

of a violent man, who called him to administer a "thrashing" for some recent injury. Obadiah calmly said: "Friend if thou wilt not be pacified by the assurance that I never intended to injure thee, please to show me the strength of thy work of thrashing me by taking some dinner. Let them have a dinner of lamb, and Sarah will help thee to some slices of what is called ham; or, peradventure, thou wilt take from this roast beef which I am eating, and which has bloody juices to increase thy anger's propensity. Sit down, friend; the dinner will do thee good when thou art fighting for peace-making."

The aggressor again sat down, and refreshed himself with more tumblers of toddy than his host had curiosity to count. At length he rose up staggering, and said in broken words which hiccuping divided still more, "I'll now lick ye!"

"Peradventure," returned Obadiah, "thou mayest first think of taking a smoke." The suggestion was adopted, and the smoker was at the same time helped liberally to toddy. Rising up in utter impotence, he announced that his "thrashing" design could no longer be delayed; whereupon, Obadiah leading him to the open back window that spoke:

"Friend, thou canstst hit a man of strife. I gave thee some toddy; still thou wouldst not be pacified; now take a drink-offering; nevertheless, thou wert not to be assuaged. Then I gave thee a burnt-offering; yet after all thou remainest a man of wrath! And now I give thee a haec-offering!"

And he threw the intruder out of the window!

Oysters. (From the Liverpool Courier Jan 11.) The demand for these tasty molluscs seems to be constantly growing, and the supply of them no less constantly diminishing. At any rate the price is steadily rising, until now oysters are out of the reach of all but rich epicures. "Natives" are an unattainable luxury, and Irish oysters are no longer cheap.

Never Get Angry. It does no good. Some sins have a seeming recompensation or apology, a present gratification of some sort; but anger has none. A man feels no better for it. It is really a torment; and when the storm of passion has subsided, it leaves one to see that he has been in a fool, and that he has done himself a foul in the eyes of others.

NEEDLE MAKING

There is a needle factory in New Haven where the whole process is done by a single machine, without the manual labor of any person. A coil of steel wire is put in the machine and it cuts the required needles; it cuts the shank, pierces the eye, punches the eye-holes, counterbore the eye and grinds the points and in fact does everything until the needles drop out completely formed.
