LORD DERBY DECIDES

Single Men Have Not Responded Satisfactorily to Call to

ANALYSIS DISAPPOINTS

Compilation of Lists Loosely Carried Out and Inquiry is Suggested.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—The operation of the government's recruiting plan was handicapped and dolayed by the impossibility of obtaining a sufficient number of medical examiners and experienced clerks, says Lord Derby in a report apswering criticism of inadequate arrangements during the abnormal flow of recruits at the eleventh bour. Honce while gross numbers are available up to the end of the period, Dec. 11, details of groups are forthcoming only up to Nov. 30 before the tremendous rush began.

Number Available

In the latter days of the canvass, says Lord Derby, especially in country districts, the starred lists proved unsatisfactory and recruits were incorrectly described. This will call for further investigation.

The total number of men ready to bear arms obtained from enlistments for the period between Oct. 23 and Dec. 15, is estimated in Lord Derby's report at 1,016,493. After deductions from the total number of attested men of the various classes indispensable for civil occupations the numbers available for military service are 343,393 single men and 487,676 married.

Adding those who enlisted for immediate service gives a total ready to bear arms of 146,386 single and 600,107 married.

Courage Not Lacking. In concluding his report to Earl Kitchener, dated Dec. 12, Lord Derby

"The canvass shows very distinctly that it is not want of courage that is keeping men back, nor is there the slightest sign but that the country as a whole is determined to support the prime minister in his pledge made at the Guildhall in November, 1914 (regarding the calling out of married men), as it was when that pledge was men), as it was when that pledge was men, as under the determination to see the war dence of determination to see the war thru to a successful conclusion."

satisfactory as I could have wished. Owing to the great rush of recruits it was impossible in many cases to have more than the most perfunctory medical examination, and the number of men who will be rejected when the various groups are called up and subjected to proper examination must be very large; the number of men actually examined, both starred and unstarred, being $25,455."

The ear. points out also that many must be deducted as the sole support of dependent relatives. He says there are 651,160 unstarred single men unaccounted for.

Where System Failed.

"This is far from being a negligible quantity," the report continues, "and under the circumstances I am vory distinctly of the opinion that in order to redeem the pledge it will not be possible to hold married men to their attestation unless and until the services of single men have been obtained by other means, the present system having falled to bring them to the colors."

The Ulster members have adopted a resolution framed by Sir Edward Carson denouncing the proposal to omit Ireland as "an insult and humiliation to the loyal and patriotic population and the abandonment of the principle of equality of sacrifice in time of war on the part of all his majesty's subjects in the United Kingdom."

The Archbishop of Armagh has written a letter saying that the exclusion of Ireland would be a disgrace to the country and disastrous to Irish regiments.

Depends on Workmen.

"Everything depends upon it. The length of the war depends upon it. Everything depends upon whether we turn out munitions in sufficient quantum out munit turn out munitions in sufficient quantities to bring the campaign to an end this year.

"That does not depend on the soltuties to bring the campaign to an end this year.

"That does not depend on the soldiers, who have done their task heroically. It depends entirely upon—I say it in all solemnity—the workmen of this country doing what the workmen of France have done; frankly setting aside conditions, throwing themselves into the work and sticking to their workshops. Unless they do that I cannot tell what the result will be.

"But I can tell what the result will be if they do so. They, and they alone, will achieve victory for this empire and the human race, and will reflect credit upon the labor movement."

He announced that 296 additional establishments had been enrolled under the control of the ministry since Jan.

This makes a total of 2422 controlled establishments.

Shortage of Machine Guns.

"I think I have indicated there has been a misapprehension," was the careful rejoinder of Harold J. Tennant, parliamentary under secretary forwar, when asked if David Lloyd George was wrong in the statement that Premier Asquith was the first to make known the lack of machine guns on the British front in Flanders.

Mr. Tennant said recommendations for an increase of machine guns were received from Marshal French before received from Marshal French before the date indicated by Mr. Lloyd George, and that steps were taken to George, and that steps were taken to grovide considerably more than the
