S. MILLEY

Stop That Knocking at the Door.

Yes I agree most heartily With "Sufferer" indeed, And many a weary wife has said "Tis just the boon we need." When Councillors drop in this week 'Bout other things to fuss, 'We'll ask them kindly, "Sufferer," To do this thing for us.

Men will come with trout and turnips, Splits and salmon, to the door; Women—eggs, whorts, yarn and hobbane, Mitts and sundries in galore, And your nerves are wrecked by jangling Of the knocker and the bell, Or their knuckles on the panels, Till you wish them — wish them well!

Yes, the postman makes a racket—"Willie" hits his level best— But we love to see the postman He's an ever welcome guest; But to be kept in a worry Answering never ceasing knocks When your in a beastly hurry, Baking pies or washing frocks.

Its exasperating truly, And the sooner it shall cease The sooner shall begin with me The reign of perfect peace; For I'm worn from off my legs, sir, And I'm nearly broken down From perpetual door banging When Aunt Polly comes to town.

Now, I do not blame Aunt Polly, The matrons or the men Who bring us cream and strawberries Potatoes, new, but then There could be some improvement On the way in which 'tis done, So's not to keep us women kind Forever on the run.

Let them cry their wares in rythm, It shall add another charm To the glory of the morning, And the products of the farm; Then the fruits from marsh and thicket, When they reach the city street Shall not make us housewives wicked Or complain of tired feet.

MRS. AZ.

At Cochrane St. Church

The Rev. J. K. Curtis, B.A., occupied the pulpit at Cochrane St. Methodist Church yesterday morning. His sermon on "The heavens declare the glory of God" was indeed a master piece. The pastor, Rev. F. R. Matthews, B.A., conducted the exercises of the evening service. The Rev. Mr. Bell, of the Minnesota Conference preached acceptably from the words "Our Father who art in Heaven." The offering at both services was in aid of the Deaconess work of the church.

to appropriate the enthusiastic greetings showered upon her. Even Queen Alexandra's daughters display this delicate sentiment.

The late King was much attached to his daughter-in-law. He admired her commonsense, the result of a perfect balance of head and heart. Her quiet manner and equable spirits also pleased His Majesty; and his affection for her children still further endeared to her a monarch who was so much beloved by all his children.

British Interests.

With the exception of Princess Charles of Denmark, there is no member of the royal family so patriotic as Queen Mary. She has always taken the deepest and most practical interest in the welfare of British industries and manufacturers—a course that was very near her mother's heart. All her gowns are, as far as possible, made of British materials, by her express desire. Sir Thomas Wardle once told her, on one occasion, her "pouchoir was piled high with English silks and a few rolls of foreign; Sir Thomas, as president of the British Silk Association, showing her how to distinguish between pure English silk and foreign stiffened with tin.

It has been said that if one knows what dresses a woman wears, one may know what she is. There is truth in this. The Queen's dresses are characterised by the perfect neatness that is apparent in all she does; but there is no sacrifice of the beautiful to this quality. The materials are always appropriate to the occasion. Her carriage is admirable; erect without stiffness, with a poise of the head that is dignified without being haughty.

Badly Hurt In Thresher

Blood poison set in—Great suffering—Cure effected by DR. A.W. CHASE'S OINTMENT. Mrs. C. Hopkins, St. George, Ont., writes: "I feel like shouting the praises of Dr. Chase's Ointment. While threshing grain, my son got badly hurt. One of the men who was pitching sheaves, missed the sheaf and ran the prongs of the fork into my son's leg. He did not take much notice of it and in a day or two it got sore and very itchy and blood poison set in. We did everything for it but it would heal one place and break out at another and kept on this way for three months. Finally I thought of Dr. Chase's Ointment and in a week's time we noticed a wonderful change. By the use of three boxes he was completely cured and the wounds healed up. There has not been a sign of a spot on him since."

Wherever there is itching or irritation of the skin or a sore that refuses to heal you can apply Dr. Chase's Ointment with every assurance that the results will be prompt and satisfactory. 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Ed. Mason, Bates & Co., Toronto. Write for free copy Dr. Chase's Recipes.

Why Are Cramps Like Burglars?

They come unexpectedly. Indigestion, bad water, errors of diet—these excite very unpleasant consequences. When the trouble comes you want relief and want it quickly. No remedy on earth in attacks of this sort, acts with the rapidity that Nerviline at ways affords. You will say, as thousands have said, when you test it—it is a wonder. Yet, when you consider the strength of Nerviline, its remarkable power over pain, its control of spasm and cramp, an show prompt effective, and permanently it cures, no praise can be too great. Not a pair or ache in any part of the body you cannot relieve by Nerviline—colds tightness of the chest, neuralgia, and sciatic pains all yield quickly to Nerviline. A thousand dollars could not buy you greater assurance of safety or more positive immunity from pain than you can get from a 50-cent bottle of Nerviline. It will cure the pains and aches of the whole family and keep the doctor bill small—try Nerviline.

M. G. B. Racer.

Mr. Bob Sexton began work to-day on the new race boat for the Methodist Guards. She will be a splendid and almost a fac simile of the R. N. Co's. Red Lion. She will be 50 feet long, made of the best material, and Mr. Sexton will have her in the water about the latter part of July. With the advent of fine weather most of the crews for this season's Regatta will be shaping themselves for our derby day, and next week will see pretty nearly all the practice boats on the lake or harbor being used by the oarsmen.

At the R. C. Cathedral.

Rev. Fr. Kelly occupied the pulpit at the R. C. Cathedral at Vespers last night and preached a sermon from St. Matthew—"The eye hath not seen, the ear hath not heard, nor hath it entered into the heart of man to conceive the happiness which God has in store for those who love Him."

TEN ARRESTED.—Saturday evening ten were arrested for drunkenness and taken to the lockup. Three were released yesterday morning on paying a deposit.

The King's Consort.

HER MAJESTY QUEEN MARY.

(Written for London 'Leader' by One Who Knows Her.)

Her Majesty Queen Mary is already a popular personality, and, because of it she starts her new life as Queen under the happiest auspices. Her large heart is as full of generous, kindly feeling as her mother's was—the mother whose memory has always been a potent force in the daughter's life. No trouble is too great for Queen Mary to take in order to relieve suffering or show practical sympathy with those who need it.

Her happy girlhood, when she was an additional element of brightness in the home irradiated by the sunny temperament of Princess Mary Adelaide, Duchess of Teck, and by the genial bonhomie of the late Duke, might have been regarded as a poor preparation for her present position; but the Duchess was a woman of sympathies too keen to allow her daughter to grow up without some glimpses of the sad side of life. From childhood to womanhood the Queen was always associated with those expeditions of charity and loving kindness in which her mother softened the ache of compassion in her own heart while she relieved the suffering that had excited it.

As an instance of the practical thoroughness with which the Queen always carries out her deeds of kindness, take her care on the occasion of the luncheon given to poor school-children by herself and the then Prince of Wales in celebration of the late King Edward's coronation. Her comprehension of what children enjoy was shown when, instead of walking over from York House, the Prince and herself, with two of their children, drove over and appeared in the garden in a magnificent carriage. She knew how its splendor and that of the gorgeously-liveried servants would enhance the occasion by appealing directly to the imagination of the children.

To see Queen Mary, with a large white apron, tied over her dress, sitting for hours, day after day, sorting and arranging, folding and ticketing the thousands of garments sent in to her as president of the London Needlework Guild, was to realize to perfection one side of her character; her conscientious industry and her dainty methodical neatness. Like the daughters of Queen Victoria, our new Queen was brought up in all thoughtful house-wifely ways.

Queenly Courtesies.

The Queen won golden opinions from all sorts of people on her tour round the world. If, as has been said, consideration for others sums up the whole law of good manners, then Queen Mary possesses them in a very high degree. Her thoughtful kindness made itself apparent in a hundred ways during the tour. It was then possible for her to take the initiative in such minor matters as frequently affect the comfort of many. It was noticed, too, that the stiffness and apparent ungeniality of her bows and smiles had completely disappeared, giving place to a bright look and much cordiality of manner.

To anyone who thinks the reason for her restraint at home is apparent enough. The Queen has generally been seen in public with Queen Alexandra. Even in the procession through London after the tour this was the arrangement; and so great is the popularity of Queen Alexandra that anyone sharing her carriage experiences a disinclination to appear Nutritive Hypophosphites.

When a person feels "blue"—"all tired out"—"doesn't feel the doing anything"—cannot concentrate his mind on his work—feels weak mentally and physically—doubts his powers—complains of poor appetite and sleeplessness—suffers from headaches—then his nervous system is run-down and demands a good up-building tonic. Nervous exhaustion is a modern disease, caused by too close attention to business, overwork, worry, devotion to trying family cares overstudy, etc.

Nutritive Hypophosphites forms the best nerve and brain food known, and have restored thousands of sufferers to health. Large bottle, $1.00.

Agricultural Matters.

Editor Evening Telegram: Dear Editor,—I wish to make a few remarks anent the improvement of cattle portion of the Government's agricultural, &c., scheme at present in operation—and not in an uncharitable or petty party spirit, but simply as a utilitarian necessity. It is in regard to the bulls distributed in the various localities, and as follows: These animals should not be allowed to run at large in the various settlements, but should be kept or whoever applies for them in an enclosed space sufficiently large to afford grazing and the exercise necessary for keeping up its condition, and to minimize the risk of injury to men, women and children, who may otherwise meet with injury from one of those animals, and also to prevent damage and consequent quarrels and possible litigation over broken fences and damaged crops.

This rule should be proclaimed as a hard and fast one, applicable in every case and penalized for infraction—not left to be decided by some selfish, unscrupulous individual, who himself being served is regardless of the welfare of his fellowmen. It also ensures a better service, enables statistical information to be collected, and thus prove the value and benefit of this portion of the policy adopted—which ought to prove of inestimable benefit in the improvement of stock. Strict rules should be enforced as to the feeding of said bulls to ensure their being kept in A1 condition for the purposes of which they are designed, and the results will soon be noted. A bull roaming at large can easily be injured, bogged or crippled, and this in addition to the loss of a valuable animal, the cows of the whole settlement be left in a poor state. These are not imaginary dangers but very real, and attention of the Agricultural Society should at once be directed to the matter of prevention. Yours very truly, SELBY.

P.S.—More than one applicant for a bull was under the impression that he might employ its leisure moments as a draught animal, etc. S. Ask for Minard's and take no other.
