The arrival of Bennett and Prohallman, of Yale, North German night, removed the death of Mrs. Bennett, by means of the deck of the boat, the Berlin dock, at past nine o'clock.

THE CASE OF TOMMY AT KIN- DERGARTEN

(Hamilton Spectator.)

It is claimed for the kindergarten system of our public schools that it is a wonderful educator of the very juvenile mind, for the reason that by its methods the imagination is fired along those avenues of learning that will later on in the school career be taken up in more serious and practical ways. Theoretically the scheme looks splendid, and if one does not inquire too closely into the matter it may seem to work out well. But there are occasions when the beautiful theories fail to work to the rule laid down, as is shown in the following instance taken from an article in the Saturday Evening Post of recent date.

In this case the teacher was developing the imagination of her infantile scholars in the study of colors, and to do it the more effectively started a game in which each child was to be a rainbow fairy—seven of them all together—pondering with the colors of the spectrum. Having elected the seven the teacher thus addressed the class:

"Children, these are the lovely color fairies—the red, orange, yellow, green, blue, purple, violet. We shall sing a song to them presently, and perhaps they will be so pleased they will stay a little while to listen. But we must sing very sweetly and gently or we may frighten them away."

At this stage little Tommy, who evidently had an imagination of his own, and had no intention of letting the teacher monopolize the fairy tale business, insisted upon being heard. Here is the conversation as recorded:

"Well, Thomas, What is it?"
"I saw a rainbow once. It came right down on to the ground and more than a thousand rainbow fairies were sitting on it."

"Yes?" said the teacher rather uncertainly.

"And I caught hold of the end of it and it commenced to go up—up and at last it flopped its tail and threw me right into heaven."

"That will do, Thomas," said the teacher decidedly. "You may sit down."

"And all the rainbow fairies fell off."

"Thank you, Thomas, that will do."

"And the angels cheered and hollered."

"We'll sing the color song now—all ready."

"An' God was cheerin' and hollerin'."

"Thomas! Thomas! Elliot Woodbury!" shrieked the teacher, her pink palms clapped over her ears. "Sit down—sit down instantly! You are telling wicked, wicked falsehoods."

"You may stay after school, Thomas."

What we would like to know is, what the teacher called her own tale, the one Thomas told was a wicked falsehood? And why was it that poor little Tommy, the pupil with the most vivid imagination in the whole class, had to stay in after school for having demonstrated his possession of the very thing which the teacher was supposed to be trying to develop? There are some things that are terribly mysterious.

Irrigation.

"Pop!"
"Yes, my son."

"What do they irrigate land for?"
"To raise things, my son."

"But can't they raise things without irrigation?"
"No; irrigating is resorted to in countries where they have no rain."

"And do they raise everything when they irrigate?"
"Everything but umbrellas, my son."

—Yonkers Statesman.

New York, June 25.—Driven to despair by the hopelessness of his condition, Thomas King, a cripple who earned a precarious livelihood as a vendor of flowers in the "white light district," leaped to death from the platform of the Big Avenue "L," at 10th street, a distance of 120 feet, last night.

An effort was made by a station employee to prevent King from making the fatal plunge, but he waved him away cheerily, and with the remark, "Don't worry yourself about me; I'm all right," swung himself into space. The crowd was crowded at the time, and the whirling body almost struck three schoolgirls leaving the station. King died as he was placed in an ambulance to be taken to the J. Hood Wright Hospital.

King was a familiar figure in the district much frequented at night. His physical condition won sympathy and patronage for him. He lived no known where, but in inquiry at an address given by him to a physician, No. 208 West 109th street, and which was found on a card in his pocket after his death, proved he was unknown there. King had been informed that an operation had been decided upon for his relief, and fear of the ordeal, it is thought by the police, drove him to suicide.

The crippled man entered the railway station at 110th street and bought a ticket from Andrew Christianson, the agent, to whom he remarked that he was going to the beach and to the south end of the platform and climbed the railing.

Edwin Robinson, a station attendant, saw King clinging to the railing. He called to him to hold on and he would come to his assistance. King then released his hold and dropped into space.

BELLEISLE CREEK.

Belleisle Creek, June 25.—A very heavy hail storm passed over this place on Monday last. No damage is reported to the crops.

Walton Trites and bride arrived in Belleisle on Monday. The young people of the place gave them a good send-off, and received a treat consisting of cake and fruit.

Much regret is expressed over the death of Miss Maggie Reidie. She was a young lady well liked by all.

Mr. Pickle and wife, Lower Norton, passed through here yesterday en route to Upper Springfield.

Charles H. Horton, of Collina, and his uncle, Charles H. Horton, of St. Johnsbury, Vermont, spent Saturday last at Jack's Lake fishing. They brought home some of the best trout caught this season.

The philosophy of life.

Mr. W. W. Price, of E. and C. Randolph, dug up "The Philosophy of Life" the other day. It reads as follows:

"Man comes into the world without his consent, and goes out of it against his will, and the trip between is exceedingly rocky. The rule of contraries is one of the big features of this trip. When he is little the big girls kiss him; when he is big the little girls kiss him. If he is poor, he is a bad manager; if he is rich he is dishonest. If he needs credit, he can't get it; if he is prosperous, every one wants to do him a favor. If he is in politics, it is for graft; if he is out of politics, he is no good to the country. If he doesn't give to charity, he is a stingy cuss; if he does, it's for show. If he is actively religious, he is a hypocrite; if he takes no interest in religion, he is a hardened sinner."

HE PREFERRED DEATH TO KNIFE OF SURGEON

SHOULD GIRLS TEACH?—THE DIFFICULTY

The question of the advisability of girls teaching Chinese scholars, as is done in a number of Sunday schools in Toronto, was discussed recently with a number of the pastors and workers familiar with this work, in view of the statement by Miss Helen F. Clark, of New York, in connection with the murder of Miss Elsie Sigel by a Chinese pupil in that city, as to the evil moral effects upon both the Chinese and the girls of the method of individual teaching which is adopted in that kind of work. The opinion was somewhat divided on the subject.

Rev. Canon Cody, of St. Paul's Church, Mr. R. B. Harcourt, former Superintendent of St. Paul's Chinese Sunday school; Mr. Williams of the Metropolitan Sunday school, Rev. Robert Heribson, of St. Giles' Presbyterian church; Mr. John Hammond, of Cooke's church, and Rev. Dr. J. A. Trunbull, of West Presbyterian church, all agreed in saying that they had never seen or known of any harm coming from the individual system of instruction by young women. The general thought was that there would be no danger of any teacher who conducted herself properly and that the men would not make advances to the girls.

On the other hand, Rev. R. J. Moore, of St. Margaret's church agreed with Miss Clark's declaration that there is a grave moral danger in the system. In his school he is very strict in insisting upon there being no association outside of the school room. And the pastor of another downtown church remarked that there had already been a number of scandals in Toronto arising out of the system. The Chinese who join for the most part to learn English and appreciate the efforts of their teachers, and like to make them expensive presents. They then look upon the teacher's attention as a matter of right, and sometimes become a nuisance outside of the school.

The difficulty.

The difficulty, as expressed by several of those interviewed, lies in the fact that it is hard by get men to teach who have sufficient patience and perseverance to keep at the work. Not that the Chinese would not learn from men, but that they preferred women as more patient. Besides the difficulty of getting teachers, proficient enough to teach the language to a large class made the individual system the only system possible.

The importance of the problem in Toronto is evident when it is noted that in Cooke's church there is a class with a membership of a 100 in the Metropolitan one with eighty members, in St. Giles one of seventy-five, in West Presbyterian one of thirty, and one of about the same size in Knox church, besides other classes of varying size in several other churches of different denominations.

As to the alleged scandals, Mr. Mills said he had investigated them thoroughly and found them without foundation in two or three cases that he distinctly remembered. He thought more fuss was made over the matter than was necessary, and that for one case of harm coming there were a thousand cases of no harm.

A large number of the citizens are making preparations for the celebration on July 1st at Campbellton.

Rounder—Oh, that wouldn't worry me. My umbrella is often "soaked" before I get home.

LEON NOT CAPTURED YET.

New York, N. Y., June 24.—With all indications of an early capture of Elsie Sigel, the rapidly narrowing down to an improbability, while at the same time a fresh crop of rumors spring up with each hour of investigation by police, detectives and district attorney, ended tonight.

Chung Sin, after thirty-four hours of continuous grilling with but one intermission for sleep, had a day of rest at last. Either because the police despair of squeezing more information out of him or because they believe that, if he is left for a space to forget the details of his first answers, he may entangle himself in more contradictions, they did not question him today.

The same stream of hopeful but unimportant clues kept pouring in from Chinatown, from Newark and the suburbs, Cleveland, O., and even from the cities of the Pacific coast, but so far as the police here could determine tonight, none of them proved to have any substantial basis.

FINANCE BILL IS REJECTED.

Berlin, June 24.—The Reichstag today further added to the Government's difficulties, in its proposed financial reforms by rejecting a vote of 194 to 186, the Imperial minister's bill to extend inheritance taxes to direct heirs, including widows, and children. The president of the Reichstag announced this evening that the bill in its present form would be dropped.

It is rumored tonight that the Reichstag shortly will adjourn until autumn, to permit the Government to revise its financial scheme, but as the chancellor and the other ministers have always expressed a resolve to include some further tax on property, it is not possible to foresee how they will be able to clear the situation. Other reports say that Parliament will be dissolved or that Prince von Buelow will resign, but nothing definite is permitted to leak out.
