

VARIETIES.

How DEACON SMITH COURTED.—The Deacon's wagon stopped one morning before the widow Jones' door, and gave the usual country sign that he wanted somebody in the house, by dropping the reins and sitting double with his elbows on his knees. Out stepped the old widow, as lively as a cricket, with a tremendous black ribbon on her snowy white cap. "Good morning," was said on both sides, and the widow waited for what was further to be said. "Well, Ma'am Jones, perhaps you don't want to sell one of your cows now, for nothing, any way, do you?" "Well, there, Mr. Smith, you couldn't have spoken my mind better. A poor lone woman like me does not know what to do with so many creatures, and I should be glad to trade, if we fix it." So they adjourned to the meadow. Deacon Smith looked at Roan—then at the widow—at Brindle—then at the widow—at the Downing cow—then at the widow again—and so through the whole forty. The same call was made every day for a week, but the deacon could not decide which cow he wanted. At length, on Saturday, when the widow was in a hurry to get through her baking for Sunday, and had "ever so much to do in the house," as all farmers wives and widows have on Saturday, she was a little impatient. Deacon Smith was as irresolute as ever. "That 'ere Downing cow is a pretty fair creature," said he, "but 'he stopped to glance at the widow's face, and then walked round her—not the widow—but the cow. "That 'ere short horn Durham is not a bad looking beast, but I don't know,"—another look at the widow. "The Downing cow I knew before the late Mr. Jones bought her." Here he sighed at the allusion to the late Mr. Jones; she sighed, and both looked at each other. It was a highly interesting moment. "Old Roan is a faithful old mule, and so is the Brindle—but I have known better." A long stare succeeded his speech—the pause was getting rather awkward—and at last Mrs. Jones broke out—"La! Mr. Smith, if I'm the cow you want, do say so!" The intentions of the Deacon and Widow Jones were published next day.

ANECDOTE OF FINN.—Finn was once a witness for the prosecution in a case before the Common Pleas of Boston, and his testimony was so direct and conclusive that a counsel for the defendant thought it necessary to discredit him.

Mr. Finn, you live in—street, do you?

I do.

Have you lived there a great while?

Several years.

Does not a female live there under your protection?

There does.

Does she bear your name?

She is known in the neighbourhood by the name of Mrs. Finn.

Is she your wife?

We were never legally married.

That will do, I have nothing more to say.

But I have something more to answer, Sir,—replied Finn, with spirit. "The Mrs. Finn of whom you have been pleased to speak with such levity is my mother—and I have known but one man base enough to breathe against her. You, sir, can guess who he is. True, she is under my protection. She protected me through my infancy and childhood, and it is paying but small part of the debt I owe her, to do as much for her in her old age."

The baffled counsel had not another word to say.

"NAKED TRUTH."—The late eccentric John Holmes used frequently, in his addresses to different juries to explain the meaning of the phrase, "naked truth," by relating the following fable:

Truth and Falshood, travelling one warm day, met at a river, and both went to bathe at the same place. Falshood coming first out of the water, took his companion's clothes and left his own vile raiment and then went on his way. Truth coming out of the water, sought in vain for his own proper dress—disdaining to wear the garb of Falshood. Truth started, all naked, in pursuit of the thief, but not being so swift of foot, has never overtaken the fugitive. Ever since he has been known as "naked Truth."

Speaking of bones, says a victim to one of the species, "I can scarcely imagine one capable of inflicting more misery than an intolerable whistler. I can stand a life, when all the nation is armed and equipped on training days, and a drum with its 'flang flang' serves to drown its screams; but to listen to a poor air badly murdered by a poor, pucker, I prefer death in some easier, not quicker way. I always think of the French stage-coach driver, who being very much annoyed by such a bore turned upon him with:

'Mine frere, yet you all de times ravel! You lose your dog, eh?'

Why did the lady who purchased the dumb-waiter, return it next day? Because it would not answer. 2001 1071 310 and

VETERINARY PRACTICE.

Under the Patronage of His Excellency Sir ALEXANDER BARNESMAN, Knight.

GEORGE LORD, begs leave respectfully to intimate to his friends and the public in general, that he has resumed his practice in the VETERINARY ARTS, under the patronage of His Excellency Sir ALEXANDER BARNESMAN, Knight.

After a successful practice of 27 years—24 in England and 13 in America—in the course of which he has been directly instrumental, through his skill, in saving, for their owners, the lives of many valuable Horses and Cows; he hopes that, in now collecting a number of PRIZE FARMWAGONS, he may be permitted to say that he considers himself to be as well qualified to prescribe Medicines, and perform OPERATIONS, in the capacity of a HORSE and COW DOCTOR, as any individual who has ever practised in that line in this Colony; and he, therefore, presumes that he may confidently look forward to a renewal of that patronage which he formerly enjoyed in this Island.

RESIDENCE—Next door to the Victoria Hotel, Water Street, Charlottetown.

HARRINGTON—Messrs. Redburn & Co. Apothecaries' Hall. At the Depot of the Royal Agricultural Society, 10th Sept. 1853.

The subject is a copy of the Certificate which Mr. Lord has received from His Excellency Sir ALEXANDER BARNESMAN, Knight, and is preserved for some of my Cattle at Government House Farm, he has done so successfully, and I shall readily employ him again. A. BARNESMAN, Esq. Governor.
