Baron Tweedmouth.

Baron Tweedmouth, former Parliamentary Secretary to the Treasury, speaking at Edinburgh, said: "The public mind has not been so moved since the news of the dreadful events of the Indian Mutiny. We unfortunately are warring with a nation of the same stock and religion as ourselves. At this crisis all hearts go out to the brave Boers and to the small British army in Natal which, against fearful odds, has performed magnificent feats of valor. It is not the time to call our opponents names or to utter cries of vengeance, but to back up Her Majesty's Ministers, who have a fearful—yes, and awful—responsibility upon their shoulders."

The Earl of Carrington, Liberal, speaking at Buckingham, gave expression to virtually the same convictions.

The Earl of Carrington, Liberal, speaking at Buckingham, gave expression to virtually the same convictions.

Lonsdale Knows William.

The Earl of Lonsdale, Honorary Colonel of the 3rd Battalion Border Regiment, at a banquet given this evening at White Haven, declared his confidence in General Sir George White, the British commander in Natal, and predicted a grand review in Pretoria next March. He hoped to go to the front himself soon with some of his Cumberland and Westmoreland youmanry. Referring to Emperor William's celebrated telegram to President Kruger at the time of the fallure of the Jameson Raid, Lord Lonsdale said: "If His Majesty's despatch had been rightly understood, it would have had a totally different effect. It was sent with a view of allaying two sires. It was not antagonistic to Great Britain. I have pleasure to know the views of the German Emperor, and they are in accordance with the views of England."

The last mentioned were attached to the squadron of the 18th Hussars, who were entrapped by the Boers after the battle of Gleace. They were undoubtedly captured with the Hussars.

The British nerve was momentarily shaken by General White's use of the word "capitulate" in his first telegram; but now that is is known that the Gloucesters and Fusiliers fought, back to the wall, against overwhelming odds and upheld the best traditions of the British army, the tension has been relieved, since there is no longer ground to dread that the loss of life and men was accompanied by dishonor.

cupy a defensive position, he would lave retraced his steps to Ladysmith when he suffered the fatal loss of his ammunition.

Number of British Losses.

Apart from General White's statement that the losses are very numerous, there is nothing to indicate the extent of them except a vague report to the effect that the soldier who brought the news to Ladysmith said the British dead and wounded were lying in heaps and that hundreds needed doctors. This is not borne out by the long list of captured officers. The concluding sentence of General White's despatch, relative to the safety of Ladysmith, was received here with a certain reserve, in view of the fact that similar official assurances were given recently at Dundee and Glencoe, and there is intense anxiety for further news of the reported renewed attack, which is not mentioned in the official despatches.

What the Calamity Has Shown. The calamity has served to show the British who are their friends. The papers comment on the splendid reserve of patriotism existing in the far-away colonies and the "deep-seated feeling of friendship and sympathy of the great kindred nation across the Atlantic."

How The Standard Put It. The Standard sums up the feeling of the nation, saying: "From the United States and our colonies alone we hear the voice of friendly sorrow and encouragement. But that suffices. All others are welcome to congratulate themselves over the misfortunes of Great Britain."

The War Office has made a welcome concession to the public desire for news. Hereafter every postoffice will be open Sunday morning and will post copies of all telegrams received by the War Office up to 1 a.m. Sunday.

The details to-day show the catastrophe in a brighter aspect. The full battalions were not engaged, and, therefore, the list of prisoners is materially reduced. While the disaster now appears to have been not so much the consequence of defects in the plan of action as to a misfortune, whereby the column was deprived of its ammunition, still, it seems incomprehensible why the plight of the luckless column was not known at headquarters, as the scene of the samman of twenty, although I am twice that age.
