Aquatic. Old Time Oarsman. (Halifax Chronicle) George Lovett, one of the most familiar figures of the North End of the city during the past half century, passed away at his residence, 24 Grey street, yesterday morning, after a brief illness. Death was due to a paralytic stroke sustained a few days prior to which he had been in the best of health. The deceased was born in New York 84 years ago and came to this city with his parents at the age of 14 years. When a mere boy he established a reputation as an oarsman, participating in practically every event on the harbor from the year 1858 when as a boy of 10 years he rowed his first race, until 1871, when he retired from active participation in the sport. His greatest feats, and those which his numerous friends and admirers were most prone to talk about were his defeat of the celebrated oarsman George Brown, and his winning of the Cogswell belt, emblematic of the harbor championship.
