

Romeo and Juliet

O JULIET, thou fairest flower
 That ever bloomed in mortal bower,
 How oft at moonlit eve I dream
 I see thy dark eyes softly beam.

I dream; and thy fond lover see
 As ardently he bends the knee;
 And wishes that he were thy "glove,"
 Or swears "by yonder moon" above.