Former St. John Lady Died At Haverhill

Mrs. Rosa Josepha Passed Away Yesterday at Remarkable Age of 118 Years—Claimed to Have Been Born in This City.

Haverhill, Mass., Sept. 16.—The attainment of the remarkable age of 118 years is claimed by relatives for Mrs. Rosa Josepha, widow of Marcelina Josepha, who died this afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mabel King, at 79 County street. Up to six months ago she had always resided in St. John, N. B., and on her arrival here was in a remarkable well preserved state of health, but during the past few months she has been steadily declining and died with the record of having been one of the oldest, if not the oldest, person who ever lived in this city.

The only document bearing on her birth contains the information Mrs. Josepha was born in St. John, N. B., 118 years ago. Aside from her daughter a nephew, John King, who is now in England on the stage as a motor roller cyclist under the name of John W. Hall, survives. His home is in St. John.

Holland and Belgium Dispute Referred To By Queen Wilhelmina

In Speech from Throne Her Majesty Declared She Had Been Called Upon Emphatically to Defend Nation's Rights.

The Hague, Sept. 16.—In a speech from the Throne opening parliament, Queen Wilhelmina referred to the dispute between Holland and Belgium regarding the revision of the treaty of 1839. The queen declared she had been called upon emphatically to defend the nation's rights, interests and integrity, and that she was in entire accord with the Dutch people concerning the question at issue. The princess, who has been one of the oldest, if not the oldest, person who ever lived in this city.

The acting premier's statement clears up a question in regard to which, as already pointed out by your correspondent, there has been a great deal of misapprehension. Mr. Pellou asked in the House this afternoon if it was correct that the government had decided to accept the offer of the League of Nations, and if so, it was to be interpreted as an announcement of government opposition to his bill to make Armistice Day, the second bill to be introduced in November, a permanent "Thanksgiving Day."

Hon. Mr. Doherty replied that "Thanksgiving Day" had been fixed for Monday, October 13th, but it did not necessarily follow that "Thanksgiving Day" would be on the same date next year. Future policy would have to be decided later.

Colonel Currie then moved the adjournment of the House to discuss the question of further gratuity to returned soldiers. The speaker, while pointing out that the question would arise later on a bill respecting soldiers' re-employment, he said that he did not feel it his duty to rule the motion out of order but merely to submit the question to the House.

Colonel Currie's motion was then submitted and carried, and Colonel Currie proceeded with his argument. In opening, Colonel Currie said that he was bringing forward the matter, because a private member who did such a thing was always open to the charge of self-seeking or self-advertising. Personally, he had no interest in the matter, and he felt that the members of the House would agree that the importance of the subject justified its introduction.

This was the message to the National Council Conference delivered by the speaker for the labor group, when he rose this morning to speak on the need of unity in Canada's labor laws. There was a pressing need for unity in solving Canada's labor problem, said Mr. Bruce, and he appealed to everyone to drop all feelings of hostility and approach the questions before the conference in a spirit of human good fellowship, that their deliberations might be productive of the greater good of the country.

The Proposed War Gratuity of Two Thousand Dollars Was Cause of Most Lively Debate

Continued from Page 1. proposed to be reported from its position by "threats, or fear of threats from any quarter whatsoever."

Speaking late in the house tonight, Hon. C. J. Doherty, acting prime minister, made it plain that the proposed parliamentary committee, which is to deal with matters affecting soldiers' civil re-establishment, will not deal with the demand of the returned men for a two thousand dollar gratuity. "There will be no room for the question before the committee," said Mr. Doherty. "The committee is not concerned with that. The government has definitely made up its mind on this question."

The acting premier's statement clears up a question in regard to which, as already pointed out by your correspondent, there has been a great deal of misapprehension. Mr. Pellou asked in the House this afternoon if it was correct that the government had decided to accept the offer of the League of Nations, and if so, it was to be interpreted as an announcement of government opposition to his bill to make Armistice Day, the second bill to be introduced in November, a permanent "Thanksgiving Day."

Hon. Mr. Doherty replied that "Thanksgiving Day" had been fixed for Monday, October 13th, but it did not necessarily follow that "Thanksgiving Day" would be on the same date next year. Future policy would have to be decided later.

Colonel Currie then moved the adjournment of the House to discuss the question of further gratuity to returned soldiers. The speaker, while pointing out that the question would arise later on a bill respecting soldiers' re-employment, he said that he did not feel it his duty to rule the motion out of order but merely to submit the question to the House.

Colonel Currie's motion was then submitted and carried, and Colonel Currie proceeded with his argument. In opening, Colonel Currie said that he was bringing forward the matter, because a private member who did such a thing was always open to the charge of self-seeking or self-advertising. Personally, he had no interest in the matter, and he felt that the members of the House would agree that the importance of the subject justified its introduction.
