

STEEL BARB WIRE

is adopted by railroads, stock raisers and farmers on account of its SUPERIOR STYLE OF BARB, which passes between the two wires, then wound around both, and afterwards galvanized by a PATENT PROCESS, which prevents the barbs from rusting, and consequently when an animal is punctured it will heal quickly and not fester as is the case with rusty and ragged barbs.

For bread hash chop any kinds of cold meats fine, scald and add twice as much dry bread, and butter, salt, pepper and sweet cream; mix thoroughly and warm up well.

FOR bread omelet put a cupful of bread crumbs into a saucepan, with about as much cream, salt, pepper and a very little nutmer. Let stand until the bread has absorbed all the cream, then break six eggs into it, and beat together; turn into a pan, with a little melted butter, and fry like other omelets.

An extraordinary fallacy is the dread of the night air. What air can we breathe at night but night air? The choice is between pure night air from without and foul air from with in. Most people prefer the latter—an unaccountable choice. What will they say if it is proved to be true that fully one-half of all the diseases we suffer from are occasioned by diseases we suffer from are occasioned by people sleeping with their windows shut? An opened window, most nights in the year, ean never hurt anyone. ean never hurt anyone. In great cities, rair is often the best and purest air to be air is often the best and purest air to be had in the twenty-four hours. I could better understand shutting the windows is town during the day than during the night, for the sake of the sick. The absence of smoke, the quiet, all tend to mak the night the best time for airing the patient. One of our highest medical authorities on consumption and climate has told me that the air in London in never so good as after ten o'clock as and climated on inches of the control of the contro don in never so good as after kan o'clock at pint. Always air you room, then from the outside air, if possible. Windows at made to open, doors are made to shut—a truth which seems extremely difficult of apprehension.

THERE are the remains of a joint of underdone mutton in the house; one woman will cut this meat up into slices and put it into a saucepan with the materials for making the hash, and boil all together till done. result is that the meat is cooked twice, the eather, and people say that the meat off the bone in nice slices, flour meat, sprinkle with a little pepper and salt, and set aside. The bones she will then bones in nice slices, flour meat, sprinkle with a little pepper and salt, and set aside. The bones she will then for in fat the bone in nice slices, flour meat, sprinkle with a little pepper and salt, and set aside. The bones she will then fry in fat the flow of the proper makes and boil in water for two hours in a nice clean saucepan. The vegentables and seasoning she will then fry in fat or butter till they are cooked fairly and at the fragments of bone (so that people can eat the hash without fracturing their teeth) from the slices of meat. The whole will then be simmered for ten minutes, so as to warm the meat through and carry the cooking of the underdone meat up to oppore point. Meanwhile some sippets of to warm the made ready to set round the dish toward the hash is poured. Here by attention to first principles the remains of obeing spoiled for food and made disagreeable, are converted into a wholesome and delicious dish. are converted into a wholesome and delicious

THE following directions for the care of the teeth have been issued by the Medical Committee of the National Dental Hospital ondon. The teeth should be cleaned at least the Committee of the National Dental Hospital Andreas Condon. The teeth should be cleaned at least one a day, the best time being night—the last being. For this purpose use a soft brush, on which take a little soap, and then some prepared chalk, brushing up and down and prepared chalk, brushing up and down and across. There is rarely any objection to the friction causing the gum to bleed slightly. Avoid all rough usage if the teeth, such as cracking nuts, bitting hread, etc., as by so doing even good, sould teeth may be injured. When decay is fire observed, advice should at once be sough.
