THE LIVING AGE

The magazine will be to him a weekly reminder of your regard. Incidentally, it will convey to him the choicest and most important articles reprinted without abridgment from more than thirty of the best English reviews, magazines, and literary journals, ranging all the way from the quarterlies to Punch, and including every department of human interest.

The magazine prints the best fiction,—serials and short stories; the best essays, the best literary criticism; the best travel articles; the best verse; the ablest discussions of public affairs.

With the whole range of current English periodicals to select from, it is able to present more articles which an intelligent reader would rather not miss than any other single magazine.

The year's numbers contain more than 3,300 pages, or twice as much as one of the four-dollar magazines. The magazine is no experiment. It has ministered to a cultivated constituency for more than 63 years. Known as "Littell's," its name is a household word. It was never fresher, more timely, wider in its scope, or more nearly indispensable than now to intelligent readers.

New subscribers for 1908 will receive free the remaining numbers of 1907 from the date on which their subscriptions reach the publishers.

TERMS: Six dollars a year; 3-months' trial subscription, $1.00.
