condon papers with the largest circu-ations are printing only four pages, and foreign news is almost ignored. Premier Llöyd George and the repre-entatives of the transport workers and allway men did not reach a definite con-lusion at their conference this even-us. It was officially announced that he conference would be resumed Thurs-

The impression was gained from the little the delegates were willing to say that progress was made and the outlook was more hopeful.

After adjournment of the conference, James Henry Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, said:

"The public will get some satisfaction in knowing that we have come together again. Having come together it is the duty of both sides to see that we don't break away again until a settlement. That is the spirit in which we are here."

Mr. Thomas refused to answer questions regarding the prospect of work being resumed, or to give any other information.

When the conference was adjourned the delegates went to a meeting of the transport workers and reported that they again would confer with Premier Lloyd George at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. The meeting of the transport workers therepon adjourned until 2 o'clock Thursday effections.

day afternoon.

Men Should Resume Work.

Premier Lloyd George today informed the deputation of transport workers who called upon him as intermediaries in the railroad strike, that it was impracticable to continue negotiations until the railroad men resumed work.

Hopes had earlier been entertained that a compromise ending the strike might be reached.

a compromise ending the strike might be reached.

After the failure of the conference setween the deputation of transport workers and Prime Minister Lloyd George and his colleagues this afternoon, it was announced that the same deputation of transport workers accompanied by the executive officials of the national union of railway men would meet the prime minister at 8.45 p.m.

The following official statement relative to the conference was issued at seven o clock this evening:

"Replying to a question from Mr. Gostling (president of the Transport Workers' Federation), the premier said; Should Be No Ambiguity.

"I am ready to receive the executive of the National Union of Railwaymen and hear what they have to say, but I am sure you will agree that nothing 8 to be gained by ambiguity; more especially as there has been a deal of misunderstanding already. I want, therefore, to make it quite clear that in the government's opinion it, would be quite impracticable to continue negotiations until work is resumed.

"Apart from other considerations, the ministers who would be continue to continue the continue to continue the continue to continue the continue to continue the continue to continue to continue to continue the continue to continue to continue to continue the continue to continue to continue the continue to continue the continue to continue the continue to continue the continue to the co

"Apart from other considerations, the ministers who would be concerned in the negotiations could not possibly attempt to deal with the questions involved while their whole energy was devoted, as it must necessarily be, to improvising means for carrying on the life of the ration." When the delegates left Downing Street they declined to make any statement. They proceeded to Unity House and went into conference with the executive committee of the National Union of Rail-waymen.

Conditions Improved.

While the delegates of the transport federation were assembling today to decide whether the 325,000 workers they represented should go out in sympathy with the striking railread men of Great Britain, the government's official report on the situation, issued at noon, announced a continued improvement in actual conditions.

The train service had been bettered

The train service had been bettered, the communique asserted, more than 800 trains having been run yesterday, inclusive of those in operation in the subway service. Additional railroad men had returned to work, it was declared.

"Arrangements have been made to replace the bus men and the tramway men should they strike," the statement announced. It was added that the movement of food was proceeding remarkably well.

Cooksville, Oct. 1—Ideal weather and a record number of entries in all classes of live stock made the fall fair, held in the agricultural grounds today, the most successful in the annals of the society. Over three thousand people from all over the county passed thru the gates and farmer visitors enjoyed the yearly renewal of acquaintances. Several of the politicians who will contest seats in the coming election were taking advantage of the occasion to meet personally many of their constituents. During the afterpoon a program of music was repdered by the band of the 110th Irish Battalion.

Blong Hemestead Raplow Creakers.

To make way for three modern, up-to-date stores and apartment houses, the Blong homestead, at 183 Danforth avenue, is now being pulled down. The old two-store was one of the blodest, if not the oldest, houses in Danforth, and was erected by Henry Blong, a native of Ireland, 190 years ago, who established a slaughter house and butcher store and occupied the upper rooms with his wife and family. The house was so solidly constructed that the wrecking firm took two weeks to level the building for the ground. The timbers were mortised and doweled and the plates were to the ground. The timbers were 2 in. x 6 in. Split lathes were used and much of the timber was hewn.

The last occupant of the house was Mrs. Ruth Beesley, herbalist, who lived there for 25 years, until her death, which occurred last October.

The descendants of the Blong family still reside in the city.
