

HAIL DAMAGES GRAIN IN WEST

Half Million Loss in Saskatchewan—Lightning Kills Bather.

Regina, Sask., Aug. 6.—Hail claims received at the local and provincial headquarters of the private, municipal and farmers' mutual companies indicate that Saturday's storm extended over one of the widest areas ever known in Saskatchewan. It is estimated the loss will aggregate around $500,000.

Apparently the storm covered an area of about 800 miles long and 25 to 30 miles wide, claims being received from as far west as Big Lake, north of Saskatoon, to as far east as Arisa and North Port.

Altogether about 2,000 claims have already been received by the various companies.

Winnipeg, Aug. 6.—One man was killed and heavy damage to crops and property resulted from a severe hail, rain and electrical storm that struck the Estevan and Blainville districts of Saskatchewan on Sunday, according to reports received here.

While bathing in the Souris River south of Estevan during the storm, Walter T. Nelson, of Blainville, N. D., was killed by lightning. In the village of Blainville stores and residences were flooded and the hail smashed dozens of windows.

LOOKS FOR SUCCESS IN ST. JOHN EXHIBIT

Committee Chairman Says No Question Display Will Be Made.

David Magee, chairman of the committee having in charge the arrangements for the proposed display of St. John manufactured articles in connection with the big annual exhibition to be held here, commencing Aug. 30, announced yesterday that there was no question but that the display would go on. The committee were at present engaged in compiling a list of every person who manufactures anything in the city. These persons will be called on personally and asked to take part in the civic display.

Should it happen that some one was left out Mr. Magee said that the committee would be pleased if that person would notify any member of the committee of his willingness to help out in the display so that all would be included.

In 1910, when it was last tried, the exhibit of goods manufactured in St. John was the most interesting of the entire show, Mr. Magee said.

He was sure that this year it would also be, but in order that it should be so the co-operation of every manufacturer was needed.

The committee will begin their work of canvassing the city this week and it will probably not be known just how extensive the exhibit will be.

DAUGHTER OF MASSACHUSETTS MAYOR ELOPES

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 7.—After telling their friends that they were going to spend the week-end at Nantasket Beach, Mary E. O'Hara, daughter of Mayor Michael J. O'Hara and chief clerk of the Board of Health, and Richard Higgins, former star athlete at Worcester Academy, eloped Saturday afternoon and were married in New York city, after which they were going to Nantasket for the week-end and would be back Sunday time to report for work Monday morning.

It is reported that the young couple went to New York by automobile and were immediately married, after which they called Mayor O'Hara by telephone and informed him of the wedding. They received the parental blessing, and after a short wedding trip to Nantasket, they will return to Worcester.

Letters To The Editor

Jews and Chazars.

Sir,—In the issue of The Telegraph-Journal for August 5, 1924, there appeared an article dated "London, August 4, and headed "Present day Jew not from Israel. Descendants of the Chazars a Mongolian people," says Col. Williams."

The deductions of Col. Williams are very naive, to say the least. The facts about the Chazars and their connection with Judaism are well known to all historians in general and to the students of Jewish history in particular.

The Chazars were of Turkish origin and are, therefore, not Mongolians. They developed a very high standard of culture and government in the 8th and 9th centuries A. D. due greatly to the influence of a number of very highly cultured Jews, who found their way into the land of the Chazars, which is now southern part of Russia. These Jews came there as fugitives from Greece, in order to escape being forcefully converted by Emperor Leo, the Isaurian. The Chazars were pagans at the beginning of the ninth century, but, due to the influence of the Jews, they began to accept in great numbers the belief in the One Supreme Being, and, finally, with the conversion of one of their kings, the Hebrew religion became the religion of state.

Since when do we consider it a disgrace for a pagan to accept the belief in One God? Why, then, speak in a slurful manner about the nation of "proselytes" who accepted Judaism because they were convinced of the presence of One God and in the virtue of His teaching, as presented to us in the Ten Commandments? The British people, the French people, and all the other civilized nations were pagans at that matter, at one time proselytes from idolatry into the belief in One God. Why, then, is the pagan Chazar spoken of slurfully as a proselyte, while others are not, when they did exactly the same thing?

To consider all the present Jews descendants of the Chazars is absolutely ridiculous. Not that it would be a disgrace, but it is not the truth. If the Chazars were a Mongolian race, and if Col. Williams is a student of anthropology, as the article indicates, then he should know that the characteristic Mongolian slanting eye is very rare among the Jews. This alone should exclude any possibility of the modern Jew being a descendant of a Mongolian people.

The great mass of Jews never came even in the remotest contact with the Chazars; and at that period of history during which the Chazar kingdom existed, only a very small number of Jews from Germany, Spain, Turkey, Caucasus, Asia Minor and Northern Africa, found their way into the land of the Chazars. These Jews still retain to a great extent the same characteristics which they possessed in the days of King David and King Solomon, and by which they are distinguished as such wherever they are.

Thanking you for your valuable space, I am

Respectfully yours,
ARNOLD SHAMSKIN, M. D.

NEW HOTEL ON THE RIVER SUGGESTED

Would be Profitable Move, is Opinion—Talk of New Industry.

"It seems too bad," said a man who has been closely connected with business on the St. John River for more than 30 years, while discussing present river conditions yesterday, "that the beautiful St. John River cannot afford enough business to keep up a really good steamship service."

While eight years ago 10 steamers plied between Indian town and up-river points, today there are only four. Trains and automobiles, chiefly the latter, this man holds responsible for the falling off. However, after his many years of experience, he does not despair. If the proper initiative were exerted and its true value and its resources appreciated, he believed that a line of "palace steamers" would and should be plowing the waters of the St. John. He sees signs of an awakening and advancement in several quarters.

The Admiral Beatty Hotel he believes will bring numerous visitors to the province that will be desirous of enjoying what the St. John River valley can offer. Forty million dollars, it is said, was the revenue from the tourist traffic in the State of Maine two years ago and this has been considerably increased since. This man believes that the new hotel in this city is bound to draw some of that trade to these parts. There is the possibility that the corporation behind the present hotel scheme will see the advantage of constructing a summer hotel as sort of a supplement to the city one somewhere along the lower St. John River valley. Several promising sites would be available, he said.

That there is a strong agitation now for the building of a trunk road between Queenstown and Westfield, he regards as a promising sign, and, although it would encourage the greater use of the automobile, he was behind it. Every one would share in the general good that would follow the widening of this section of New Brunswick highways, which in the opinion of many should have been constructed long ago.

A petition for a better service on the Valley road has gone into the railway authorities and the possibility is that next year this will be granted for the accommodation of those desirous of summering in this section of the country as well as for the farmers and all the year-around residents. This would help the building up of the river section, he thinks.

Some industries were needed along the river to make the boom complete, he said. There had been talk for several years of establishing a canning factory at either Oak Point, a central point near the mouth of the Bellisle River near the railway, or at Hampstead, 10 miles farther up. It was now practically assured that a canning factory of some sort is to be established at Hampstead, he said.

Although he did not wish to paint too bright a picture, he believed that at several points along the river signs of advancement and progress had appeared during the last few years. He has great faith that the summer and tourist business possibilities as well as those of the farming districts along the St. John River will be developed and that this can be so done profitably.
