Mr. Elwes has in such a public-spirited manner got together, the first point that ought to come to mind is, that in practically every case these animals have existed through many centuries under most trying conditions, both in respect to climate and food; very often they have a great deal more climate than food; and even such food as they have found has been such that better favored sheep would have starved upon. Give them a few generations under more favorable conditions, and doubtless, without any special selection or crossing, they would show great improvement. They should not be regarded merely as curiosities, but as an asset with great potentialities; it should be a national duty to maintain them, for such work as is being done by Mr. Elwes can be done by only a few private individuals, and the field open is so vast. Money from the Development Fund may be going to worthy causes, but it will be ill-spent if some of it is not directed to purposes of this sort. The extinction of any indigenous breed is a national loss; Mr. Elwes' exhibition was a valuable reminder of what a number of breeds there are which are little known, and therefore at risk of extinction because of the opposition they have to meet from breeds which are further developed. At the present moment there are many districts carrying breeds of a type which are not best suited to them, and where others could be more profitably substituted."

A doctor who posed as a bit of a wag stopped outside the yard of a stone-cutter one morning for a chat.

"Good morning. How's business?" said the doctor. "I suppose when you hear that someone is ill you get ready for eventualities, though, of course, you never go beyond the words, 'In memory.'"

"Well, that depends," replied the old chap, "you see, if you be a-doctoring of the patient I goes straight on."

"You told me you were worth a million, and I find that you have only a paltry ten thousand dollars," said Blathers' partner.

"Well, ten thousand dollars is a million cents," said Blathers.

He held the maiden's hand and said,

"May I the question pop?"

She coyly bent her pretty head—

"You'd better question pop."

Don't confuse this with ordinary "make-shift" roofings—we guarantee it 15 years and inside each roll furnish modern ideas for laying it artistically.

Certain-teed Roofing

Rolls, Shingles

When ready roofing was first put on the market, the public demanded that it must prove its value by actual wear on the roof. Certain-teed Roofing has stood the test for years—it has made good in all climates and under the most severe conditions. When artistically laid it makes a roof you can well be proud of. You can't tell how long roofing will wear by looking at it—so for your own protection, accept no substitutes—be sure the Certain-teed Quality Label is on each roll.

Sold by dealers everywhere at a reasonable price.
