Sir Arthur Currie,
Principal's Office,
McGill University,
Montreal, P.Q.

My dear Sir Arthur:

A number of surgeons, some fifty or sixty, from Brooklyn, New York, are meeting here next Wednesday, the 22nd, for one day of clinical demonstrations. They represent the Brooklyn-Long Island Chapter of the American College of Surgeons.

They are having their dinner at the Windsor Hotel the same evening, and have asked me to communicate to you an invitation, with the added hope that you would be able to say a few words to them. They are also inviting a certain number of those of us from whom they will be receiving clinics during the day. I am not personally acquainted with any of these gentlemen, unless possibly one or two, and I think I should say, between ourselves, that you may feel perfectly free to decline the invitation. The group consists of surgeons in Brooklyn and Long Island, and they are coming here self-invited, although, of course, we medical men are prepared to give them a good welcome.

With all kind regards,

Yours sincerely,

Edward Archibald.
