CAREER OF PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY'S NEW MODERATOR.

Rev. Wm. D. Armstrong, M.A., Ph.D., Distinguished Himself As a Student In His University Days—Won Silver Graduation Medal In 1870—Pastor of St. Paul's Church, Ottawa, for 31 Years.

The Moderator of the thirty-first General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, which closed recently in the Grant Memorial Hall, Kingston, is the Rev. William D. Armstrong, M.A., Ph.D., minister of St. Paul's Church, Ottawa. He was born at Millbrook, Ont., 60 years ago. He is a graduate of Upper Canada College and of the University of Toronto. In his university career he greatly distinguished himself, especially as a student of metaphysics and ethics, in which department he won the silver medal on his graduation in 1870. He achieved equal distinction as a student of theology at Knox College. Throughout his entire academic career he won, year after year, important and valuable scholarships and prizes. His ministerial career has been confined to Ottawa, where he has been pastor of St. Paul's Church for thirty-one years. Dr. Armstrong is not only the senior minister in the capital, but is also one of its most trusted public men. He has been active in all movements making for the educational and moral betterment of the city. For many years he has been managing director of the Ottawa Ladies' College, and has interested himself in benevolent and religious enterprises, both denominational and general. As the president-elect of the General Assembly he maintained the dignity of the Moderator's chair, to which he was elected with the utmost unanimity and cordiality.

JAMES DALRYMPLE.

Scottish Municipal Ownership Expert

Now on This Continent.

James Dalrymple, the general manager of the tramways of Glasgow, who visited Chicago at the invitation of Mayor Dunne, is a man of about forty-five years. He was born and educated in Galloway, Scotland, where his ancestors for many generations were farmers. His boyhood was spent on Boreland Farm, Girthon, of which his uncle was tenant. When he left school a place was found for him in a bank at Gatehouse, but the prospect of promotion was so uncheering that in 1880 he went to Glasgow. There he entered the service of the corporation under the City Chamberlain and saw service in various departments of the city government. When the operation of the tramways was undertaken by the municipality in 1884 he was in the City Accountant and Registrar's Department and was selected to serve as accountant of the Tramway Department. From that post he was promoted in 1902 to be deputy general manager, and so well did he perform the duties of that position that when John Young, the general manager, resigned a few weeks ago to go to London and take charge of the Yerkes system of street railways in that capital Mr. Dalrymple was made general manager by the Glasgow Tramways Committee. While he still has his laurels to win as the head of the tramway system of the chief Scottish city, he has had the experience of serving in the department throughout the period in which the municipality took over control of the street car service, and also while the change was made to electrical methods of propulsion.

Colors For Mourning.

The following are the various colors used for mourning in different countries, together with the reasons given for the selection: Black expresses privation of light, worn throughout Europe and America; yellow, the sear and yellow leaf, Egypt and Burma. In Brittany widows' caps among the peasants are yellow; purple and violet, to express royalty, mourning for the cardinals and Kings of France. Violet is the mourning color of Turkey; white, emblem of "white handed hope," China; deep blue, Bokhara mourning. The significance of this selection is not known. Pale brown, the withered leaves, Persia. Grayish brown, earth, Ethiopia and Abyssinia.

Single Ladies In England.

One of the features of upper-class life in England is the number of single ladies, sisters who live together in peace and harmony. Among these are the Ladies Hope; the three Ladies Howard, aunts of Lord Wicklow; the four Ladies Turnour, sisters of Lord Winter-ton; the three Ladies Marsham, sisters to Lord Romney; the three Ladies Bernard, sisters to Lord Bandon; the three Ladies Boyle, sisters to Lord Glasgow; and — most remarkable of all — the eight Ladies Pratt, aunts of Lord Camden, who form a society of their own at "The Grove," near Sevenoaks.

A Frequent Occurrence.

"I've been reading of a man who reached the age of fifty without being able to read. He met a woman and for her sake made a scholar of himself in three years."
"And I know a man who at middle life was a profound scholar. At the age of fifty he met a woman and for her sake made a fool of himself in three days."

Dead Ashes Cost Money to Heat.

Most hot water heaters have a center draft only—also most center draft hot water heaters have a wall of dead ashes next to the water jacket, because thorough combustion with center draft only is not possible—coal burns principally in the center.

The ashes must be heated before the water can be heated.

Ashes are hard to heat—they are expensive to heat, they absorb the heat which should go into your coils.

The "Bison" hot water heater has side drafts, draws the heat and fire to the sides, up the sides, against the water jacket. It heats the water quickly, economically.

CUPS AND SAUCERS.

Avoid the Eccentric and Stick to the Standard Shape.

In buying cups and saucers quite as much attention should be paid to the shape as to the color or design. The fact that a cup is of a wonderfully delicate tint or that it has a decoration which appeals particularly to the purchaser is no guarantee of its usefulness, and usefulness must be considered when one is buying articles that are to be handled as constantly as cups and saucers. The standard patterns in cups are, after all, the ones to be relied on, though one may be tempted by novelties whose eccentricities of shape are only equaled by their capacity for causing inconvenience. These novelties, after a few dozen have been sold, are generally consigned to that mysterious place to which things that do not sell are sent, and the old favorite shapes are again in demand until another monotony is brought out and foisted upon unsuspecting shoppers.

Manufacturers tell us that, although not absolutely necessary, it is advisable that a cup be made on a mold that can be removed in one piece. This means that no part of the cup shall be so undercut as to bind the mold and also that no part shall be of larger diameter than the top, and this is a good rule to follow in buying as well as in making cups.

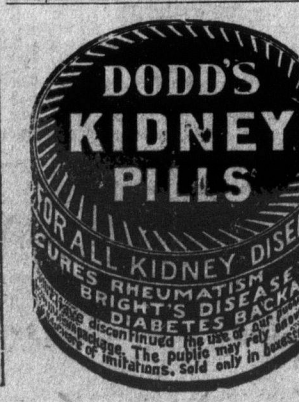

Next to the shape of the cup the handle must be considered. There is a certain old and well known and much used pattern in chinaware the one advantage of which is that the handles to the teacups and the large coffee cups are out of all proportion to the cups themselves. The handles are of very good shape and are easily taken hold of, but they are so slight and the cups are so thick and heavy that one has anything but a feeling of security in picking up one when it is full. The handle of a large cup should be in proportion to the size and weight of the cup, with an opening large enough to put a finger through, and the handle of a small cup should be easily grasped between the thumb and finger. ## MAN WITH A SMILE.

Charles J. Bonaparte, New Secretary of United States Navy.

Surprise is the rule of President Roosevelt's career, public or private. He is known as the man who is always doing the unexpected, and it is safe to say that his consistency in that particular was never better exemplified than in the announcement made recently that Charles Joseph Bonaparte is to succeed Paul Morton as Secretary of the Navy.

There came a slight gasp or surprise from every Republican political centre of the country and something like a similar expression, but indicating hope or something else, from the camp of the enemy. All solemnly agreed that this was perhaps the most interesting of the many Cabinet appointments made by the President. All agreed on one characterization—"unique," and declared themselves as impatiently awaiting results.

"Unique," they said it was, because the grandest of the men of the age for conquest ended only at the shores of the sea is to head the fighting fleets of the United States.

"Unique," it was, because a man who was, to say the least, only a late convert to imperialism or expansion, is to direct the one department where expansion must first be refuted.

"Unique," because a man who had never in his career been bound down by any particular party ties was to become the adviser of a partisan administration.

But chiefly was it unique, they concluded, because for the first time as President Mr. Roosevelt was to have confronting him at his own council table a lover of the open fight; a man who has won from the President himself the compliment of "the most forceful mind of the country," a man who has never in his life shirked a fight or acknowledged defeat; whose high sense of right will lead him to combat his dearest friend as cheerfully as he will go forth against a foe; who has ideas and principles of his own and never fails to advocate them; a man who has been a political leader, but has held salaried office for three weeks only; who had the temerity as an overseer of Harvard University to oppose the granting of the degree of LL.D. to President McKinley because he did not think it was the proper degree for him; a man of great fortune, who has spent his life in hard work. "Friendly they are," was the verdict, "but Bonaparte, the man, will as soon accept dictation contrary to his principles as the President himself."

Charles Joseph Bonaparte is a son of Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte, whose father was Jerome Bonaparte, King of Westphalia and brother to the Emperor Napoleon.

CHARLES J. BONAPARTE.

peror Napoleon. Mr. Bonaparte's mother was Miss Susan Williams, of Massachusetts, while his grandmother, wife of the King, was the beautiful Miss Elizabeth Patterson, daughter of a famous Baltimore merchant. He was born June 9, 1851, in the mansion at Park avenue and Centre street, Baltimore, where his father was spending his retirement.

In 1871 young Bonaparte just fresh from College, denounced the political ring of Baltimore as a thing of evil and declared it must be broken up. He was laughed at even by his friends. He was called a "silk stocking," told to go back to his "dinners," his "dancing," and keep quiet. Then for the first time Baltimore saw that smile—"the smile of the Bonapartes" it has been called.

Much will be written about that smile if Mr. Bonaparte remains long in the Cabinet. It differs from the delighted expression of President Roosevelt. It seldom rises to the dignity of a laugh, but it is always there. The smile was once described thus:—

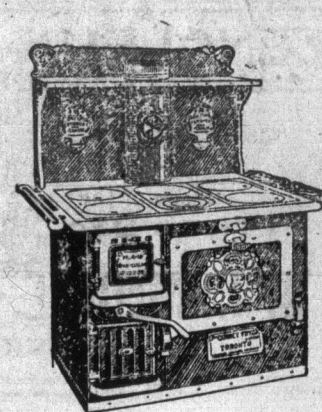

"It is there all the time, morning, noon and night. It is there when its owner arises in court to pronounce a eulogy upon a dead judge. It is there when he lashes the 'leaders' on the stump, and it is there when he is in a case and the witnesses on the other side begin to perspire coldly."

The smile, though the owner may not have known it, was one of the chief assets of the Baltimore Reform League in the year of grace 1895, when the ancient and odorous Democracy faced "Sourhouse Charley" and went tumbling into a heap of writhing "graffers," scared leaders and twisted machinery. It is a smile of fascination—woeful, troublesome, sweet, oily, insinuating, seductive, deceitful, sarcastic, sardonic, terrifying, paralyzing and diabolical."

A Soapy Lake.

Some interesting items may at times be unearthed from the consular reports. For example, there is a description of a soapy lake in the annual statement of the trade and commerce of Nicaragua. This sheet of water, the Lake of Nejapa, contains a strong solution of bicarbonate of soda and carbonate of soda and sulphate of magnesia. "This water, when rubbed on any greasy object, at once forms a lather." The report says it is used as a hair wash and enjoys a local reputation as a cure for external and internal complaints. The Nicaraguans are not conspicuous for commercial enterprise, but during the year they managed to export "four demijohns" of this wonderful water to the neighboring Guatemala.

Over $1,000,000 worth of diamonds are stolen every year from the South African diamond mines.

The Oxford Chancery Range, though built with durability and strength as the primary objects, is very handsome in appearance. The ornamentation is very plain and solid so that it is easily kept clean. The top edges and door frames are nickel-plated.

Oxford Chancery Range

Handsome nickel ornamentation on the fire and oven-door adds to the attractive appearance of the range.

With all its beauty of design, its greatest recommendation is its efficiency as a baker and roaster and its durability.

We would like to send you some of our booklets which tell the whole story. Drop us a post card, and we'll send them along with the address of the nearest dealer who can show you the range.
