"rural ghettos."

While claiming it is natural for us to "think of expanding our industrial machines to the limit of our country's frontiers," Berger urged Canadians to be "a little more realistic" in discussions of environmental impact.

Industry must admit there may be limits to what technology can achieve, he said. "It is a mistake for industry to anathematize as an ecofreak anyone who questions or opposes a project on environmental grounds." He added that he had not yet encountered at the Inquiry any environmentalists who sought to defend "each and every blade of grass."

At the same time, he said, environmentalists should acknowledge that "the men who head our great corporations share the concern all of us have for the preservation of environmental values."

Open for meditation

The Chaplaincy Association of the U of A has now made the Meditation Room more available for individual use.

Dean honoured

Former Dean of Medicine Dr. Walter MacKenzie was among 187 Albertans honored Saturday at the ninth annual Alberta achievement awards banquet at the MacDonald Hotel.

Dr. MacKenzie, who served as medical Dean from 1959 to 1974, was honored for his "deep concern for all mankind." He is executive director of the provincial Cancer Hospitals Board at present and has been active in 25 medical societies.

According to Fletcher Stewart, of the Chaplaincy Association, people often inquire at the Chaplaincy Office in the SUB, looking for somewhere quiet to pray or meditate.

"Although the Meditation Room is just across the hall, we cannot normally refer them to it," he said, "since it is normally locked unless booked by a registered group."

Apparently the Meditation Room has been vandalized on a number of occasions in the past. The Chaplains have undertaken this year to keep the room open during certain hours, and to take turns supervising to avoid misuse. The room will be open 7:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. and 12 noon to 2 p.m. every week. In addition, the supervising Chaplain each day will provide brief meditative service at 9
