Controversy over Marxist prof

MONTREAL (CUP) — The administration of CEGEP St.-Jean will challenge a ruling by the Quebec Human Rights Commission ordering the college to rehire a philosophy professor it had earlier laid off on grounds of her Marxist political affiliation. According to Montreal Daily Le Devoir, the director-general of the college, Andre Archambault, said Feb. 12 the college would challenge ruling because it contains factual errors and because there was new information in the commission's findings.

The commission heard testimony from the professor (named), and the teachers' union in conjunction with a Montreal civil rights group, La Ligue des Droits et Libertés. The commission found that firing to discriminate on the basis of political affiliation, and pointed to a positive evaluation by the philosophy department of the professor's performance. Evidence of the professor's political affiliation did not affect teaching performance.

The commission's ruling called for rehiring of the professor within two weeks, and compensatory pay for the years since the firing.

The college intends to take the case to the provincial court according to the Le Devoir article.
