

Edm. I attempted to pass him but he jumped into the path of my vehicle and called out insulting remarks to ~~both~~ the Major, ~~and myself~~. We were the only occupants of the vehicle. I stopped the vehicle and Major LaCormu got out and told the soldier that he was a Major of the U.S. Army. This soldier whom I now identify as Pte Goodie, F. the accused, said "I don't give a fuck if you are" ~~and that "American soldiers are all bastards"~~ <sup>OR WORDS TO THAT EFFECT.</sup> After some further conversation between the Major and the accused the former returned to the vehicle and I started the motor to drive away. At that point there was a sound ~~of a blow~~ and I looked up in time to see the Majors cap lying on the rear seat. We then drove to the American Military Police Office. In my opinion the accused was quite sober and in full possession of his senses."

PROSECUTION

Pte Irving Klotz, 299 M.P. Co., U.S. Army, having been duly sworn states:

" At approximately 2130 hours on 14 Jul 43, Major John H LaCormu the first witness for the prosecution came to the U.S. Military Police H.Q., where I was on duty and from the conversation which ensued I gathered that a Canadian soldier had made insulting remarks to the said Major. I accordingly went with the Major to the Rue Clemenceau, Phillipville where we located the accused Pte Goodie, F. Major LaCormu asked to see Pte Goodie's identification tags which were on a cord around his neck, and at this point the soldier attempted to strike the Major. At this point, I struck Pte Goodie knocking him to the ground and holding him there until the British Military Police took charge and arrested him. The accused during this time seemed to be well aware of what he was doing?
