What's the matter, darling? You look as if some great sorrow had come to you. Mrs. Watterson came over to see the baby this morning, and she insisted that he looked the very image of you.

The Mysterious Nerves.

How like electricity is the mysterious nerve force which controls the body controlling the movement of every muscle and the working of every organ. The secret of keeping the marvellous nervous system in health and vigor is found in the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great blood builder and nerve restorative.

Take a Cold Seriously.

The possibility of every cold as developed to croup, pneumonia, bronchitis, consumption usually begins with a simple cold. Why not fight the cold from the start and ensure recovery by using Dr. Chase's Syrup of Simple Cold and Croup? It relieves inflammation, keeps the throat and lungs cool and protects the bronchial tubes and lungs from danger.

Many Questions Answered.

In a certain fish shop stands a glass tank filled with water, in which there is a single goldfish, says the Detroit News-Tribune. Hanging on the outside of the tank is a placard, which contains the following answers to questions which the proprietor of the shop has got tired of replying to by word of mouth:

ACCIDENTS WILL HAPPEN IN THE BEST REGULATED HOMES.

It eats what we give it. There is water in it. We get the water out of the well. We do not know how old it is. We have had it ever since we got it. We have had more, but have not got them now. If it sleeps we do not know it. We change the water as often as we want to. We do not know how long it will live. We do not miss the water it drinks. We do not know how large it will grow. We can catch it, but do not want to. This is all we know about it. It is not for sale.

'And Afterwards, What?' (A. C. Bond, in the Temperance Advocate.) Give us wine, ruby wine, when it sparkles and glows. And rivals in perfume the scent of the rose; When it moveth itself in its so gentle way. And adds to our pleasure, the 'o' its way. 'And afterwards, what?' Give us drink that is stronger by far than red wine, its mildness and blandness with scorn we decline; Give us brandy to stir all our blood to new life. And drive out all thoughts of the world's strife and strife. 'And afterwards, what?' Give us headaches that drive all our senses away; Give us woe without number through all the long day; Give us sadness, and sorrow, and hot, burning tears; Give us days full of anguish, and nights full of fears. 'And afterwards, what?' Give us angry contention and madness and strife; Give us poverty's darkness to blacken our life; Give us wives in the mad house to curse us and die; Give us sad, hungry children with no place to lie. 'And afterwards, what?' Give us redness of eyes and sore weakness of sight; Give us noses that shine out like beacons at night; Give us limbs full of weakness that reel as we walk. And tongues that with babblings and foolishness talk. 'And afterwards, what?' Give us visions of serpents and all creeping things, Of adders and vipers, each one of which stings; Give us scorpions and nettle where ever we lie. And the darkness of death many years ere we die. 'And afterwards, what?' Unhealthy Condition of the Liquor Trade. The increased liquor tax or license for the sale of liquor in the borough of Manhattan is $1,200. This increase went into effect on May 1st, 1903. The receipts from the territory embraced within New York county for the year ending April 30th were $7,155,007. This year the receipts from the same source since May 1st, up to date are $100,000 more than those of last year. The 'Sun' draws from this increase in the number of licensed places in the borough of Manhattan the conclusion that the liquor trade in Manhattan is now profitable, in spite of the increased tax. Upon this the editor of the 'Wine and Spirit Gazette' says: 'The truth is that the liquor trade in Manhattan is in a very satisfactory condition. It is not prosperous. The brewers own probably more than three-fourths of the saloons in Manhattan. They hold the leases of the places, have chattel mortgages on the fixtures for which they have advanced the money. The saloon keeper who stands behind the bar of these places is a mere retainer of the brewer. He may have invested a few hundred dollars in the place, but he is virtually a slave of the brewer. 'The condition is a little better in other cities of the Union. A prominent retail liquor dealer of Detroit, Mich., complains in 'Wine and Spirit Gazette' published in that city, that the brewers say that the class of saloon keepers has degenerated. Who is responsible? Why, the brewers themselves. They have put a lot of lunatics in the business, whose licenses they pay. 'The liquor traffic which is staggering along under a heavy burden of local, state and national taxation is not prosperous. It is in a very unsatisfactory and unhealthy condition.'

An expert authority on being interviewed states that the tendencies of the medical profession in Canada are along exactly the same lines. He gives the following old-fashioned vegetable mixture as the safest and best treatment of all stomach and liver troubles, constipation, disorder of the kidneys and bladder, and states that many of the leading physicians use these ingredients in some form, often by some fancy and expensive name: Fluid Extract Cascara..... 4 cc Syrup Rhuibar..... 1 cc Carriana Compound..... 1 cc Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla 5 cc Take one teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime. This acts in a pleasant way, and is free from the bad effects of strong purgatives and synthetics. We advise all our readers to cut this valuable formula out and use it. Any druggist can supply these ingredients at a small expense. You can mix them at home if you prefer.

When the Nerves get out of Tune

You can remember the case described here and revitalize the wasted nerve system by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

When the nerves become exhausted and you are threatened with nervous prostration, get in the sunshine, breathe the fresh air, rest and use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and you will get well. But you must be patient and persistent. Mr. Wm. Graham, Alwood, Ont., writes: 'My wife had been ill for some time with nervous prostration and two of the best doctors we could get failed to help her. She gradually became worse and worse, could not sleep and lost energy and interest in life. She was giving up in despair when a friend advised a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

'From the first box of this preparation my wife used we noticed improvement and now she is completely cured and as well as she ever was, eats well, sleeps well and feels fully restored. I am satisfied that my wife owes her life to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.' See a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers on Edmonson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

ed if he was a total abstinent, related the following incident in his personal experience: I want to tell you how I signed the pledge. I was a preacher, but I did not believe in total abstinence. Going out to preach one summer I went into a town and there I saw a once revival going on, and I wished I had not come. They were going to have a Temperance meeting that night. They said to me, 'Of course you will speak at the meeting.' I had never been inside one for I convinced myself that I did not believe in total abstinence. What should I do? I thought over it; the whole day; I spent all the prayer day in prayer. I prayed it through, and it became as clear as day that if for nothing more than my influence I ought to take my stand and sign the pledge.
