

Spice Wafers

Are made something after the gingerbread style, only the wafers are thin and crisp. They are "spicy" and fine flavored—15c a pound.

FRUIT GINGERBREAD

One of the nicest biscuits for the warm weather—2 pounds for 25c.

COMO

Very light, very thin, very nice—2 pounds for 25c.

We have always about fifty different kinds of biscuits in stock. We are sure we can please you.

H. Malcolmson

SPRING OPENING Pelett's Bazaar

New goods, fresh goods and good goods. Our stock is now complete and strictly up-to-date. We would be pleased to have you call and inspect. Our children's dress making department is still booming, we please the little ones with our neat little dresses and silk bonnets. Bring them in. Stamping of all kinds done on short notice and special attention given to ordered work.

Pelett's Bazaar, King Street, E.

Cerhard Heintzman Grand Pianos

I now have at my warerooms a beautiful Cerhard Heintzman Parlor Grand Piano.

As this is the first Cerhard Heintzman Grand that has come to this city I would be pleased to have the musicians and all others interested in pianos to see it, hear it, and try it.

B. J. Walker

Scene Block, King Street, East

Have You Seen Our Blood Red Front

Wm. Stone
The Hatter
Garner House Block

BARGAIN SALE

SEE GOODS IN WINDOW.

- | | |
|--|---------|
| 26 pairs Women's Tan Chocolate, hand turn, razor toe, formerly sold for $2.50, all sizes, reduced to..... | 98 cts. |
| 10 pairs Women's Kid Buttoned, hand turn, razor toe, size 3, 3½, 4, 4½, 5, $3.00, reduced to..... | $1.28 |
| 22 pairs Women's Kid Buttoned, razor toe, Goodyear welt, formerly sold for $3.50, reduced to..... | $1.28 |

TURRILL'S REPAIRING DONE

LOCAL BRIEFS

John McNaughton, Harwich, is seriously ill.

D. L. Gilbert, Ridgeway, was in the city yesterday.

Black satin skirts, boys and men's, 40c. to $1.00. Riding's.

Miss Ethel Miller spent Sunday in Mull with friends.

The regular session of the city council will be held this evening.

Edward Miller, of Walkerville, spent Sunday in this city with his parents.

The city banks now have a couple of clerks apiece sleep in them each night.

Wear The 2 T's $1.00 Faultless White Dress Shirts.

Miss Simmons and niece, Miss Gracie Watt, are visiting friends in Blenheim.

For fine ready to wear clothing, go to Ridley's.

Mrs. Pelett, Grey St., who suffered a paralytic stroke last week, is improving.

Dr. Donald McLean, of Detroit, was in the city Sunday on professional business.

Reginald Rutherford, of Toronto University, son of Dr. J. P. Rutherford, will be home to-day.

The entire balance of the $1.98 line of $2.50 and $3 stiff hats put in at 80c., to clear out quick. Ridley's.

Mrs. C. L. VonGuten, sr., is seriously ill. C. L. VonGuten, of Blenheim, visited his mother yesterday.

Wanderer is lying at Crow's dock awaiting cedar posts, stingles, and is for the Blondest Bros.

Miss Leo Sterling, Lorne avenue, leaves to-day for a short vacation at Wood. and Amherstburg.

Boys' fancy shirts, 25c, 30c, and 75c. Ridley's.

The watch that was found and left with J. E. Johnston, was returned to the owner on Saturday evening.

Buttermilk, fresh and cool, at the Maple City Creamery. Two large glasses for five cents. Open evenings.

Jacob Remington, of Harwich, met with a peculiar accident on Saturday.

See out new hosiery and underclothing, fine hairbrush, fancy cottons and natural wool. Ridley's.

The globe on the electric light lamp at the corner of Raleigh St. and Lorne Ave. was broken by a man who was felling a tree this morning.

Andrew Elson was charged Judge Houston this morning before Judge Houston with peddling without a license. The case was enlarged at defendant's request, till Friday.

Frank Mays, the colored man accused of having assaulted James Thurman, also colored, with a razor, has elected to be tried before Judge Horne on Tuesday next.

Miss Edith Jordan, second daughter of Richard Jordan, has accepted a position as teacher at Cornish Ranch, Mead, N. W. T., and embarked upon her new duties last week.

See the great range of cambric shirts at 50c, 70c, and $1. Ridley's.

It is estimated that at least 100,000 peach trees in South Essex were killed by frost last winter. The grape vines and strawberry plants, also, were damaged to a great extent.

Mrs. Mary Jones a colored woman who died Friday, was buried at Sandwick yesterday. The deceased was one of the oldest and best people in Windsor that are members of the Catholic church.

See the new ties, 15c, 25c, and 50c. Ridley's.

Chief of Police Young has received a communication from the Attorney-General's department, notifying him of the fact that the Standard Bore are offering $5,000 reward for the unravelling of the Bowmanville bank robbery.

Mrs. Felix Villeneuve, of Walkerville, was accidentally shot in the hand while standing at the back door of her house, by a neighbor practising with a revolver. One finger will be permanently disabled. She was not otherwise injured.

Who are some agents for Barrington Hats? The 2 T's.

The watchman in the tower sighted a blaze in Chatham township Saturday night about 12 o'clock. The firemen, thinking the fire was in the outskirts, took 4 men over the river, but the blaze was found to be out beyond the second concession.

Alex. Tschirhart, Philip Tschirhart and Robert Tschirhart, who lived in the town of Windsor, report the roads good from Windsor to Essex, but from the Centre on they were bad. It was necessary for them to walk part of the distance.

Saturday afternoon the St. George street nine were defeated by the Star baseball club, of Richmond street, by the score of six to five in an eleven innings game. The match was a good one and the Star team claim that the umpire with two cigarettes, and then couldn't win.

$3.00 worth of wear for $2.50 in the Barrington Hat. At The 2 T's.

THE RUBBISH NUISANCE.

The attention of the police should be called to people on the city throwing rubbish on the street in violation of the city ordinance. Someone has dumped a lot of refuse near the southern approach to the Princess St. bridge. The greater part is glass and city cyclists should beware of a puncture here.

How Old She Looks

Poor clothes cannot make you look old. Even pale cheeks won't do it.

Your household cares may be heavy and disappointments may be deep, but they cannot make you look old.

One thing does it and never fails.

It is impossible to look young with the color of seventy years in your hair.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

permanently postpones the tell-tale signs of age. Used according to directions it gradually brings back the color of youth. At fifty your hair may look as it did at fifteen. It thickens the hair also; stops it from falling out; and cleanses the scalp from dandruff. Shall we send you our book on the Hair and its Diseases?

The Best Advice Free.

If you are troubled with the loss of hair, or with itching, or with dandruff, or with any other hair trouble, write to the doctor who has written this book, and he will send you a copy of the book, with your own personal advice, which will be of great value to you.

Dr. J. C. Ayer, Lowell, Mass.

EYE STRAIN AND WRINKLES.

Strange how some will go on straining their eyes producing premature wrinkles and wasting nerve energy under the supposition that glasses will detract from their personal appearance.

In reality glasses improve the looks of those with defective eyes. I put beauty in glasses as well as behind them.—E. J. MacLure, leading optician, opposite the opera house.

BELIEVES IN SONG SERVICE.

Park Street Methodist church was crowded last evening on the occasion of the sacred song service, rendered under the direction of Miss Rothwell, who is leaving the city for her home.

The program included an excellent anthem by the choir, an admirable selection by the mixed quartette and solos by Misses Clara Gossage, Alice Humphrey, Blanche Baxter, M. Merriam and Clara Rothwell. The program was interspersed by appropriate remarks by the pastor, who took occasion to express his disapproval of those who condemn the song service. He said there were serious in song and the choir was of times equally instrumental with the pastor in doing good. It was the ideal use of musical talent and was calculated to elevate the human heart.

TO SAVE THEIR TREES.

About 300 of the most representative farmers attended the meeting held at guilds Friday evening, as mentioned in Saturday's Planet. The purpose of which was to stay cutting down trees until a deputation could be appointed and sent down to interview the government representatives.

One of the men who had had their orchards marked, spoke in reference to the destruction of trees and the difference in the inspectors. One would come along and not be able to find any scale. In a few days another man would come along and find a scale. The general opinion at the meeting was, that the scale being found on forest trees over the country, it was absolutely impossible to get rid of it, and the attempt on the part of the government had been quite sufficient to convince them that there was no chance of over-taking the spread of the scale. A deputation was appointed, consisting of T. L. Parry, Robert Ferguson and J. B. Rankin to interview the government and find out whether it was their intention to continue the destruction of trees upon which the scale was found.

TILBURY.

May 15.—Miss Lowther, of Essex, formerly of this place, spent Sunday with friends here.

A party of our local sportsmen started out on a fishing excursion to the lighthouse on Saturday, and after capturing a fine lot of fish the keen demands of appetite prompted them to cook a portion of their fishy captives. Finding some fat meat on the shelf of a shanty they fried the fish with a portion of the fat, giving some to two fine sporting dogs, who immediately turned up their toes and expired. We understand that slightly evil effects were experienced by the amateur fisherman, but they are now out of danger. It transpired afterwards that the meat had been "doctored" for the destruction of rats. Moral: Don't meddle with other people's property.

Miss Sawyer, of Detroit, wife of this place, was the guest of Miss Nettie Richardson Sunday.

A Frightful Blunder.

Will often cause a horrible Burn, Scald, Cut or Bruise. Bucklen's Arnica Salve is the best in the world, will kill the pain and promptly heal it. Cures Old Sores, Fever Sores, Ulcers, Boils, Felons, Corns, all Skin Eruptions. Best Bile cure on earth. Only 25 cents a box. Cure guaranteed. Sold by A. I. McCall & Co., Druggists.

WRIGHT, KAY & CO.

Jewelers and Importers of Gems and Art Ware, 140 and 142 Woodward Ave., Detroit Opera House Block.

Visitors to Detroit

Eyes Examined Without Charge in Optical Department

Novelties in Wedding Invitations and Addressed Cards, Monogram work, Visiting Cards, etc., etc., in Stationery Department.

IN THE THIRTIES

The Late Lawrence Doyle Came to Kent.

An Interesting Account of the Life of This Well-known Pioneer.

On Friday last the Planet published an account of the largely attended funeral of the late Lawrence Doyle of Harwich. Now, we are in a position to give an interesting sketch of the career of one of Kent's earliest and best known settlers, who had reached the age of 82 at the time of his death.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in Tilbury township, and later in Raleigh township, which is known now as the Doyle Settlement. Having completed arrangements the two boys started back on foot for Port Stanley to bring their mother and the rest of the family, who came to this country in 1837, and settled in the same place.

Mr. Doyle immigrated to this country from the county of Wexford, Ireland, in the early thirties, when but a young man, with his parents, and the rest of the family, settled in Port Stanley. Shortly after their arrival, their father met with a sad drowning accident, leaving the young men the only support of their widowed mother. Hearing of better advantages further west, Mr. Doyle, with his elder brother, started out to examine the prospects in Kent county. They took up land in