THE HOUSEHOLD

A MUSTARD POULTICE.

It Made a Lot of Trouble and Didn't Cure the Cold.

Lord Carrington used to be a great practical joker, but he was once the victim of his own reputation. According to the Dundee Advertiser, he was at a hotel in Cape Town. In the same hotel were a young couple, and, the husband having a bad cold, the wife left her room and obtained for him the solace of a mustard poultice. She left him asleep, thinking she knew her way, descended the stairs and, procuring a particularly violent concoction, made her way back to her room. But doors are much alike in hotels, and, seeing one ajar, as she had left her own, she entered. Creeping quietly to the bedside, she saw, as she thought, the form of her sleeping lord and master. Hastily bending over him, she placed the fatal irritant upon his chest.

No sooner had she done so than a movement of the sleeper revealed to her horror, that she had made a terrible mistake. Too frightened to recapture the incriminating poultice, she fled from the room and, rushing down the passage, discovered her own door and boiled herself in it. It was but a minute, and the storm broke. The mustard poultice had been placed on the chest of the elderly governor general. The explosion of his wrath, his howls of rage as the mustard did its work, brought servants and manager to his bedside.

The situation did not permit of any explanation. Furious with indignation, he declared himself the victim of a gross joke, and the efforts of the matroning every emergency demanding unusual energy, obstinacy and courage they came into play.

In every conflict with the world, the fresh and the devil—as such things are understood in pithecol society—the temporal and masseter muscles are the chief arbiters of war. To become a great and powerful anthropoid it is absolutely and brutally necessary to have a large and strong jaw, to give them at least a fair chance of doing good leverage to the muscles. That for an im-ense epoch our prehuman ancestors achieved success in life in like manner is as clear as the print of "Maga-

" to those who have learned to read nature's handwriting.

Since those days of true Arcadian simplicity our life has become bewil-deringly complex and our methods for settling social disputes have become generally for the better. But here, as in so many other instances, the habits of a past age have left an indelible press on the nervous system—Blackwood's Magazine.

Her Namesake.

When Mrs. Lombard heard that the baby of her former cook had been named for her she began to rattle with many jingling bells and went to see her namesake.

"Why, Bridget," she said to the late Mrs. Leahy, now Mrs. O'Sullivan, "I thought you said the baby was named for me. My name is Hannah, and you are calling the baby Celestine."

"Celestine? No, ma'am," said Mrs.

O'Sullivan hastily. "The 'L' is for Lombard, and Celestine is just a kind of a name to describe you, ma'am.

There isn't any Hannah to your looks,

Mrs. Lombard; any woman would tell you that."—Youth's Companion.

A Remarkable Fortress.

In the northern part of Madagascar is the most remarkable natural fortress in the world. It is occupied by a wild tribe who call themselves the people of the rocks. The fortress is a lofty and precipitous rock of enormous size,

1,000 feet high and eight square miles in area. Its sides are so steep that it cannot be climbed without artificial means. Within it is hollow, and the only entrance is by a subterranean passage.

Origins of the Sidesaddle.

The use of the sidesaddle for women rides is traced to the time of Anne of Bohemia, eldest daughter of the emperor of Germany, who married Richard II. of England. Previous to this date all Englishwomen bestrode their horses man fashion, but on account of a deformity this German bride was forced to use a sidesaddle, and the custom became general.

A Fine Pew Canastolium.

Bronson Alcott, the Concord philosopher, once made a strong and almost unanswerable plea for canastolium. "If you are going to eat meat at all," argued the Yankee Plato, "why not eat the best?"

The Way to Get a Chance.

It may be to the credit of mankind, but in this world no man is "giving" a chance. If he wants a chance he has to throw it down and sit on it himself.

Beware of looking at sin, for at each view it is apt to become better looking.
