BOOMING A CITY

The city as an advertiser is now a recognized feature in publicity. In the last issue of the Saturday Evening Post two southern cities have each a page of space, setting forth in the most attractive manner, their claims upon the investor who is seeking a site for an industrial or general business enterprise. The cities are Houston, Texas, which has made a great success of commission government, and Memphis, Tennessee.

The Houston advertisement is issued by the Chamber of Commerce, and that of Memphis by the Business Men's Club. One of the great facts upon which emphasis is laid by the Houston business men is its position with relation to transportation. Many railways have terminals at Houston, which is connected by a ship channel with the Gulf of Mexico. "This," says the advertisement, "means cheap transportation rates to all points of the world." It is also pointed out that truck gardens and farms in the suburbs are profitable, and land increasing in value.

Then follows an enumeration of such new industries as the city would encourage and support. The Memphis advertisement announces that the slogan of the Business Men's Club is "Bring the World to Memphis," and that the club has a membership of 1800 business men, who have a $250,000 club house. When it was decided last winter to raise $50,000 for a publicity fund, not only did the 1800 subscribe, but over a thousand other citizens. Memphis also has a commission form of government. It is a great cotton market, and a centre of hardwood production, with many railways and the Mississippi River as means of transportation. The advertisement enumerates the favored lines of business and also notes the opportunities for market gardening and intensive farming of all kinds.

Then the reader is informed that if after correspondence the Business Men's Club is satisfied that he is prepared to establish a substantial business and make it a success he can get free transportation to the city. He is also offered a free subscription to a little magazine telling about Memphis and the south as they are today. These two illustrations will serve to show St. John people what the new spirit of enterprise and progress is doing in the southern states. We know what the west is doing, both the western states and western Canada. The east also must enter the lists and advertise its wares. St. John will have a fine opportunity just as soon as the large projects now in the formative stage have begun to take shape and the work of actual construction has begun. This city has the advantages of transportation and a location on the main line of a great imperial trade route. It has exceptional facilities for gathering raw materials and shipping finished products. It has climatic advantages, an intelligent class of work-people, a good educational system and many other claims to consideration. We are reminded today that it has at its doors great areas for fruit culture as well as general and intensive farming. The world must be apprised of these facts, in a definite and systematic manner.

It is true we have not yet adopted the commission form of government, but something of the sort is coming, as well as a better system of assessment. The people are awakening to the fact that before we can expect people to regard St. John with special favor we must get rid of some of the crudities of former government and make even the outward appearance of the city reflect the new spirit of progress. The coming winter should be marked by a general and very serious consideration of these matters.

THE APPLE SHOW

The New Brunswick Fruit Growers' Association may well be proud of the display in St. Andrew's Rink. At no previous exhibition has there been so varied and complete a display of the fruit-growing possibilities of the province. Year after year the Association has labored to encourage fruit culture, and each year a larger number of people have become convinced that orchards will flourish as well in New Brunswick as in Nova Scotia. All who visit St. Andrew's Rink will come away with the conviction that a right development of the orchard lands of the province will add greatly to its wealth. The best authorities agree that apple trees from New Brunswick orchards are not surpassed in color and flavor by those of any other province. This may be confirmed, so far as appearance is concerned, by an inspection of the fruit from different provinces shown at this exhibition for purposes of comparison.

There is said to be more good orchard land in this province than in Nova Scotia. We may fairly assume, therefore, that in the course of a few years the export of apples will be a large business at the port of St. John. When the farmers have learned to plant the right kind of trees, care for them properly, and take as much care in selecting and packing fruit as they do on the Pacific coast, there will be much money in apples, and the area in orchards will expand at a rapid rate.

Every citizen should visit St. Andrew's Rink, and become a booster for New Brunswick orchards.

THE SINGLE TAX

The eyes of other Canadian cities are turned upon Vancouver, the city of the single tax. If the single tax system proves beneficial to Vancouver, other cities will be encouraged to try the experiment. The following extract from an article by Prof. Anderson Scott, of Cambridge, in the British Weekly, is therefore of general interest. He writes:

"If one were to ask some of the leaders of local politics what were the further causes of its (Vancouver's) prosperity, they would at once refer to the single tax, and the principle of taxing unearned increment on land. Vancouver has been working with these partially for the last fifteen years, and now has adopted them without reserve. All the municipal services, and they are more numerous and better performed than in many English cities, are supported by the proceeds of a tax, which is called 'single' because it is a tax on land alone, not on the land and buildings. And the land is reassessed at short intervals, so that the community loses little time in drawing its share of the enhanced value, which according to the theory, is largely due to the growth and energy of the community itself. Other towns have adopted the system wholly or in part. Prince Rupert, the destined terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific, has adopted it from the beginning. But none of the others approaches Vancouver in importance, none is more satisfied with its success. The tax is at the rate of twenty-two mills, which works out at about sixpence in the pound on the capital value of the land. The system is attracting attention and inquiry from economists and municipal governments all over the continent. The official reply to inquiries is that the 'Vancouver experiment,' which, indeed, may no longer be regarded as an experiment at all, has resulted in such a rapid upbuilding of the city that no one, not even the extensive land owner, has any desire to return to the former."

PULP AND PAPER

The Shareholder states that the pulp and paper industry in Quebec province is on the verge of a boom. English capital is interested in a $10,000,000 pulp and paper proposition near Lake St. John, and in a $6,000,000 scheme of enlargement by Price Bros., Ltd., of its pulp, paper and lumber industries. It is stated that English investors are beginning to take a great interest in Canadian timber propositions. The Shareholder adds:—

"At the same time American paper manufacturers are paying more attention to Canadian timber propositions and are investing in these and also locating mills in Quebec province. This is the result of the legislation recently enacted by Sir Lomer Gouin in regard to the cutting of pulpwood on Crown Lands. Altogether, the outlook is very bright for the development of the paper and lumbering industries in this province. It is certainly much more profitable to have the raw material manufactured here than to export it in its raw state. Exported as raw material, a cord of pulpwood brings $8, manufactured into paper it would bring from $38 to $38. In addition, the manufacturer of it gives employment to a large number of men."

The Toronto World says:—"Des Moines, Iowa, under civic government by commission, hardly knows itself. Greater efficiency and economy, the city getting 100 cents value for every dollar spent, and the broader outlook and more sagacious preparation for the future are the causes of rejoicing."

"What will come out of this country market affair?" the Times asked a lawyer this morning. "A whole lot will come out of it," said the lawyer—and that was all he would say. Evidently the men of the law scent some legal complications. The citizens desire to know the facts, whatever the result may be.

The C. P. R. has 1200 men in the west taking instruction in branches of the St. John Ambulance Association. A branch is to be formed in St. John. The company is setting a good example. The Boy Scouts should get in touch with the C. P. R. mission of the ambulance movement while he is in St. John.

USUALLY ONE DOSE CURES INDIGESTION OR A BAD STOMACH

Misery From Dyspepsia, Heartburn, Gas and Headache Goes After Taking a Little Diapiesin

If what you eat is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch Gas and Eructate sour, indigestible food, or have a feeling of Bloating, Heartburn, Fullness, Nausea, Bad taste in mouth and stomach headache—this is Indigestion.

A full case of Diapiesin costs only 50 cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach, and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or indigestion. Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, Diapiesin is a simple, safe, and effective remedy. It is a powerful stomachic, and it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most, is that you will find that your stomach and intestine are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills. Biliousness or Constipation.

This city will have many Diapiesin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranks about this wonderful stomach preparation, too, if you ever try a little for Indigestion or Gastritis or any other stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and forever rid yourself of Stomach Trouble and Indigestion.

"GOING SOMEWHERE"

My science friend, my noblest woman friend (Now buried in an English grave—and this memory leaf for her dear sake), Ended our talk—"The sun, concluding all we know of old or modern learning, Intimations deep, Of all Geologies of all Astronomies—of Evolution, Metaphysics all, Is, that we all are onward, onward, speeding, Life, life an endless march, and endless army (no halt, but it is duly over), The world, the life, the soul—in space the time, the universe. All bound as is hefting each—all surely going somewhere."

IN LIGHTER VEIN

SISTER'S BEAU. When sister's beau comes Sunday nights We always turn on all the lights, And pass the time with him and me. We entertain the company. He sits across the room from Sis. Like

Our bedtime's nine o'clock, you know, (I just pretend, but it is duly over), The lights they seem to glow so strong for him And so they turn 'em awful dim And he sits on the couch with Sis. Like

THE REASON.

Tommy (inquiringly): "Mamma, is this hair-oil in this bottle?" Mamma: "Mersey, no. That's liquid glue." Tommy (nonchalantly): "I suppose that's why I can't get my hat off."

THE VALUATION.

Seymour: "What do you think of Sadler's horse?" Ashley: "Well, if I were Sadler and the horse were stolen I'd lock the stable doors, so it could never get back again."

SLOW LAD.

"That seems to be a cheerful office boy you engaged this morning," remarked the caller. "Does he belong to the 'Don't Worry Club'?"

"No," responded the boss man. "I think he belongs to the 'Don't Worry Club.'"

"LADIES AND GENTLEMEN! I want somebody to show me where to unload this coal," said the grimy-looking man at the kitchen door.

"You needn't ask me about that," retorted the young woman. "I don't have anything to do with unloading coal; I'm the kitchen lady."

"I can't help that," he rejoined. "I'm the coal gentleman, and the father of three kitchen-ladies, one laundry-lady, and one chamber-lady. If you don't show me where to put this coal I'll call the woman of the house."

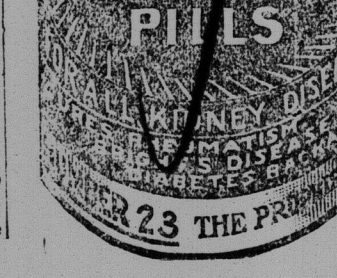

THE PUMPKIN.

Oh, golden pumpkin, big and round, Thanksgiving's here once more! In fairy crust you will be found, As you have been before. And when I go to Grandma's, I shall feast, of course, on pumpkin pie.

But it is not for pie alone That you are used, I know, For as a charm you alone Shall fend off evil from the door. And there was "Peter, Peter," too, Who had a reckless wife. He put her right inside of you, And then had no more strife! She must have liked it, strange to tell, For there he kept her very well."

And, golden pumpkin, bright and bright I quite forgot to say How you, as Jack-o'-Lantern, light The children on their way. On Halloween—what would we do Without such useful things as you?—Woman's Home Companion.

Probably most of us would be more thankful for the things we have if there were not so many things we want.
