'There are two reasons,'' he says. "When a big company, like ours, takes profit out of the community, we feel it is our obligation to put some back in areas where it is needed.

"It's O'Keefe's way of saying 'thank you' drinking our beer. We also hope that those who don't now drink our brands will switch.

Let's face it, O'Keefe's main objective is to sell its brands of liquids and if amateur sports get intoxicated along the way to the tune of $1 million of needed desperately assistance, it's to everyone's benefit.

"It's a major step when a big company gets involved with amateur sports," says

Although Leggat and the brewery people are hoping to see an interest on their investment by the Montreal Olympics, they don't really view the 1976 cavalcade of much broader base. ''I'm convinced.he benefits will snowball as time goes on."

The first fruit of the investment ripened when Canada scaled unfamiliar heights, winning three silver medals at the world syn-chronized swimming services for one year of two championships in Belgrade.

Synchronized swimmers were among the first to reap the financial benefit of the O'Keefe Foundation, receiving $11,800 for full-time services of Miss Pauline McCullagh as national coaching coordinator and another $5,0000 to enable the association to hire coaches Mary Anne Reeves of Albert and Quebec's Suzanne Eon in preparation for the Belgrade
