A Continguous Girl.

"Louis Hamblin, I am all out of patience with you! Kitty would feel highly exasperated with your opinion of her charms," cried his aunt, angrily. "But let me tell you," she added resolutely, "I shall never countenance any feeling with that young lady; you have shown her very marked attention and she has a right to expect that you have serious intentions. You know that I should be only too glad to have you marry Kitty; she is a sweet girl, to say nothing about her beauty while the McKensies are all that could be desired, both as to wealth and position, and the day that Kitty becomes your wife, I will match her dowry as a wedding-gift to you."

"Thank you; I know that you are all that is kind and good in your plans for me, Aunt Margie," Louis responded in a conciliatory tone, "and you need not fear that I am rashly going to throw Kitty over; we are the best of friends, although not acknowledged lovers. I cannot quite make up my mind to propose for really, I do not feel like tying myself down just yet."

"It would be a good thing for you —you live seven wild oats enough Louis, and it is time that you began to think of settling down in life. If you please me you know that a brilliant future awaits you, for you are my sole heir," Mrs. Montague concluded as she searched his face earnestly.

"My dear Aunt Margie, you will know there is nothing I like to do better than please you," was the gallant response, and Mrs. Montague believed him and smoothed her ruffled plumage.

"Nevertheless," Mr. Louis Hamblin remarked later while smoking a cigar by himself, "I shall try to see more of that pretty seamstress, without regard to the McKenzie expectations. Jove! what eyes she has!
and her low 'I thank you,' as I let her into the most mysterious sound-I've heard in many a day. Stay," he added with a start, "now I think of it, she must be the same girl to whom those proud upstairs gave the cut direct in Macy's the other day.
I thought her face was familiar, and didn't she pull together gloriously after it. There's a romance with her I'll bet. She must have been in society, or she could not have known them well enough to salute them as she did. Really, Miss Ruth Richards grows more interesting to me."

CHAPTER XI Ray's Experience.

While Irene was plodding her monotonous way among sheets and pillow-slips, table linen and dress-making in Mrs. Montague's elegant room, Raymond Palmer was also being subjected to severe discipline, although of a different character.

[We left him locked within a padded chamber in the house of Doctor Wesselschaff, who was a noted specialist in the treatment of diseases of the brain and nerves.

It will be remembered that Ray had been hypnotized into a profound slumber, from which he did not awake for many hours.

When at last he did awake, he was both calmed and refreshed, while he was surprised to find that a small table, on which a tempting lunch was arranged had been drawn close beside the lounge where he lay.

He was really hungry and arose and began to partake with relish of the various viands before him, while at the same time he looked about him with a strangely confused expression, as if he had never before been in with so small degree of curiosity.

He remembered perfectly well all that had occurred since the time he left his father's store in company with the charming Mrs. Vanderbeek until he had been so strangely confused by the influence of those masterful eyes, which had peered at him through an aperture in the wall.

All his mind went back over the strange incidents of the day he began to experience such great anxiety over the loss of the rare stones, which had been so cleverly stolen from him and also regarding the fate in store for him.

He knew that the diamonds were in his pockets when the carriage stopped before the house, and he had not removed his hand from the package until Mrs. Vanderbeek discovered that very circumstance, he felt sure, was a part of the skillfully executed plot, and he was convinced that the woman must have robbed him during the moment when he had been forward and tried to extricate it for her, while she must have concealed the package somewhere in the coupe while she was apparently trying to pin together the rent in her dress.

Then, as soon as he was alighted, how adroitly she had filled his arms with bags and boxes and how his attention so engaged that he did not think of the diamonds again until the gentleman of the house appeared in the rooms where Mrs. Vanderbeek had left him.

Oh how negligent he had been! He should not have released his hold upon that package under any circumstances he told himself; and yet he argued, if he had been ever so careful he might have been overpowered, and the stones taken by violence, if the woman's cunning had failed to accomplish the desired object.
He firmly believed that he was in

Mothers Are Helped THEIR HEALTH RESTORED

Happiness of Thousands of Mothers Due to Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's Advice.

A devoted mother seems to listen to every call of duty excepting the supreme one that tells her to guard her health, and before she realizes it some derangement of the female organs has manifested itself, and nervousness and irritability take the place of happiness and amiability.

Tired, nervous and irritable, the mother is unfit to care for her children, and her condition ruins the child's disposition and reacts upon herself.
The mother should not be blamed, as she no doubt is suffering with backache, headache, bearing-down pains or displacement, making life a burden.
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the unfailing cure for this condition. It strengthens the female organs and permanently cures all disorders such as this letter describes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:
"Being mother of five children, I have had experience with the general troubles of my sex. I was lacerated when one of my children was born, and from that hour I date all my afflictions. I found that within a few months my health was so bad that I could not do my housework. I became weak and dizzy, but kept on my feet, dragging through my work without life or pleasure.
A neighbor who had been helped by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound resisted that I take at least one bottle. I did so, and felt much better. I kept on the treatment, and it made me a strong and well woman. The few dollars I spent for the medicine began to pay for itself. It was worth to me."—Mrs. Anna McKay, 385 Spadina Ave., Toronto, Ont.

a den of thieves and that the man who had come to him in the reception room and conducted him into that chamber was in league with the thieves. He was so sure of this that he had no hesitation in taking him to the chamber and locking the door. He had so fascinated him and hoodwinked his father into sending out such jewels for examination.

When his mind reverted to the strange sensations which he had experienced beneath those human eyes

"HERBES O' VERTUE."

Rosemary and Rue Held High Estate
Among the Ancients.

Of high rank among the ancient and medieval "herbes o' vertue" was rue.
This plant, "the herb of grace," probably gained its reputation for breaking the spells of witchcraft, because it was so often employed for sprinkling holy water. Spenser includes this herb in the ingredients of a charm by which the aged nurse endeavored to change the current of Britomart's thoughts when she fell in love with the image of Sir Arcturion in a magic mirror. Another favorite amulet was ver-vain, the holy herb, which was much used in ancient religious rites and subsequently for decorating the altars of churches. Roman heralds always crowned their heads with vervain when they declared war or made a truce.

Rosemary was valued for its powers of strengthening a weak memory; hence it became the symbol of remembrance. Rosemary was also used as a love charm, which was much used in ancient religious rites and sub-
a truce.

SERIOUS DAMAGE FROM CLOUDBURST

One Woman Drowned—Pastor and Congregation Rescued on a Raft.

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 4.—The villages of New Berlin and Edveston were nearly destroyed by a cloudburst which occurred last evening.

It had been raining all day and the streams were very high. About 7.30 o'clock there was a terrific fall of rain, and in less than 30 minutes the streams became torrents, which swept buildings from their foundations, uprooted trees, washed out telegraph and telephone poles, destroyed the railroad running through the villages, made impassable highways for miles.

In New Berlin a large house, occupied by Mrs. J. L. Deeming, was washed down through the main street, and the woman drowned.

People who had gone to the Presbyterian Church to attend services were imprisoned in the church during the height of their pastor, and could not be rescued until daylight this morning, when they were taken out on a raft.

It is stated that there is no prospect of the railroads being opened in several days, and the highways are so badly cut that it is impossible to follow them.

Several small towns besides the two named have suffered severely from the cloudburst.

Shenburn one of the reservoirs of the village system was washed out.

THREE JURORS CURED

Of Cholera Morbus With One Small Bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Mr. G. W. Fowler of Hightower, Ala., relating an experience he had while serving on a petit jury in a murder case at Edwardsville, county seat of Cleburne county, Alabama.
He says: "While there I was some fresh meat and some house meat and it gave me cholera morbus in a very severe form. I was never more sick in my life and sent to the drug store for a certain cholera mixture but the druggist sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy instead, saying that he had what I sent for, but that this medicine was so much better he would rather send it to me in the fix I was in. I took one dose of it and was better in five minutes.
The second dose cured me entirely.
Two fellow jurors were afflicted in the same manner and one small bottle cured the three of us." For sale by all druggists.

HAY FEVER ABOLISHED

MEDICAL SCIENCE DISCOVERS A CURE FOR THIS MALADY BY IRRADIATING HYOMEL.

Among the important additions made to medical science in recent years, none is more notable than the positive announcement of a cure for hay fever. Exhaustive experiments with Hyomel prove that this treatment will prevent the attacks of hay fever if used for two or three weeks before the annual appearance of the disease, and it may be relied upon, if used faithfully after the sneezing and itching symptoms have appeared to relieve at once and afford a permanent cure.

Stomach dosing cannot cure hay fever, change of climate is the only treatment that gives any relief, and Hyomel, which mediates the cure, acts upon this principle, giving in your own home a climate as healthy as that of the White Mountains or other health resorts.

The complete Hyomel outfit costs but $1, extra bottles, 50 cents. John R. Gayfer has seen the good effects following the use of Hyomel in so many cases of hay fever that he is willing to sell the treatment with the understanding that if it does not satisfy to satisfaction the money will be refunded to you.
