WATFORD, FEB. 22, 1907.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Windsor Record protests against the duty on early spring vegetables, whereby a few local growers are protected at the expense of the large body of consumers. After a long winter diet the advent of early vegetables is eagerly looked for and it is unfair that the public should be called upon to pay an exorbitant price for a necessity. A time limit should be sufficient protection for home

The Alberta provincial government porposes to inaugurate a government telephone service covering the remotest parts of the province. This is a forward movement that means much for the future of the West. The dreary loneliness of life in a country where neighbors are miles apart would be greatly relieved by a 1 efficient telephone service. Provided with ordinary comforts and placed in touch with the populous centres will reconcile settlers to the hardships incident to a new country, make life worth living, and enhance the value of property at the same time.

Death has been levying a heavy toll in many of the communities in western Ontario of late. Every paper you pick up cont ins a long list of those who have passed from life. This season of the year is particularly trying on the aged and weak, and grip and deadly pneumonia number many victims. Disease and death continue their destructive work despite advanced medical science and better knowledge of the rules of correct living. It was so from the beginning, and will continue to the end.

Dealers cannot recall the time when eggs have commanded so high a price for a prolonged period. Should present prices continue it is claimed that Americ in eggs can be brought in at a profit, as large quantities will be released from storage for consumption on the advent of warm weather. It goes to show that egg production is one of our most profitable lines, and those who give the business the attention and care now devoted to less renumerative pursuits will be well rewarded for their trouble. There is no better revenue producer on the fram, investment considered, then the hen. Use her well and she will feather your nest as well as her own.

The parting of the ways has about are rived for Canada's great winter game of hockey. The O. H. A. has put up a vig-orous fight for years against the encroachment of the professional element, but it has gradually become so strong that there is not a team in the first division that could stand the searchlight. Players are not devoting their entire time and risking life and limb during the season for the sake of applause from the galleries. They are out for the money and are getting it in one form or another Next season we may look for professional hockey in the larger centres, with a corresponding decline in interest in the small towns.

On Monday next nominations will be neld in the Town Hall to select a canditate to fill the position of Reeve made examt by the death of the late Thos. Brandon. There are several aspirants for the office, but there is a feeling that the matter should be arranged without putting the Municipality to the expense of an election. The available candidates are said to be Messrs. Campbell, Laird, Crawford, Auld, Pike and Blaine.

It was with sincere regret that many old friends and neighbors learned of the death of Miss Mary Anderson, daughter of Mr. Robert Anderson, Con 2, N. E.R., which took place on Tuesday aftermoon after a brief illness, pneumonia being the cause of death. Deceased was born in Goulburn, Carleton Co., sixty-two years ago, and came to Warwick with the family when nine years of age, and continually resided here up to her death. She will be greatly missed in the community where she was loved and respected for her kindness of heart and true Christian character. She was ever ready and willing to responp to any calls for assistance in times of sickness and sorrow, and her bright cheerful disposition and self-sacrificing spirit will long be remembeaed by those whose troubles and afflictions she helped to lighten. A faithful worker in Bethel Church, of which she was a consistent member, she also found opportunity to assist her neighboring church, Zion, and the hospitable Anderson home was headquarters for preachers and church workers of all denominations. Miss Anderson's life was full of good deeds, conscientiously performed, and she now enters upon her reward. Much sympathy is felt for the venerable father, now in his 87th year, who is deprived of a companion and comforter in the sunset of life. One sister, Mrs. P. McRorie, of Bruce Mines, and three brothers, John, Peter and James, survive. The funeral takes place to Bethel cemetery at 2 p. m. on Friday. Service at the church conducted by the Rev. Mr. Hoskings.
