Brooklyn of the Inular line, from Puerto Rico, Captain McLean so arranged the ocean programme that there was hardly a dull moment during the voyage. On the second day out, when eight hundred miles north of the island, a school of fourteen whales was sighted and for two hours they departed themselves in full view.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart, or The Kidneys. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean stomach weakness, always. And the Heart and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken those nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its name. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample and free Book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by all druggists.

LONG CANOE TRIP

Harry A. Watson, of Montreal, once agent of the Allan line steamers at this port, with his friend, J. E. Julian, also of Montreal, arrived in this city on Tuesday last. They made a canoe trip on Lake Temiscouata and the Madawaska into the St. John river at Edmundston, then down to the Grand Falls, thence to Woodstock, down to Fredericton, then to St. John.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT. Ottman—Aren't the mosquitoes pretty thick? Landlord Soakem—No, rather thin I should say, but they'll fatten up some when we get a few more boarders, I guess.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constituting a new system of circulation. An inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube, when it impedes the hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

ADVICE TO GOLFERS. Our caddie lost all the balls at the picnic the other day, and only for an inspiration we should have had no game of golf.

INTENSIFIED FRUIT JUICES AN IMPROVEMENT ON NATURE

A Discovery that is Revolutionizing Medicine. Remarkable Success Attends the Finding of a New Medicinal Compound by Combining the Juices of Apples, Oranges, Figs and Prunes.

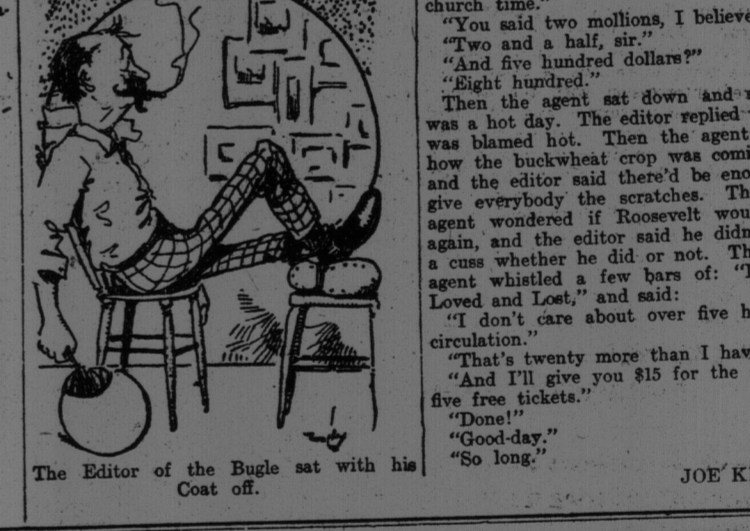

Fruit helps to keep one healthy. Fruit, in itself, will not cure disease. The medicinal principle—or that part of fruit which has a curative effect—is in such infinitesimal quantities, that it is unable to overcome a diseased condition of the stomach, liver, bowels, kidneys or skin. Just here is where science stepped in. An Ottawa physician did what nature could not do. He first found that some fruits were stronger medicinally than others—and that apples, oranges, figs and prunes contained all the healing properties of other fruits. There are two principles in fruit juices—bitter and sweet. After extracting the juices of the four fruits mentioned, this physician succeeded in replacing one atom of the sweet principle by one of the bitter. This resulted in an entirely new combination being formed. This new compound was many times more

The Question of Ownership

"Who is that?" "It is the President of the Tobacco Trust." "But this is a small, retiring man. I thought the Tobacco King was a large, pompous individual, who owned the United States and simply rented a few acres of land to the rest of us." "That was six months ago, but now the Uncle Sam has camped on his trail he begins to doubt if he even owns Rhode Island." "And who may the next man be—the one with such a puzzled look on his face?" "Oh, that's the head of the Standard Oil Trust, with forty other trusts attached. Up to a few months ago he had Europe and America in his pocket. Uncle Sam has taken a twist at him and he's wondering what has dropped when Chicago gets through with him he'll be in a condition to say 'Please, sir.'" "And the third man—the one looking

Always on Hand

"How much for a half-page ad, mostly cuts?" "Five hundred in cash and twenty free tickets." "Got any circulation in China and Japan?" "A quarter of a million." "How do you get off such a tremendous circulation on your old Washington hand press?" "By working Sundays, before and after church times." "You said two millions, I believe?" "Two and a half, sir." "And five hundred dollars?" "That's what I set down and said it was a hot day. The editor replied that it was a hot day, then the agent asked how the buck-wheat crop was coming on, and the editor said there'd be enough to give everybody the scratches. Then the agent wondered if Roosevelt would run again, and the editor said he didn't care a cuss whether he did or not. Then the agent whistled a few bars of 'I Have Loved and Lost,' and said: 'I don't care about over five hundred circulation.' 'That's twenty more than I have got.' 'And I'll give you $15 for the ad and five free tickets.' 'Done!' 'Good-day.' 'So long.'"

WHERE DOES THE PAPER GO?

The first question asked by a general advertiser. The Telegraph and Times reach that class of people who subscribe and agree to pay for the reading privilege. These papers go first hand from the publishers by carrier and not through street boys to be left in office or store by purchaser after reading. Common sense teaches that every paper passed into homes direct will be read. The Telegraph and Times are home papers. Do they contain your advertisement?
