Notes From Harbor Grace.

Constable Dooley had a man before the court yesterday for cruelty to animals, his horse having fallen down while drawing a load of stone. The man was convicted and fined.

The Archibald Bros. Shoe Factory are rushing now to fill spring orders. During the month of March 4,877 pairs of boots were turned out. The factory was closed down for two days, so it is expected that for this month the round 5,000 will be the output. The firm is to be congratulated on such good work.

It is now quite fashionable to have a sore arm, and when meeting a friend one of the first requests one hears is to "Mind my sore arm." A lot of children are very sick from the effects of vaccination.

Mrs. Parsons, the wife of Dr. Parsons, is spending a time at her old home, Carbonear. We hope her health will be greatly benefited by the change.

The Juvenile Branch of the British Society held its monthly meeting on Tuesday night. Six new members were added to the role, which now reaches 60 members. The prize offered to the boy bringing in the greatest number of candidates for the month was awarded to Master Stephen Payne, son of Mr. Robert Payne, of Water Street West. The boys have regatta made and expect to have a "turn-out" on the 24th of May.

To prove that spring is here it is only necessary to say that yesterday we saw a man digging worms, preparing for a visit to the haunts of the finny tribe.

Mr. W. A. Mann, of St. John's, paid this town a flying visit the early part of the week.

The small pox scare is over. We have a clean bill of health. Let us all hope we may long keep so.

The United States and Newfoundland Questions before the Tribunal at the Hague.

America has always been the champion of the liberty of diplomacy. No other nation would venture to put forward such preposterous claims as she advances. In 1818 at Ghent the American envoys representing a foreign nation claimed the same fishery rights all over British North America as when they were Colonials. Every dodge was used to put off the meeting at the Hague, and now when the time is at last fixed negotiations are started for a Reciprocity Treaty. Is the intention honest? I believe so, because just at this time there is a determined public outbreak against the corrupt Protectionists Ring and the Trusts. We see proof of this in the combination of Democratic and Liberal Republicans who depose the Protectionist Autocrat Speaker, Tom Cannon. It is the same power now that is working for Reciprocity.

To those who have a knowledge of the principles of International Law, the questions that are coming up before the Hague Tribunal present no great and difficult points for solution: (1) The inhabitants of the United States have only ordinary fishing rights on our coasts. That they are not in any way extensive is proved conclusively by two facts: The rights granted to the French around the same shores, and the plain general language of the Treaty.

(2) The Americans claim to be free and immune from the payment of light dues, entry at the Custom House and our Regulations to prevent the destruction of the fishery. In this position they are opposed to all their own great jurists and statesmen, who have constantly advised them to conform to all reasonable local laws. The most important point on this subject is the question of Sovereignty. Because a nation makes a treaty with another power, it does not except by express words abrogate its sovereign rights. In this treaty as in the one with the French the sovereign rights are expressly set forth: "The island of Newfoundland shall belong of right wholly to Great Britain." By International law the sovereign power has at all times the right to protect its revenue from smuggling, and in consequence to make all foreign vessels coming into its ports to enter at the Custom House in the usual way. Under the same rule all foreign vessels using its sea lights when they come within our jurisdiction must pay the usual light dues. In the comity of nations there are of course limits to the exercise of the sovereign power under a treaty with a foreign nation. Customs, light dues, &c., must be general regulations of a reasonable character, and of general application, alike to the foreigner and the resident. All our regulations and laws applicable to the coast will bear this test. The contention of the Americans on these points are absurd, and no European jurist would listen to them for a moment.

(3) As to the rights of Americans to employ foreign fishermen on our coasts. This is expressly forbidden by the Treaty, which gives the fishery rights on our coasts solely to "inhabitants of the United States," and we have absolute authority by law to make our own people, within our own territory, obey our laws. (4) The territorial or landing rights given to the Americans under the Treaty of Ghent are very clearly and strictly defined. They are four: obtain water, buy firewood, shelter from storms, and a port for repairs, and for no other purpose whatsoever. That they should enter at the Custom House and pay light dues is quite clear, following the arguments I have laid down. In my next I will discuss the headland question—the former points that I have discussed are on the same principle as I have laid down: we have the right to make general regulations applicable to all alike to prevent the wanton destruction of our coast fisheries. "Mary" Writes Again.

And Gives the Reader An Interesting Trio by Two Old Public Servants—the Court House and Custom House—and the Factories.

Dear Sir,—My last scribble has caused quite a commotion here, and Mary's name has been mentioned pretty often during the past two days so great was the rush for the Telegram that I could not get one to send to Uncle Nath. Please send him one I know he will appreciate your kindness. Well, Tom and I went for another walk last night. First we viewed the Court House, a fine solid building; then we passed by the Custom House, another good, substantial structure. "Look, Tom," said I, "it seems a pity to spend so much money on two public buildings while these are so solid and comfortable for the Government's work." We also passed by our factories, and Tom reminded me what a lot of employment they were giving, and how they were helping to build up the town. "Say, Min," says he, "what do they call it when three people sing a song on the stage each taking part." "Oh, a trio," says I. "Yes," said he. "Then why not get up a trio for the Telegram, by the Court House, Custom House and Factories." I always like to please Tom so with apologies to all concerned I make the attempt:—

The Court House and the Jail.

In sporting days in Harbor Grace, When flowing bowls went round, I held the prisoners secure As if in iron bound.

'Twas worse than useless then to try And force strong iron bars; The man that left before his "time" Had need to bless his stars.

I dealt out justice faithfully By worthy old J. P.'s; My old stone walls are able yet To weather many a breeze.

I've sheltered many from the storms That wildly raged outside, And now to be deserted And none with me to bide.

Farewell, my old companions, Who visit me so often; To think that here I must decay Your hearts I know 'twill soften.

The Custom House.

Oh say, stone jug, don't take on so, I'm in the self-same box, Or even worse, if they make of me An hospital for small pox.

I've stood the storms of ages Here on the ocean's brink; And now to be snubbed in this wise Would make a donkey wink.

I'd rather be a sheep-fold, Sheltering that noble class That A. H. S. is sure to bring To live on two-blade grass.

I was considered good enough Some twenty years ago, When ships-galore came to our port And H. M. C. force was strong.

But I'm now to be dismantled, For what I never can tell;

There's plenty of money in the chest, Then why not spend it well.

The Shoe Factories.

We've listened to the wallings Of Custom House and Jail, And if we get an audience We'll tell a little tale.

We would reinstate our brothers And have them put on dock; With the public building money Four factories we'd stock.

We'd make nails to build our houses, And butter for our bread; Rope to rig our ships with, And have good oil clothes made.

'Twould do no harm then to invest In a bakery or two, As bread will always be required As long as men can chew.

What a large amount of labor And comfort that would bring, To help the town of Harbor Grace In winter, fall and spring.

Your public buildings are all right, Though you may call them "shacks," 'Tis little nourishment they'll give Or put clothes on your backs.

Our contented, happy employees Can find work every day To feed and clothe their families And help the revenue pay.

There's room for many factories more, For Nature has provided All that tends to give success When by a good firm guided.

I hope all your readers will remember that I write these few lines to please Tom. We, that is, Tom and me, are great believers in labor. Not of course the labor that is given to gather rocks for the foundation of a public building, but some permanent employment that will give men and boys, and girls too, labor all the year round. Yours, &c., MARY.

The World's Greatest Pianist.

A very good impression of Mr. Mark Hambourg's playing was published a little while ago by one of the best critics in Europe, who said: "Of the different kinds of pianists, we have a Mark Hambourg a very happy blending of the emotional and the intellectual types, the former predominating in a sufficient degree to impart to his playing an atmosphere which glows with warmth and vitality. He is a virile, fascinating and successful audacious performer; he is magnetic, he carries you off your feet, and can make you cry or laugh, and can make you whether you will or not; he causes a suspension of your critical faculties for the time being, while his daring originalities amaze and bewitch you. He is a magician who paints tone pictures of marvelous beauty, and he interprets as we have heard no one before him. His lightning-like speed, the accuracy of his execution, his conceptions at times dignified and grand, at times subtle and suggestive, his marvelous tone, his wonderful use of the pedal, his abandon and finesse, and above all the poetic feeling he displayed, drove the audience frantic with wonder and delight."

FOR FAMILY USE.

AN IDEAL REMEDY FOR COUGHS, SORE THROAT, CATARRH, WEAK CHEST.

After having made a special study of the treatment of the throat and lungs for twenty years, Prof. D. Jackson states that in his opinion no preparation for general family use is so efficient, so healing so certain to cure as Catarrhazone.

As his reason for making this claim for Catarrhazone, Dr. Jackson says:—

"Catarrhazone is free from opium. The patient can breathe its rich, balsamic fumes direct to the diseased spot."

"It is a remedy that treats and cures causes—prevents disease spreading. Reaches the innermost recesses of the throat, nose, bronchial tubes and lungs."

"Alleviates chest soreness. Stops coughing instantly. Prevents bronchial irritations. Relieves clogged nostrils. Cures sniffling and nasal catarrh. Prevents La Grippe."

"Has proven itself a cure for weak lungs, loss of voice, speakers' sore throat, asthma, bronchitis, catarrh, coughs, colds, and Winter Ills."

Catarrhazone is unquestionably the world's greatest breathable cold, cough and catarrh medicine, and being free from all drowsy drugs, entirely safe for children and old folks; it makes an ideal family remedy. Recommended by the medical profession, and sold by all reliable dealers. Beware of imitations; get "Catarrhazone" only; large size last two months, and is guaranteed, price $1; smaller sizes 35c. and 50c. By mail from the Catarrhazone Company, Kingston, Ont.
