

Int'l nite a success

One big complaint about International Night held last Saturday in the SUB cafeteria: the beef curry was too darned hot.

But that's a personal complaint, and after talking to several people there, I guess my uneducated palate was lucky; beef curry is usually much hotter.

International Night was an excellent finale for the many cultural groups on campus.

Many of the groups had their own night this past year, and bringing all the groups together was an effective way of illustrating the wide variety of cultures found on the UNB campus.

Kwame Dawes, the master of ceremonies entertained everyone with his wit, his beautiful singing voice and nice legs.

The varied events provided the audience with a plethora of differing musical and dance performances, including the Rhumba-cha-cha-cha, reggae guitar and flute solos.

A mini-fashion show highlighted the different styles of dress from around the world.

While the turnout was less than hoped for, Kwame Dawes termed the night an "artistic success".

Don't worry! I just have to drill your molars a bit. International Night was another dentist's (and other's) delight last weekend.

Are you a Psychopath?

Are you fascinated by people? Do you want to understand your dreams? Are you interested in hypnosis and schizophrenia? Would you like to test your creativity or reaction time? Are you concerned about abortion, divorce, nuclear war or AIDS? If so, you are ready to take a trip along your many "PSYCHO-PATHS" at St. Thomas University's 5th annual psychology science fair. The event is set for Friday April 8 from 10:00 a.m. - 6:00 p.m. in rooms G11, G12, and G13 of Edmund Casey Hall. Everyone is welcome and there is no admission fee.

A project of Dr. Thomas A. Fish's Introductory Psychology class, the fair investigates the many paths of human experience, behaviour and thought. Consisting of over 50 exhibits, the fair will explore topics including: obsessions about weight, multiple personalities, the real value of pets, sensory deprivation, superstitions, and the effects of staying awake for over 72 hours.

The fair offers students a chance to investigate a topic of personal interest, communicate in a creative way, and exchange ideas with the general public. Visitors to the fair will not only be able to view the exhibits, but will also have the opportunity to participate in a variety of demonstrations and discussions.

A trip along your "PSYCHO-PATHS" will be both entertaining and informative. Come and explore why we do the things we do!

TO ALL UNB CLUBS AND ORGANIZATIONS:

The Brunswickan would like to print summaries of your groups activities and events over the past year.

Try to keep them short (about 250 wds.) and please print or type and double space.

Deadline for submissions is Wed. April 6 at NOON.

Pet Goldfish Raped, Left for Dead as Luststruck Cane Toads Hit Ponds

The President of the Townsville Aquarium Society recently came home to find his goldfish pond surround by about eighty toads. The next morning, seven of his goldfish were dead.

"I've never had this trouble before," said President Devine, "but then I did a bit of reading and I realized that toads had taken a fancy to my goldfish. They were jumping in and trying to mate with them."

"I have stood on the edge of a pond, and had a cane toad try to mount my boot. They mount each other as well."

Maryanne Lezar of Pennsylvania was arrested and charged with attempted murder in an attack on her husband, Spencer.

It was reported that "the Lezars, who were divorced in 1983, went to a suburban motel together, where, according to Lezar, his wife gave him a back rub and then suddenly struck him in the head with a sledgehammer.

-The Delaware County Daily Times

A man, 53 had his penis cut off during an argument with a woman at his Wavell Heights home yesterday.

Police said the penis was severed with a pair of scissors when he was attacked by the woman.

It was thrown into a kitchen sink and later into a garbage bin.

He also suffered an ear injury after being hit several times with a hammer.

Micro-surgeons at the Princess Alexandra Hospital were trying to restore his penis late yesterday.

-The Queensland Courier-Mail

A police spokesman said a car chase, in which three squad cars were wrecked, began Friday after officers spotted a twenty-three year old Washington woman directing traffic with a curling iron.

-the New York Times

Heard at the Cosmo:

"So... can I buy you a drink? You know, the gin and tonic is used by the Wazoumi tribe of Burundi as a fertility drug. That's a very pretty dress. Turns out that passionate sex can actually raise your I.Q. I love your hair."

Sure, I'd love to, uhl Meet your husband...
(lies - all lies)

Dwarf throwing, which started in Australia, has been replaced by dwarf bowling, evoking yet another round of huffy letters to the editor.