DALHOUSIE WEDDING.

Dalhousie, April, 24.—Much interest was created in Dalhousie society circles by the marriage of John Keith, of Winnipeg, and Miss Georgie Haddow, youngest daughter of George Haddow, ex-M. P. of "Bonnie Brae", Dalhousie. Which took place in St. John's Presbyterian church at 8.30 o'clock tonight. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Keith, pastor of the church, and notwithstanding the inclement weather the church was crowded with guests, who witnessed one of the prettiest weddings seen in Dalhousie for some years.

SOME FOUL MOUTHED M. P.'S THE DOWNWARD TENDENCY

Torrent of Oaths and Blasphemies Uttered in a Lady's Presence, as Described by Mr. Blackstock, K. C.—Toronto Lawyer Refers to the Giants of Another Day and Laments the Woe-ful Change—Some Good Men Sit in Parliament.

Toronto, April 24.—"I stood in a hotel some time ago whilst a lady was signing the register, and at the same time I heard a torrent of the foulest oaths I ever had to listen to, oaths and blasphemies proceeding from some members of the House of Commons. So long as we allow that to go on, so long will we be on the ground skid of destruction."

Mr. George Tate Blackstock, K.C., made this remark in the course of an address delivered this afternoon before the Canadian Club on "Some Tendencies."

"Democracy works better in Great Britain than in any other country on earth, because it is an evolution, and the old grandee system which governed at one time has broadened out and has become democratic, and you have an aristocratic governing body while at the same time that body is in constant touch with the democracy."

He proceeded to point out how the House of Lords, although aristocratic, was yet democratic, because the poorest boy might, by industry, perseverance and ability, rise to a seat in that high body, and many had so risen.

Warrior or Saint

"There is indeed a God," she murmured. "It would have attacked my baby."

Two men, mounted on Turkoman horses, were now spurring towards them. Mirza Ali Beg advanced a few paces to meet them.

One, an elderly man of grave appearance and richly attired, reined in his horse at a little distance and cried to his companions:

"By the tomb of Mahomet, Sher Khan, 'tis he of my dream!'"

The other, a younger, solidly built youth, came nearer and questioned Ali Beg, mostly concerning the disabled and dying snake, found and brought into captivity by the foremost man of the caravan.

The Mirza told his tale with dignified eloquence; he ended with a pathetic request for help for his exhausted wife and family.

This was forthcoming quickly, and while he himself was refreshed with good food and wine, and cakes, and pounded wheat, Malik Masoud, the owner of the two horses and leader of the train, told how he had dreamt the previous night that during a way-side halt under a big tree, he was attacked by a poisonous snake, which was vanquishing him until a stranger came to his aid.

The snake lying in the path of the kafil was the exact counterpart of that seen in his disturbing vision, but his amazement was complete when he recognized in Ali Beg the stranger who had saved him.

So, in due course, Mirza Ali Beg, with his baby girl, was mounted on a camel, and her husband and two sons on another, and Dori, the cow, before joining the train, were regaled with copious draughts of water and an ample repast of grain.

Thus it came to pass that Mirza Ali Beg and his wife were conveyed through Kandahar and Kabul in comfort and safety. They rode through the gaunt jaws of the Khyber Pass and emerged after many days, into the great plain of the Punjab, verdant with an abundant though deferred harvest.

And no one imagined, least of all the baby girl herself that the infant crawling happily in the arms of Mirza Ali Beg was destined to become a beautiful, gracious and world-renowned princess, whose name and love-story should endure through many a century.

In that same month of July, 1588, on the nineteenth day of the month, to be exact, the blazoned sails of the Spanish Armada were sighted off the Lizard. Sixty-five war galleons, eight fleet galleasses, fifty-six armed ships, crowded with men and cannon, swept along the channel in gallant show.

Spread out in a gigantic crescent, the Spanish ships were flanked by anxious watchers to be a great bird of prey with outstretched wings. But Lord Howard of Effingham led out of Plymouth a band of adventurers who had hunted that bird many a time. Drake, Hawkins, Frobenius and the rest—they feared no Spaniard who sailed the seas.

Their little vessels, well handled, could sail two miles to the Spaniard's one, and fire twice as many shots gun for gun. "One by one," said they, "we pluck the Don's feathers." Ship after ship was sunk, captured or driven ashore. A whole week the cannon roared from Plymouth Sound to Calais, and there the last great fight took place in which the Duke of Medina Sidonia yielded himself to agonized froeholding, and Drake rightly believed that the Spanish grandee "would ere long wish himself at St. Mary Port among his orange trees."

During one of the many fierce duels between the ponderous galleons and the hawk-like British ships, the Resolution, hastily manned at Deal by volunteers who rode from London on to the ship and finally captured the San Jose.

In 1875 the people of this country rose in their might and hurled from power the idol of their heart, because they believed he had betrayed his trust. Now what have we today? There sits in the House of Commons a man disqualified by seven judges, declared to be guilty of almost every electoral corruption; and on the other side, a man convicted and sentenced for voting twice.

The first parliament of the Dominion contained such men as Sir John Macdonald, Sir Geo. Cartier, Hon. Alex. Mackenzie, Hon. Edward Blake and other great men. When we compare that Parliament with today's we are compelled to exclaim: "How are the mighty fallen!"

There are some men, such as Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. R. L. Borden who are absolutely above all thought of wrong. They however, are not the whole parliament. Now, how are we to wipe out this evil? By individual effort and by exercising our vote and our influence for the return of men of honor and uprightness.

He concluded with an earnest appeal for individual honor and uprightness as the safety of this young and prosperous country.
