Industrial Co-operation with Developing Countries

This program of the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) provides financial support to Canadian firms in their efforts to establish long-term business relationships with counterparts in developing countries through mechanisms such as joint ventures, direct investment, management contracts, licensing agreements and technical assistance. Contributions are available for starter or exploratory studies, which provide preliminary analysis of possible ventures. Viability studies to establish detailed economic, commercial and legal analyses of potential projects are eligible for larger contributions.

The Canadian Project Preparation Facility (CPPF) is directed more toward the consulting community, with the aim of getting Canadian companies in "on the ground floor" of projects to be financed by multilateral development institutions. Capital project pre-feasibility studies are eligible for support under the CPPF.

The Canadian Technology Transfer Facility (CTTF) enables Canadian firms to test and adapt their technology in developing countries as a means of establishing long-term co-operation with developing country counterparts.
