TEXAS DOCTOR SAYS

Prominent Texas Physician Says He Has Treated About Fourteen Hundred Cases of Influenza During the Past Month and Has Found Tanlac to be the Best Tonic to be Had to Build up His Patients

The following letter from Dr. J. W. Sandlin, one of the most prominent physicians of Southern Texas, has just been received

"Yours very truly, (Signed) "DR. J. W. SANDLIN." (Signed) "DR. J. W. SANDLIN."

Dr Sandlin not only enjoys a very large practice as a physician, but he is also a man of wide influence and ranks as a leading citizen of the enterprising little city of Humble, Tex.

As a practicing physician of sixteen years' experience, Dr. Sandlin was quick to recognize the superior tonic properties of Tanlac over other remedies and unhesitatingly and voluntarily gave Tanlac his unqualified indorsement.

Although the influenza epidemic has greatly subsided. it is still prevalent and breaking out anew in many sections of the country and continues to claim its victims by the thousands.

A N amusing skit on the effect of the new C. P. R. president's hat appears in the Chatham "News"—this effect being produced, doubtless, by the law of suggestion. The hat of Mr. Beatty is said to be tilted at a rakish angle; and the moment that this was found to be the case, the mimicry of that hat became a sacred duty on the part of the employees, according to the story.

In the good old days of Baron Shaughnessy, says the writer, the brick and businesslike boy who delivers our C. P. despatches used to march into the office with his natty-blue cap set square across his noble brow.

That cap was a fixture there. We get used to it. It seemed part of the established order of things. One could as easily imagine the boy pushing it to one side or the other, as one could imagine a breeze on the Nile upsetting the great Pyramid.

One day last week we got a shock. Into our office tripped the young-tar with his cap tilted rakishly over the ear.

TAKE PROVINCE FROM SEA.

Holland's New Scheme to Secure More Territory.

More Territory.

The announcement that the necessary authority has been given by the Dutch Parliament for the draining of the Zuider Zee probably brings ambitions which engineers have entertained for a very long period a stage nearer realization. It was in the closing years of the first half of the nineteenth century that Van Diggelen put forward proposals for drainage and reclamation, which, in their main aspects, are not very different from those which are receiving attention to-day. The area with which it is proposed to deal is one of nearly 1,500 square miles, of which more than 800 would be reclaimed and the remainder converted into a fresh water lake, thus providing a remedy in the present dearth in Holland of in the present dearth in Holland of water supplies in summer. From the point of view of the engineer the reclamation on which it is proposed to expend £15,750,000, is a large scale project of somewhat simple form scale project of somewhat simple form.

The construction of a main embankment more than eighteen miles long, which it is estimated would occupy nine years in construction, would shut out the sea, and enable four areas, extending more than 500,000 acres, to be set aside for reclamation. These would probably be available for occupation within twenty years by which time the be available for occupation within twenty years, by which time the ordinary reclamation schemes in Holland, which have provided about 25,000 acres annually for a considerable period, will from natural causes have been discontinued. When the whole work has been completed 30 years hence, not only will a new province have been added to Holland and the risk of flood damage from the Zuider Zee eliminated, but it will be possible to supply the brackish canal with fresh water from the new lake.

An important railway connection across the new embankment between Friesland and North Holland is also An important railway connection across the new embankment between Friesland and North Holland is also included in the provisional plans. On the debit side of the account, regard must be had of the destruction of the Zuider Zee fisheries, but in comparison with the advantages to be derived from the reclamation these are of subsidiary importance.

The American captain for the time being was a bit jerky himself. He had more survivors than he could ad more survivors than he coundle, and he wanted to trans-sh me of them, but he knew how da some of them, but he knew how dangerous that laying alongside by the British destroyer would be. He stood on the bridge, nervously smoking a big black cigar, and watched the destroyer manoeuvre. It was pretty seamanship. The British destroyer came round, came up and laid alongside as gently as if the manoeuvre were taking place in a lake instead of on a sea where the waves were tremendous. The British captain stood on the starboard end of his bridge, and the American captain on the port end of his, talking, while the survivors were trans-shipped, the American still puffing at his big black cigar.

The trans-shipment was made with the captains conducting a conversa-tion under difficulties, as at one mo-ment the British would be far above ment the British would be far above, the head of the American, and at the next moment the American would be up and the Britisher down.

"Would you care to come aboard?" asked the American.

"Thanks, no." replied the Briton, "I must be going now. I like your company, but the fact is I can't stand that cigar of yours."

when the destroyers were about to go their separate ways a Joshing American on one of the American de-stroyers signaled to a British com-patriot, miles away: "Thanks, sweet-

Not to be outdone in courtesy or josh, the British destroyer came back seven miles and signalled: "Good-night, darling."
