GOVERNMENT ANXIOUS

The Government is naturally exercised over the prospect of adding 800,000 men to the dole list and is now seeking some way in which a good number can be emigrated and is endeavoring to enlist the co-operation of the dominions in this matter.

The task of renouncing the general strike policy will soon be begun in an made to secure the votes of rural workers whose support is essential to success at the polls. A movement has already begun in the main industries of the nation to substitute arbitration for warfare as a principle which is included in Premier Baldwin's scheme for settlement of the coal strike.

BUDAPEST, Nov. 5.—Former Minister of Justice Emil Nagy stated in parliament today that everything had been prepared for an early union of Hungary with Rumania under a common sovereign. Great Britain, he added, did not oppose the plan. No member of the government saw fit to reply to Nagy's allegation. It is said, however, that such a union is desired by a large section of the Hungarian nobility.

Meanwhile, it is expected that at least 300,000 miners will never return to the pits because there will be no employment for them. Labor has always recognized that there was this surplus in the pits but has never known how to solve the problem which they involve. It appears now that the coal strike will settle this problem automatically.

WONDERFUL strides have been made in the promotion and art of the motion picture during the last few years. The tremendous popularity of the movie has also grown apace until "fan gossip" and studio news has become the prime requisite of the well-rounded newspaper.

Every day The Evening Times-Star runs a movie article under the head of "Behind the Screen." It is more than a feature—it's news! Gene Cohn and Dan Thomas, The Times' correspondents, don't wait for press agent handouts. They are reporters, doing the regular newspaper job of getting the news, and more often than not they get it in advance of the others. They know how to get it while it is hot and they pass it on before it has time to cool.

"Behind the Screen" has become a real popular feature. The reason is, of course, that it's up-tothe-minute, full of interest for every fan-and it's "straight stuff." Compare The Evening Times-Star with any paper three times its
