Necessity of a Geological Survey. WHAT MR. ELDER THINKS ABOUT IT. My idea, sir, is that the Govern

He made thorough inquiries into the state of the country, and the working of the Land Commission. It is thought his visit will do good. Certainly it has made the people in the most lawless districts familiar with his face, which is a good thing, as many of them were under the impression that "Buckshot Forster" was a monster in appearance and fiend in heart. At Tullamore in the midst of a somewhat lawless district, Liquid Blueing the Secretary made a speech, in which he denounced the barbarities of the Moonlighters; while he stated that they did not represent the feel ings of the Irish people. He told hearers that the Irish were brave in battle, but were deficient in moral few bullies to go through the country to the committing these outrages, without trying to put an end to them. The Outrages on the Russian Jews have caused intense feeling in London, and throughout all England. The first report of the killing of Keep It Out of the Frost, and Satisfaction Jews in Odessa, Kieff, and a hundred other places, and of the de Put up by struction of the property, accompanied by brutal assaults on helpless women and girls, was contradicted, but the Jewish committee, which was appointed to investigate the matter, have gathered evidence which cannot be questioned, to prove that the most horrible pictures of that, terriole riot, were not too strong. Children were flung from windows and killed; old men robbed and beaten to death; their wives and daughters dragged helplessly through the streets, and subjected to the worst reatment that the passions of a ruffi inly mob could suggest.
