JIMMY COON STORIES

JIMMY COON WANTS MORE CLOTHES.

Jimmy Coon got very cross because he didn't have more clothes. It happened in this way: Timmy Hare puts on lots of style. At one time Timmy has on a handsome brown suit. At another time he has on a very gay suit; it is spotted all over, and you might call it the new polka dot style. And then you meet him again and he wears a beautiful suit as white as snow. And again he appears with a polka dot suit. Now, this made Jimmy Coon very envious, and he said to his wife: "Carrie, I must have more suits of clothes. I must be in style like Timmy Hare. Timmy is a successful man because he has so many fancy suits. And I have only one suit to my name, and that has to last me a whole year."

Now, this talk made Carrie Coon very sad indeed, for she was a hard-working wife, and she had to be very careful not to waste anything so that she and Jimmy could afford to run their home.

And she answered, "Oh, Jimmy, do you think you can afford more clothes when it takes so much money to keep house? I am so careful not to waste, yet we never have anything over."

And Jimmy began to pout, and act very cross. And Jimmy's wife said, "Jimmy, I'll tell you what I think about Timmy Hare's four suits of pretty clothes which he has every year. Timmy Hare hasn't much sense, and that's the way with people who have too many suits of clothes. Jimmy has no gumption, and he can't take care of himself very well, so Mother Nature gives him more changes of clothes to fool his many enemies."

"How's that, I'd like to know," whined the complaining Jimmy.

"Now, you know that Mother Nature has been very kind and good to you," continued Carrie Coon. "Mother Nature has given you the wonderful skill to climb trees, and to make for yourself lovely and safe hiding-places inside the hollow trees, so that your enemies can't find you."

And Jimmy began to look happier, and he smiled, as his sensible little wife went on. "Now, Timmy is rather stupid in his mind, like most people who have too many suits. So Mother Nature gives him four suits of clothes each year just to save his stupid skin. He has a brown suit for summer, a spotted suit for fall, a white suit for winter, and a striped suit for spring. And with all his four suits he is a little silly."

"Oh, I think you are right," said Jimmy. "We all know that Timmy hasn't sense enough to come in when it rains. Why, when it pours Timmy just crouches under the drooping boughs of a hemlock tree, and shivers in the cold and snow, and he hasn't sense enough to build a nice house for his winter home. I suppose all people are that way who have too many clothes."

Tomorrow: Jimmy Coon Sees the Farmer Boy Go Hunting.

With all his four suits he is a little silly.

HOME CANNING

Fruit Butters.

Fruit butters may be made from good sound fruits or the sound portions of fruits which are wormy or spotted. Wash, pare and remove seeds if there are any. Cover with water and cook 3 or 4 hours at a low temperature, stirring often, until the mixture is of the consistency of thick apple sauce. Add sugar to taste when the boiling is two-thirds done. Spices may be added to suit the taste when the boiling is completed. If the pulp is coarse it should be put through a wire sieve or colander. Pour the butter into sterilized jars, put on rubber and cover and adjust top ball. Put into a container having a cover and so of water and sterilize quart jar or smaller jar 5 minutes after the steam begins to escape. Remove push snap in place and cool.

Apple Butter With Cider.

Four quart jars of sterilized cider should be boiled down to 2 quarts. To this add 4 quarts of apples peeled and cut in small pieces. If the texture of the apples is coarse they should be boiled and put through a strainer before being added to the cider. Boil the mixture until the cider does not separate from the pulp. When two-thirds done add one pound of sugar. One-half teaspoonful each of cinnamon, allspice and cloves may be added. Pour into sterilized jars and sterilize 5 minutes in steam.

Apple and Pear Butter may be made by following the directions for apple butter with cider, but omitting the cider.

Peach Butter.

Dip peaches in boiling water long enough to loosen the skins. Dip in cold water, peel and stone them. Mash and cook them without adding any water. Add half as much sugar as pulp and cook until thick. Pour into sterilized jars and sterilize 5 minutes in steam.

Plum butter may be made following the directions for peach butter.

Apple Butter With Grape Juice.

To every 4 quarts of strained apple sauce add 1 pint of grape juice, 1 cup of brown sugar and ¼ teaspoonful of salt. Cook slowly, stirring often, until of the desired thickness. When done stir in 1 teaspoonful of cinnamon, pack in hot jars and sterilize 5 minutes in steam.

Dried Peach Butter.

Soak dried peaches over night. Cook slowly until tender. To each 2 pounds of dried peaches add 1 quart of canned peaches and 1½ pounds of sugar. If a fine texture is desired, strain the pulp through a colander. Cook slowly, stirring often, until thick. Pack in hot jars and sterilize 5 minutes in steam.

Springbank was one huge picnic-ground yesterday afternoon, when at least thirteen or fourteen different churches or societies met there to be jolly and eat. On the green situated just before the car approaches the station a huge banner had been raised, and on it the words, "Order of the Eastern Star and Aberdeen Mothers' Club Spend Yesterday at Springbank."
