This attraction consists of some skillful drawing of pretty and comic pictures from smoke and clay. In all likelihood packed houses will rate. The picture programme went exceptionally well last evening and includes a drama of interest with splendid acting by the Thambour Company called 'The Blazed Trail' and 'The Fishing Smack,' also pleased. NICKEL

A motion picture of exceptional educational worth was shown at Nickel Theatre yesterday and will be concluded today. This is the Edison production, 'Love and the Law,' in other words a free adaptation of Charles Dickens' David Copperfield.

From the standpoint of fine acting, appropriate costuming and story-value this film is a most entertaining one, one of the especially good characterizations being that of Uriah Heep, the cringing villainous lawyer's clerk. The Biograph feature to be repeated today is 'Rose O' Salem Town,'

How to Have the Best Cough Syrup and Save 52 by Making it at Home

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. If you take two cups of granulated sugar, a cup of warm water, and stir about 2 minutes, you have as good syrup as money could buy.

If you will then put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16 oz. bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup, you will have as much cough syrup as you could buy ready-made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly.

This recipe will give the best cough syrup you can get. It is usually coughed up in 24 hours. It is just as effective as any cough syrup, and it is so pleasant, that it is a tonic effect and a pleasant. Take a teaspoonful every two or three hours.

It is a splendid remedy, too, for hoarseness, sore throat, and all the usual troubles of the throat. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, in its quality and all the healing elements. No other preparation will work in this formula.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup is now used and prized in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has been initiated but never successful.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

The history of the introduction of postage stamps, of the adhesive variety, is one of extreme interest. The adhesive stamp was first manufactured experimentally by James Chalmers at Dundee, England, August 1834. There resulted a controversy as to whether Sir Rowland Hill was the inventor of the adhesive stamp.

FAMOUS FIGHT

FOUGHT AGAIN

Slogger Williams and Tom Brown Alive in England

Two Boys Who Battled in Noted Rugby Tale are Hearty at 86—'East' Died as Governor of Madras

(London Answers).

There can hardly be a doubt that the 'Great Fight' described in 'Tom Brown's Schooldays,' is one of the most striking bits of fact in any English novel. But how many folk are aware that the two boys who fought are both still living, though the great combat took place less than nearly seventy years ago at Rugby. Both are eighty-six, and both are vigorous.

'Slogger Williams' and 'Tom Brown,' as the worthies were called by Thomas Hughes in his account of the famous fight, are today, as they have been ever since the combat, the best of friends.

And one of their backers is also living today at the age, too, of eighty-six! These three veterans have given a representative of Answers a few reminiscences of the 'Great Fight,' as it was always afterwards called. The actual fighters were the two clerymen, now known as the Very Rev. Chancellor Dukley Jones, who was for fifty years warden of Rugby, but who now has retired to a quiet Sussex village, and the Rev. Augustus Orlebar, M.A., who is yet doing splendid active service for the church as a vicar in Bedfordshire. And the 'backer' of young Orlebar in the combat, now eighty-six, is J. G. Holloway, barrister-at-law, who also lives in Sussex.

'Yes, I was one of the two fighters at Rugby in 1831,' as described in 'Tom Brown,' was said by Mr. Orlebar not long ago. 'Our other valued friend, 'East,' was the Right Hon. W. P. Adam, governor of Madras, who died some years back. But the rest of us are still living, and we are excellent friends and in the best of health! We meet sometimes, and talk over the old days, especially about the famous fight!'

'In the novel there are two points given differently from what actually occurred. We fought in the School House Hall, as the day was very wet, not in the meadow behind the chapel, as the story implies. And both of us were School House Boys, not one of us from another house, as the account states. Otherwise the details in 'Tom Brown' are fairly correct.'

'Yes,' said Chancellor Jones, 'it was the boy who fought Orlebar at Rugby. And we've been the best of friends ever since. Grand old man, Orlebar, isn't he? Myself? Well, like him and Holloway, I'm now nearing eighty-seven. But I fancy you have a very long way to go in this country before you find three fellows who were school boys together over seventy years ago, and who are as healthy and strong as we three are at eight-seven years of age!'

'No, I won't tell you which of us was meant by 'Slogger Williams,' and which by 'Tom Brown.' But we gave each other as good as we got, for Orlebar punished me heavily, though I let off his back, too.

seeing that I had much advantage of him in being then in excellent condition, thanks to my running so much at hare-and-hounds.

And then the third hero of the party gave his version of the great fight. 'I acted as the backer of Orlebar,' said J. G. Holloway, 'for, in Rugby parlance, I gave him a knee.' Of course, I know well which of the two boys was in the 'Slogger' and which was 'Brown,' as narrated in the famous novel. But I prefer to say nothing about that just now. Rather let me tell you a story about the fight.

'As a barrister I was dining one day in the now defunct Doctors' Commons when a dignified ecclesiastic came to me with beaming face and outstretched hands, crying out in delight, 'Why, it's old Buzz!' 'Buzz was my nickname at Rugby. He told me he was the former 'Slogger Williams,' now made famous by the novel, and he accompanied me to my rooms in the Temple. And, needless to say, we fought the old fight over and over again.'
