

Jewels and Superstition

The magic power of precious stones is a belief dating back to the ancients. The gift of eloquence is bestowed by the ardonxy, and Darsael wears a ring set with this jewel upon all occasions when he wished to electrify auditors and win new adherents to his cause.

That belief, she knows it goes back into the centuries is evidenced by the fact that Pliny tells a story of an impecunious lawyer who hired a sardonyx with which to defend the cause of a certain fair widow possessed of great wealth, and he succeeded in winning both his cause and the widow at one and the same time.

The Princess Louise of Rome wears a ring set with sardonyx, and she is referred to as the sardonyx of Rome. She has singular efficacy in preserving health. So superstitious is the royal lady that sometimes she will not attend to the duties of her office until she has seen the sardonyx.

Although many people believe that pearls mean tears, the Bohemians and family refuse to believe that their fate is influenced by precious stones. Upon the birth of every girl, the Bohemian baby six pearls are purchased, and six more pearls are added to the necklace when the young woman makes her debut.

M. Zola is embarrassed in the trial details of his daily life by a host of superstitious fears and a belief in good and evil omens. His fancy takes the form of numbers, and he is always carrying a bit of coral as a talisman against the perils of flood and fire.

Agate, which insures long life, health and prosperity, is the good omen worn by the German Emperor. The Russian Emperor wears a ring in which he believes is embedded a bit of the quartz from the mountain of St. Petersburg.

That "the ring of death" belongs in Spain is ominous. It is a rare and beautiful ring, but it is never worn, not kept in anyone's possession, as it is considered worse than the evil eye. This fatal ring hangs about the neck of the patron saint of Madrid.

Jeremy York.

VI. When York was searched, they found in his coat pocket a large clasp-knife with a silver handle. The knife was capped, where the ring was, by a mounting of copper such as formerly might protect the butt-end of a pistol.

The first hearing was before the mayor of Sandwich, and a bench of magistrates. The room was crowded; never in the memory of the most ancient inhabitant had anything of the kind excited so much interest.

In the days in which Jeremy York flourished the gibe was a common conventional detail of the civilization of the century that the gallows now bears witness to.

One might have noticed, however, that among the people who lingered in the immediate vicinity of the gallows, there were a few persons who were not of the common type.

Having heard the evidence, the magistrate committed him to take his trial privately, and he was taken to the jail.

There was probably no one person living at that time who believed in Jeremy York's innocence, and this was his sweetest, Jenny Box.

It is the sun that creates the delicate tint. If a fish is bred in the shade from infancy it will always remain a dull, silvery look.
