This looked very like a "lawless proceeding," in other words, the effect of "Club Law." A certain quantity of paving stones, once

To these, my answer is simply this, that when I find parties who acted somewhat prominent parts in more than one of the despotic and tyranical scenes which I have attempted to describe, making themselves busy to induce the unwary and untbinking, to join them in the fatal and retrograde to join them in the ratia and retrograde movement towards a rejunction with the Township; and when I know that the only hope of these parties, to raise them-selves again to power, is by such junction with the township, I confess I am suspicious of the purity of their motives, especially at this particular crisis of our existence, when we have averything to home for as we are, for we have everything to hope for as we are, & everything to fear from a retrograde move-ment. I stated the matter generally, in my last, I was met with a sweeping charge of falsehood from Mr. Williamson, I have new given a few particulars in explanation of what I meant by the expression 'Club

Law, at the risk of giving offence where I should regret much to do so, but I have done it on public grounds, and so I think for the public good ; and for no other rea-son ; and, should Mr. Williamson wish it-if you are not tired of the squabble-when here failed dimension interference? be has fairly digested Foreign interference' which he seems to have stumbled at, I can perhaps treat him to a few smaller matters, which will show that the empty gaol was sometimes attributable to the forbearance of the "powers that be," as well as to the

CURLING.

Paris 10th January 1851.

The curlers of Canada are bereby inform-ed, that it has for sometime past been in contemplation by some of the numerous curling clubs of the counties of Wentworth and Halton, to arrange a bonspice, to deter-mise the comparative skill of the several curling clubs of Western Canada According to Ellowitz in such several can can be be to Etiquitte in such cases, this can only be determined by a trial of skill between those clubs, which, at present hold precedence as being the better curlers in their respective districts. The curling club of Paris is unwilling to be an obstacle to so desirable ab issue.

Its members in claiming the precedence Its members in claiming the precedence spoken of in their district, owe it to com-petition, as they have for several years been victorious over the other numerous and more skilful curling clubs of the above counties, as well as of the metropolitan club of the Province. Justice to competitors compels the cur-lers of Paris thus multicly to part lers of Paris thus publicly to allude to past transactions. They therefore challange any other club or association of Western Canada to meet them on a fair field to contend for the prize of excellance. Correspondents will please address Secre-tary. JAMES PENANT, Sec. Paris C. Club.

The closing moments of the year 1850 find us seated to the performance of our weekly task with the feeling that upon rising we shall have insensibly glided into the year 1851. Like a traveller who has reached the com-mencement of another stage, we pause to look back os the incidents of our journey. We recall the hapes and fears which beset us at our start-the misgivings occasioned by a sense of the want of that amount of experience necessary to guide the heim in all weathers, as well as to the "profit-able stability of the favoring gale by which we were first tempted to spread our sails and stand out into the broad ocean of public support. In arying that we feel we have overcome the first difficulty, we fear we may be overstepping the fair decorum of moderty, but to whatever cause

MELANCHOLY OCCURRENCE. - We learn that on Monday last, in Paris, a fine young girl; the daughter of James Pollock, Esq., was run over by a team which was driving rapidly through the streets, and so badly was she injured that she expired within an hour. This is snother and fearful instance of the serious requires that are frequently of the serious results that so frequently follow the insane practice of driving horses furiously through the streets, and should servia as a sufficient warming to civic au-thorities of the danger of delaying to put a stop to it.—Brautford Herald.

excitement than any election day we can recollect for some years past. There was I have extended my remarks, Sir, to too great a length already, and shall conclude with one remark on the last paragraph of Mr. Williamsons letter viz : the "persecu-ting and prosecutig of Dr. Dunlop in his old age," this Sir, is just such a perroration to his letter, as I have often heard to his harangues, an attempt again to rouse the scalings of party : such remarks as these very little canvassing previous to the time of the elections, or it had been performed in a very quiet way. The election in St. Patrick's Ward excited most interest. It would be difficult to define the real state of feeling in regard to the matters that were mixed up with the contest in the different Wards. The local questions were the cs-tablishment of a Market at the West end feelings of party; such remarks as these when so utterly uncalled for, are strongly indicative of a coarse mind, however talentof the Town and the location of the Rail-road Depot to the north or south of Dundas Street, which last was again subdivided by
