CHARLOTTETOWN, P. B. I., Jan. 15,—McLean put up a plucky fight without rum or money and reduced the liberal majority in the country dis-tricts of West Queens heavily. In the city of Charlottetown Farquharson has 222 majority. The total liberal maority, with seven polls to hear from TORONTO, Jan. 15.—As a result of the by-elections held today, the conservative representation in the house of commons is reduced by two seats. These lost are West York and West Durham. In the former constituency the personal strength of Clarke Wallace always made his election safe acquiret even as strong a candidate as lace always made his election safe against even so strong a candidate as Archy Campbell, who today defeated the late Orange leader's brother by over 150 majority. The liberals had plenty of money and used it. In West Durham, Beith (liberal) won by a narrow majority, brought about by the circulation of a canard that Thornton, the conservative candidate, had again made an illegal deposit and that if elected the result would be another election. It is alleged in a special edition of the Bowmanville Statesman, issued in large quantities by the liberals on Monday night, that Thornton's deposit had been paid to the returning officers by the candidate him-self instead of by an agent, as the law allows. West Hastings, always a conservative stronghold, remained staunch. In Kingston Hon. Wm. Harty, as owner of the locomotive works, the only industrial establishment of any size in the city, had a strong pull and used it. The result was conceded by the conservatives before polling began.

Addington was a surprise. Bell, the Telegraphing was extensively practiced by the liberals. In one poll on St. Timothee street, in which 86 voters were qualified to vote, 94 votes were cast, Bergeron only securing four out of the total. Other polls showed evidence of silimar work. Over 2,000 more votes were polled here than in the last general elections. Investigation is prom-

MONTREAL, Jan. 16 .- The by-ele MONTREAL, Jan. 16.—The by-elections being over, Mr. Tarte relieves his mind in La Patrie on insubordination in the liberal party. The editorial was written under the impression that Wilson was elected in Laval. Had Mr. Tarte known that he was defeated because Goyer, independent liberal candidate, polled 47 votes, it is difficult to state just what the minister of public works would have said. "The actions intrigues open revolt of which Patrie, "had so demoralized public opinion that we really cannot tell why we escaped disaster. Will those in our ranks who believe that the conservative party was absolutely dead and buried now change their minds? A Shocking Case of Infanticide-

TRURO, Jan. 16.—A shocking case of infanticide by Margaret Shute, aged 22, occurred here this week. The child was found in bed with its mother wrapped in its mother's night dress with the sleeves tied around its neck. The mother went into convulsions and died yesterday. She was a servant girl in one of the largest houses in town. She has a mother, brother and two sisters living here, all highly reectable. The coroner's jury return ence that the infant died at the hands of its mother.

The Jury Returned a Verdiet of Guilty-The Judge Imposes a Light Sentence.

HAMPTON, Kings Co., Jan. 15. In the circuit court today the assau case preferred by Mrs. Sarah M. Jone against her husband was continued sition to that preferred by the crow the child, and the absence of any restriction imposed upon her in regard thereto by the accused or his mother.

Bertha Jones testified that she accompanied the complainant to her house on the evening of Aug. 5, and heard her call her husband a liar, at which he pushed her by the shoulder as she knelt on the ground before her baby, down towards the ground. She did not cry out or complain of being injured. He did not seize her by the throat as stated, nor did he make any other remark than that he could not stand that. Mrs. Jones got her things from the house, while he went off to get the cows, and on his return complainant walked behind the team to witness' home, from whence she went to her father's. She made no complaint of injury, there was no sign of the civil case of George W. Day v. plaint of indury, there was no sign of blood on the neck or dress, and she gave no indication of being afraid of gave no indication of being afraid of her husband while with him. She simply asked for her things, which he said she could get, and asked her to take the baby. She then complained that he was working for his mother and step-father without pay, which he denied and thereupon she called him a liar. Witness declared she had nev-sault, bruises, or choking, nor did she complain of any ill-treatment, except that her husband had locked her out after they had the row. About two years ago complainant told her that Mel. was beating the oldest child when Mel. was beating the oldest child when she interfered and got a cut over the back that was intended for the child. This was the only time she ever heard Melissa complain of being struck by her husband. She said she loved Mel. and there would be no trouble if it were not for his mother and step brother, and she wished they could go away by themselves, but Mel. was working for Robert and Phoebe and getting nothing for it. That seemed to be the whole trouble.

Mr. Fowler addressed the jury, and was followed by Mr. Blair, after which the judge summed up the evidence, the judge summed up the evidence commenting on its contradictory character, and saying that it was very s as well as very serious, but more sad than serious. asked the attention of counsel, with the very best motives, to his desire that the complainant and accused, with that the complainant and accused, with their respective counsel, should get together in some room of the court house while the jury, were deliberating and see if they could not be again brought together and live in peace and harmony. It was clear that the friends and neighbors of this young couple had made no effort to reconcile differences between them, and although his suggestion was unusual, he thought it best that they should make a strenuous effort to that end. He did not condemn the bringing of the case into court, for it might prove a warning and serve a beneficeat purpose in the interests of justice and public goodwill.
